BRYAN, THE PLAIN, A LOST ILLUSION.

Blare of Democracy's Theatric Welcome to "Peerless One" Reveals Him in New Pose.

HEARST A RUNNING MATE?

Raymond Reads Signs of Odd Alliance in Editor's Dalliance with the Leader's "Home Folks."

BY RAYMOND.

New York, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—William Jennings Bryan was officially welcomed to his native land tonight. He arrived twenty-four hours earlier and really set foot upon the soil of Staten Island yesterday afternoon, but this fact was not allowed to interfere with the carefully rehearsed pageant which had been arranged for his arrival.

Mr. Bryan looks well. His European and oriental trip evidently has agreed with him. As he passed up the lobby of the Victoria hotel a little after 8 o'clock this evening he seemed to me to be even younger than I remembered him in 1896, when his "cross of gold" speech won for him the nomination in the Chicago convention.

Bryan is perennial. He never was more of a candidate for the presidency than he is today. The action of the next democratic national convention practically is forestalled. Mr. Bryan affects to believe that there is some doubt about party action, but not a single one of those who are with him today has the slightest doubt he already is the democratic nominee for the presidency in 1908 and that he will be the standard bearer against Fairbanks, Taft, Cannon, or any other republican leader.

Whole Reception a Huge Joke.

There is something hugely funny about the whole Bryan reception. The "peerless one" entirely has belied all hopes of real democracy. Instead of coming ashore with the rest of the passengers on the German boat which brought him across the ocean he was a willing party to his enforced detention down the bay. The Bryan of old, who made his way because of his supposed devotion to the cause of the plain people, has strangely changed. He has been held down in the lower waters of New York bay for more than twenty-four hours as the guest of manifest millionaires. He spent the night on Mr. Goltra's yacht Illini and the greater part of the day on the houseboat of Lewis Nixon, the millionaire ship owner.

There never was anything that was so absolutely undemocratic as the actual reception of William Jennings Bryan in New York City. He was landed at the battery along about 4 o'clock and headed a procession of carriages up Broadway, winding up at the Victoria hotel in time for dinner.

More Police than Citizens.

The crowd at the hotel as Mr. Bryan left for Madison Square garden was by no means a large one. There were more police than there were citizens, and the "peerless leader" had not the slightest difficulty in proceeding to his open carriage, which was inartistically draped with American flags.

As a matter of course, there was a big crowd at the Madison Square garden, where Mr. Bryan made his first long speech after his arrival in the United States, and where he declared his political adherence to the general principle of ownership of railroads by the federal government. The crowd in Madison Square garden shouted itself hoarse, and the nomination of Mr. Bryan for the presidency practically was made tonight.

There has been a significant gathering of democratic leaders here in New York. They all recognize that Mr. Bryan is inevitably the leader of the democracy in the next presidential campaign. Mayor Tom Johnson of Cleveland, Mayor Dunne of Chicago, Mayor Jim Dahlman of Omaha, and Mayor Browne of Lincoln all united in expressing the belief that the next democratic national convention would be nothing more than a ratification meeting at which Mr. Bryan would be presented as a candidate for the presidency.

Gov. Folk's Presence Significant.

That such a conservative democrat as Gov. Folk of Missouri has participated in the Bryan reception is a significant matter. It is a matter of political history that about two years ago all the influence of Mr. Bryan was thrown in the direction of "Gum Shoe" Bill Stone, then governor and now senator from Missouri. Folk had none of the influence of the Bryan machine, and he was elected governor in spite of it.

But since then Bryan and Folk have come together, and it is a remarkable fact that there are more people from Missouri here in New York today than from any other place.

There has been a great deal of speculation in regard to the attitude of William Randolph Hearst towards Mr. Bryan. Almost every one has assumed that Hearst will be an independent candidate for the presidency in 1908.

There is no doubt of the fact that he will be an independent candidate for governor of New York next fall if he does not succeed in securing the regular democratic nomination. The announcement by District Attorney Jerome that he would be a candidate, no matter what the convention might decide, has had the effect of altering the plans of the followers of Mr. Hearst.

Until within a few days ago it was generally understood that the editor-congressman would surely be a candidate for the presidency as against Bryan two years from now. Since the Bryan reception began to take definite form, however, Hearst boomers have caused the fact to be known that he will under no circumstances become a candidate for the presidency against Mr. Bryan.

Hearst to Be Running Mate?

When the Nebraska people, headed by Mayor Dahlman of Omaha, first arrived here they were decidedly hostile to Mr. Hearst's move, but later on they were received in person by Mr. Hearst, and one of the most significant features of the Bryan reception yesterday and today has been the belief that Bryan is to be the democratic candidate for the presidency and that his running mate is to be no less a person than William Randolph Hearst.

This outcome is distinctly unpleasant to corporation managers, who believed that Mr. Bryan's growing conservatism would make him even a safer president than Mr. Roosevelt and who have been unprepared for the addition to the democratic slate of such a radical as Mr. Hearst.

Tomorrow Mr. Bryan is to go to New Haven, where he was once treated with in-

FINISH TAX LIST; MAKE GREAT GAIN

Reviewers' Figures Show 39 Per Cent More Personal Property in Cook County than Last Year.

GRAND TOTAL HUGE SUM.

Work of Col. Lewis Seen in Increase of Cash Value to $2,213,361,275 for All Classes of Holdings.

The total 1906 assessed valuation of all personal property in Cook county, as returned last night by the board of review, is $114,979,510. This sum, multiplied by five, gives the real valuation of discovered personal property in the county, including Chicago, at $574,897,550.

This grand total of personal property is an increase of $32,042,371 over the final total of 1905, which is a gain of 39 per cent. Also, it is an increase of $14,917,797 over the figures of the assessors this year. That is to say, the board of review raised personal assessments 15 per cent.

The gain was made largely in the south town, where it amounted to more than $17,000,000 over the assessors' returns. This was due largely to the increases made upon the big estates, such as Marshall Field's and others that in the past had not been scheduled at anything like their full valuation, and to the increases made by the reviewing body in the personalty valuations against large corporations. Much of the additional revenue that will be derived as a result of these increases is due to the efforts of Corporation Counsel James Hamilton Lewis and his special assistants.

Grand Total for County.

It is possible now to give the total figures for all property in the county, inasmuch as the amount at which real estate was assessed was given out by the board of review a year ago. The subjoined table states the whole case of the property found in Cook county:

	Assessed Valuation.
Real estate	327,692,745
Total	$ 442,672,255
Full cash valuation	$2,213,361,275

The totals for the city of Chicago are:

	Assessed Valuation.
Real estate	303,007,932
Full cash valuation	$2,069,979,090

Details of Personal Lists.

The details of the personal property assessments in city and county, with comparative columns indicating the assessors' figures for 1906 and the reviewers' figures for 1905, are as follows:

South Town More, Others Less.

Although there was a gain of over $17,000,000 in the south town as compared with the returns this year by the board of assessors, the north town, the west town, the town of Lake, Lake View, Hyde Park, and Jefferson all show reductions. In the north town, however, the reviewing board added nearly a million dollars to the figures as returned by it a year ago. The whole gain substantially was placed this year upon the south town.

In the country towns there was a general tendency toward lowering of the figures, lightening the burden upon taxpayers. A large reduction was made in Oak Park, being nearly $100,000. A still larger reduction was made in New Trier, due to the removal of manufacturing enterprises.

The tax rate last year was nearly 7 per cent in the larger towns on the assessed valuation, varying somewhat in different towns. With the same percentage the increase in tax revenue this year from personal property alone would be $2,242,965. The increase from real estate would be around $530,000.

Wants More Tunnel Taxes.

Corporation Counsel Lewis will ask for a reconvening of the board of review to raise the assessment of the Illinois Tunnel company from $8,000,000 to $14,000,000 for the last two years in a bill for mandamus that he has under preparation.

The bill will charge that the tunnel company has issued $27,000,000 in bonds upon its property, that it has authorized the issuance of $30,000,000 additional in bonds, and that it has $30,000,000 in capital stock. Col. Lewis asserts that the reports of the company itself show that $17,000,000 has been expended on the tunnels, and that the earnings of the corporation are $180,000 a month.

EPITOME OF BRYAN'S REVISED DEMOCRATIC DOCTRINE AS REVEALED IN HIS ELABORATE ADDRESS IN NEW YORK.

"The Commoner."

[From a colored drawing by Fudge in Harper's Weekly. Copyright, 1906, By Harper & Bros. Reproduced by special permission.]

TRUST ISSUE PARAMOUNT.

"While men may differ as to the relative importance of issues, and while the next congress will largely shape the lines upon which the coming presidential campaign will be fought, I think it is safe to say that at present the paramount issue in the minds of a large majority of the people is the trust issue. I congratulate President Roosevelt upon the steps which he has taken to enforce the anti-trust law, and my gratification is not lessened by the fact that he has followed the democratic rather than the republican platform in every advance he has made."

Radical Stand on the "Trusts."

TARIFF—While absolute free trade would not necessarily make a trust impossible, few manufacturing establishments would dare enter into a trust if the president were empowered to put on the free list articles competing with those controlled by the trusts.

FINES UNSATISFACTORY—What is a fine of $1,000, or even $10,000, to a trust which makes $100,000 while the trial is in progress?

IMPRISONMENT—If imprisonment is too severe a punishment for the eminently respectable gentlemen who rob 80,000,000 of people of hundreds of millions of dollars annually the language of the statute ought to be changed, for nothing is more calculated to breed anarchy than the failure to enforce the law against rich offenders while it is rigidly enforced against petty offenders.

"Municipal Ownership" Doctrine Outlined.

RAILROAD OWNERSHIP—Railroads partake so much of the nature of a monopoly that they must ultimately become public property and be managed by public officials.

DIVISION OF OWNERSHIP—Believing that the operation of all the railroads by the federal government would result in a centralization which would all but obliterate state lines, I prefer to see only the trunk lines operated by the federal government and the local lines by the several state governments.

Questions of National Policy.

AGAINST COLONIES—Our nation has lost prestige rather than gained it by our experiment in colonialism. We have given the monarchist a chance to ridicule our declaration of independence.

GIVE UP PHILIPPINES—A tour through the Philippines has deepened my conviction that we should lose no time in announcing our purpose to deal with the Filipinos as we did with the Cubans.

INCOME TAX—The people will sooner or later demand an amendment to the constitution which will specifically authorize an income tax.

NAVY USES—We may not only promote peace but advance our commercial interests by announcing as a national policy that our navy will not be used for the collection of private debts.

SENATORIAL ELECTIONS—The popular branch of congress has four times declared in favor of the reform (election of United States senators by the people), and yet the senate arrogantly and impudently blocks the way.

How to Solve Labor Problems.

EFFECT OF STRIKES—The strike, the only weapon of the employe at present, may injure the workman as much as the employer.

EQUALITY OF RIGHTS—But if it is unwise to make the employer the sole custodian of the rights and interests of the employes it is equally unwise to give the employes uncontrolled authority over the rights and interests of the employer.

INJUNCTIONS—Government by injunction is really an attack on the jury system. So long as the meanest thief is guaranteed a trial by jury, a jury ought not to be denied to wage earners.

Some Features of Socialism.

REMEDY ABUSES—The best way to oppose socialism is to remedy the abuses which have grown up under individualism.

WEAKNESS OF SOCIALISM—Socialism presents a consistent theory, but a theory which in my judgment does not take human nature into account. Its weakness is that it would substitute a new disease—if not a worse one—for the disease from which we suffer.

LIMITING REVENUES—If we can but repeal the laws which enable men to reap where they have not sown no one will be able to accumulate enough to make his fortune dangerous to the country.

Views on the Money Standard.

GOLD AND SILVER—The unlooked for and unprecedented increase in the production of gold has brought a victory to both the advocates of gold and the advocates of bimetallism—the former keeping the gold standard which they wanted and the latter securing the larger volume of money for which they contended.

MONEY QUESTION—Our opponents have derived not only partisan pleasure but partisan advantage from the division caused in our party by the money question. They ought not begrudge us the satisfaction in the fact that unexpected conditions have removed the cause of our differences.

CHICAGO WOMAN, IN A ROCKER, SETS BIG DEPOT IN TURMOIL.

Persists in Knitting in Doorway of Atlantic City Terminal—Holds Back Trains and Defies Station Force.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Mrs. C. A. Rathbone, a pretty brunette, who said her home is in Chicago, created a riot in the Reading terminal here today, delayed the starting of several trains, and successfully defied police and station officials until a big negro porter by force of arms conquered her.

Mrs. Rathbone appeared in the terminal early this morning and, taking a rocking chair from the women's waiting room, planted it in the main doorway of the general waiting room and refused to move. Soon on both sides of the barricade was a mob, but Mrs. Rathbone produced some knitting from a reticule and paid no attention.

"Go to ——," said Mrs. Rathbone to a station official who expostulated. "I'm from Chicago and my motto is 'I will.' I like it here and here I sit. Go to, young man."

The stationmaster threatened arrest and brought a policeman. Mrs. Rathbone smiled at the policeman, who retreated, saying:

"I don't see 's I c'n do anything. She ain't making no fuss nor nothing."

Then down upon Mrs. Rathbone bore a big black porter. He moved to the chair. There was a rustle and swish of white garments, and the woman from Chicago, screaming, appeared over the heads of the crowd. After a moment she slid swiftly through the negro's arms, rushed to a train moving out of the station, and swung on, while the crowd roared.

PET DOG GIVEN DEATH RESPITE.

Police Show Mercy to Animal, Which Will Be Imprisoned Following Attack on Boy.

Nine days in jail, with a possible sentence of death at the expiration of this time, was the punishment meted out to a South Chicago dog yesterday. The dog was ungrateful for this respite from immediate death, a courtesy unique in police stations, and spent the day in its cell howling and snapping. The crime committed was biting a small boy, Michael McGinnis, 9312 Manistee avenue.

Policeman O'Leary ferreted out the criminal by finding a piece of "Mickey's" trousers hanging from the dog's teeth.

SOLDIERS PROTEST BAD MEAT.

Regulars at Camp Benjamin Harrison Refuse to Accept Tainted Beef—New Ration Issued.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—The regulars in camp at Fort Benjamin Harrison made it plain today that they would not accept as ration tainted meat, and for an hour or more there were indications of rebellion against the ration.

The beef had been taken to the camp in a refrigerator car, and had changed color after being exposed to the air for several hours.

The protests of the soldiers caused a board of inspection to be appointed which reported that the beef was tainted in spots, but recommended that the untainted parts be used. Gen. Carter, however, ordered all the beef destroyed and a new ration issued.

MAN ELECTROCUTED IN MIDAIR.

Henry Burke, Employed by Commonwealth Electric Company, Instantly Killed.

Henry Burke, a lineman employed by the Commonwealth Electric company, was electrocuted last night while working on a pole at Fifty-third and Halsted streets. Burke was adjusting some new lines when his hand struck a live wire. He was killed instantly.

The men who were working with him at the time procured ropes and ladders and with them his body was lowered to the ground.

Burke was 25 years old and lived at 4417 Halsted street. The body was taken to Kenny's undertaking rooms, 5436 Halsted street, where an inquest will be held this morning. He was the second telegraph linesman to be killed by electricity in the neighborhood within a week.

GOES TO WED; STAYS TO MOURN.

Rockford, Ill., Man Finds Girl Has Married Rival on the Day Set for Union to Him.

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—William Buske, former captain at the Central fire station, went to Freeport this morning to wed Miss Vivian Weinhold. Their engagement had been announced several times. When Buske arrived at Freeport he learned that his intended bride had gone to Dubuque, where, earlier in the day, she was married to William F. Gleason, a former sweetheart.

TRUSTS THE GREAT ISSUE.

Declares People Face Death Grapple with Hosts of Plutocracy for Control of Government.

NATION TO OWN RAILROADS.

Tariff Must Not Aid Corporations, Filipinos Must Be Free, Navy Must Not Collect Private Debts.

New York, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—The 10,000 and more people who filled Madison Square garden to the utmost tonight saw a new William Jennings Bryan. His smile was gone.

Instead, when the two noisiest demonstrations of the night occurred—the one at his entrance and the other when he stood up to speak—his face became grave, the lines about his mouth tightened, his eyes closed at times to hide a suggestion of moisture in them, he bowed his head, and plainly was under a stress of emotion which he found it difficult to conceal.

Having become master of himself while the cheering was going on, he gradually waved the people into their seats and then began to speak.

Probably recalling the scene in the garden ten years ago—ten years and eighteen days, to be exact—when a great frost on a sweltering night descended upon the garden and cooled off the rest of New York, Mr. Bryan did not read his speech. He had learned most of what he had written out, and followed his text closely.

Voice Clear and Fresh.

His voice was clear, and fresh, and carried well into the farthest corner of the garden. All through his speech and those of the speakers who preceded him there was a subdued roar in the place, like that of traffic in a city, and after Mr. Bryan had been speaking for half an hour there was a constant stream of people coming out of the place—mostly those who had had to stand and had become tired. The audience, in the main, remained to the end.

The occasion was the Commercial Travelers' Anti-Trust league reception. No attempt was made to decorate the garden, and the setting was bare for the speech of the man proclaimed by all the other speakers than himself as the "nation's foremost private citizen."

Hears Laudation Impassively.

The characterizations of Mr. Bryan as the speakers endeavored to find some new appellation interested the audience much. Gov. Folk of Missouri called him "the great torchbearer of righteousness." Augustus Thomas referred to him as another Lycurgus and as a "Roman conqueror, leading his iron legion through the Appian way"; Tom Johnson said he was "not yet the first official citizen of the land," but that he was "two years in advance of his election——" the rest of his remarks along that line being overwhelmed with laughter and then with cheers.

While these phrases of eulogy were being uttered Mr. Bryan remained impassive, occasionally chatting with a friend who sat beside him. He made no open acknowledgment of them.

Like Speech of Acceptance.

Mr. Bryan's speech was practically that of a man who already had been nominated for the presidency, and who was making an address of acceptance. He outlined a policy as if he was outlining the policy of a nation over which he had been chosen to rule.

In brief, Mr. Bryan urged arbitration between nations in order to avert the horrors of war.

He opposed the use of the navy as a collector of private debts.

He opposed the continuance of American rule in the Philippines.

He urged an amendment to the constitution requiring congress to meet soon after election instead of waiting thirteen months as now. He favored election of United States senators by direct vote of the people.

He urged government ownership of railroads—the trunk lines by the nation and the local lines by the states.

He demanded equal rights for capital and labor, anti-trust laws, and an income tax.

He said socialism was a mistaken theory, but censured the arrogance of wealth.

His peroration was a scathing denunciation of plutocracy.

Text of Bryan's Speech.

Mr. Bryan was cheered frequently and vociferously. When delayed by the applause he waited, with only the painted shadow of a grim smile on his tightly compressed lips. Here is his speech in full:

"How can I thank you for this welcome home? My heart would be flint, indeed; if it were not touched by your demonstration. My heart would be ungrateful beyond measure if it did not in return consecrate itself to your service.

"It was kind in the Commercial Travelers' Anti-Trust league to propose this home coming reception. It was kind in Gov. Folk to come all the way from Missouri to bring the testimony that he brings in his official career of love for civic purity, that he might join in this reception. It was kind in Tom Johnson, that example of moral courage that we so much need in this country, to lend his presence to this occasion. Kind in the officers of this league to bring you here. Kind in Mr. Thomas to voice the welcome in words so generous that I could not admit myself worthy of them. Kind in you to so fully recompense me for any danger that I have encountered or any sacrifice that I have made in being absent so long from my native land.

"I cannot use a better phrase than the old simple one—'I thank you.'

Glad to Be Home Again.

"Like all travelers who have visited other lands, I return with delight to the land of my birth, more proud of its people, with more confidence in its government, and grateful

IMPEACH AND OUST OFFICIALS.

New Albany Mayor and Members of the Board of Public Works Under Cloud Owing to Sewage Contract.

New Albany, Ind., Aug. 30.—William V. Gross, mayor of this city, was impeached and removed from office by the city council this afternoon. John Tegart and Charles W. Poutch, members of the board of public works, also were removed. The removal of the mayor and members of the board of public works was the result of an investigation of the acceptance of a new sewage system, just completed at a cost of $220,000.

GIRL IS BURNED FATALLY AFTER LIGHTING A CIGARET.

Blazing Match Thrown on the Floor Ignites the Clothing of Miss Rachel Murray of South Chicago.

If Miss Rachel J. Murray, 24 years old, 9020 The Strand, South Chicago, does not die from the effects of the injuries she received yesterday, it is probable that she never will smoke a cigaret again.

After lighting a cigaret she threw the blazing match on the floor of her room. Her clothing caught fire, and her screams attracted Kate Troy, 22 years old, who ran to her assistance and was burned severely on the face and arms in attempting to smother the flames. Most of Miss Murray's clothing was burned from her body. She was taken to South Chicago hospital. The physicians said she would die.

Fire caused by the explosion of a gasoline stove in a rooming house at 49 Morgan street fatally burned Luther Winger, 53 years old, proprietor of the house.

to the kind Providence that cast my lot in the United States.

"My national pride has been increased because of abundant evidence I have seen of the altruistic interest taken by Americans in the people of other countries. No other nation can show such a record of benevolence and disinterested friendship. My love for our form of government has been quickened as I have visited castles and towers, and peered into dark dungeons, and I am glad that our nation, profiting by the experience of the past and yet unhampered by traditions and unfettered by caste, has been permitted to form a new center of civilization on new soil and erect here 'a government of the people, by the people, and for the people.'

America's Great Responsibility.

"I also return more deeply impressed than ever before with the responsibility which rests upon our nation as an examplar among the nations and more solicitous than we, avoiding the causes which have led other nations to decay, may present a higher ideal than has ever before been embodied in a national life and carry human progress to a higher plane than it has before reached.

"I desire, moreover, to acknowledge indebtedness to the American officials who have everywhere shown us all possible courtesy and kindness.

"I do not know that I can better show my appreciation of the welcome accorded me by my countrymen than to submit some suggestions drawn from observations during the last year. A Japanese educator, addressing me through an interpreter, said: 'I wish you would find the worst thing in Japan and tell us about it so that we may correct it'. I commended the generous spirit which he manifested, but assured him that I had not visited Japan in search of faults and blemishes, but rather that I might find the best things in Japan and take them home for the benefit of my own people.

"Each nation can give lessons to every other, and while our nation is in a position to make the largest contribution, as I believe, to the education of the world, it ought to remain in the attitude of a pupil and be ever ready to profit by the experience of others.

Brings Message of Peace.

"The first message that I bring from the old world is a message of peace. The cause of arbitration is making real progress in spite of the fact that the nations most prominent in the establishment of the Hague tribunal have themselves been engaged in wars since that court was organized. There is a perceptible growth in sentiment in favor of the settlement of international disputes by peaceful means.

"It was my good fortune to be present at the last session of the Interparliamentary union which convened in London on July 23. Twenty-six nations were represented, and these included all the leading nations of the world.

"This peace congress, as it is generally known, not only adopted resolutions in favor of the limitation of armaments and the arbitration of all questions relating to debts, but unanimously endorsed the proposition that all questions of every nature should be submitted to an impartial tribunal for investigation, or to the mediation of friendly nations before hostilities are commenced.

Lessens Danger of War.

"It is not necessary to point out the importance of the position taken. The embodiment of the suggestion in treaties would go a long way toward removing the probability of war. While the idea is of American origin, it was heartily accepted by the representatives of England, France, Germany, and other European countries.

"I believe that if our nation would propose to make with every other nation a treaty providing that all questions in dispute between the parties should be submitted to The Hague court or some other impartial international tribunal for investigation and report before any declaration of war or commencement of hostility, it would find many nations willing to enter into such a compact.

"I am sure, from the public utterances of the present prime minister of Great Britain, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, that such a treaty could be made between the two great English speaking nations, and their example would be followed until the danger of war would be almost, if not entirely, removed.

"To take the lead in such a movement would establish our position as a world power in the best sense of the term. And what argument can be advanced against such action on the part of the United States? Shall we yield to any other nation in the estimate to be placed upon the value of human life? I confess that my aversion to killing increases with the years. Surely the creator did not so plan the universe as to make the progress of the race dependent upon wholesale blood letting. I prefer to believe that war, instead of being an agency for good, is rather an evidence of man's surrender to his passions, and that one of the tests of civilization is man's willingness to submit his controversies to the arbitrament of reason than of force.

Navy Not a Debt Collector.

"Another subject connected with our foreign relations: I venture to suggest that we may not only promote peace but also advance our commercial interests by announcing as a national policy that our navy will not be used for the collection of private debts. While protecting the lives of our citizens everywhere and guaranteeing the personal safety of all who owe allegiance to our flag, we should, in my judgment, announce that persons engaging in business and holding property in other lands for business purposes must be subject to the laws of the countries in which they engage in business enterprises.

"Many profitable fields of investment are now closed because the people of the smaller nations are afraid that an investment of foreign capital will be made an excuse for a foreign invasion. Several times on this trip this fact has been brought to my attention, and I am convinced that for every dollar we could secure to American investors by an attempt to put the government back of their private claims we should lose many dollars by closing the door to investment.

"Mark the distinction between the protection of the lives of our citizens and the use of the navy to guarantee a profit on investments. We do not imprison for debt in the United States, neither do we put men to death because of their failure to pay what they owe, and our moral prestige as well as our commercial interests will be conserved by assuring all nations that American investments depend for protection upon the laws of the country to which the investors go.

Our Failure in Colonialism.

"Before leaving international politics let me add that our nation has lost prestige, rather than gained it, by our experiment in colonization. We have given the monarchist a chance to ridicule our declaration of independence and the scoffer has twitted us with the inconsistency. A tour through the Philippine islands has deepened the conviction that we should lose no time in announcing our purpose to deal with the Filipinos as we dealt with the Cubans.

"Every consideration, commercial and political, leads to this conclusion. Such ground as we may need for coaling stations or for a naval base will be gladly conceded by the Filipinos, who simply desire an opportunity to work out their own destiny, inspired by our example and aided by our advice. In so far as our efforts have been directed toward the education of the Filipinos we have rendered them a distinct service, but in educating them we must recognize that we are making colonialism impossible.

"If we intended to hold them as subjects we would not dare to educate them; self-government with ultimate independence must be assumed if we contemplate universal education in the Philippines.

"As soon as opportunity offers I shall discuss the Philippine question more in length and I shall also refer to English rule in India, for it throws light upon our own problems in the Philippines, but these subjects must be reserved until I can speak more in detail.

Where Europe Is Ahead.

"In several of the nations of Europe the legislative department of government is more quickly responsive to public sentiment than is our congress. In England, for instance, where the ministry is formed from the dominant party, when an election is held upon any important issue the government proceeds to put into law the will of the people expressed at the polls.

"While our system is superior in many respects it has one defect—viz.: that congress does not meet in regular session until thirteen months after the election. During this period there is uncertainty long drawn out, which to the business community is often more damaging than a change of policy promptly carried into effect.

"Would not the situation be improved by a constitutional amendment convening the first session of congress within a few months after the election and compelling the second session to adjourn several days before the following election? Such a change would not only serve legitimate business interests and give the public the benefit of more relief through remedial legislation, but it would protect the people from the jobs that are usually reserved for the short session, which is now held after the election, and when many of the members feel less responsibility because of their defeat at the polls.

People to Elect United States Senators.

"I return more convinced than before of the importance of a change in the method of electing United States senators. There is noticeable everywhere a distinct movement toward democracy in its broadest sense. In all the countries which I have visited there is a demand that the government be brought nearer to the people. In China a constitution is under consideration. In Japan the people are demanding that the ministry, instead of being chosen by the emperor from among his particular friends, shall be selected from parliament and be in harmony with the dominant sentiment; in India there is agitation in favor of a native congress; in Russia the czar has been compelled to recognize the popular voice in the establishment of a duma, and throughout Europe the movement manifests itself in various forms.

"In the United States this trend toward democracy has taken the form of a growing demand for the election of United States senators by a direct vote of the people. It must be difficult to overestimate the strategic advantage of this reform, for since every bill must receive the sanction of the senate as well as of the house of representatives before it can become a law, no important legislation of a national character is possible until the senate is brought into harmony with the people.

"I am within the limits of the truth when I say that the senate has been for some years the bulwark of predatory wealth and that it even now contains so many members who owe their election to favor-seeking corporations and are so subservient to their masters as to prevent needed legislation. The popular branch of congress has four times declared in favor of this reform by a two-thirds vote and more than two-thirds of the states have demanded it; and yet the senate arrogantly and impudently blocks the way.

Wants the Income Tax.

"The income tax which some in our country have denounced as a socialistic attack upon wealth has, I am pleased to report, the indorsement of the most conservative countries in the old world. It is a permanent part of the fiscal system of most of the countries of Europe, and in many places it is a graded tax, the rate being highest upon the largest incomes. England has long depended upon the income tax for a considerable part of her revenues and an English commission is now investigating the proposition to change from a uniform to a graded tax.

"I have been absent too long to speak with any authority on the public sentiment in this country at this time, but I am so convinced of the justice of the income tax that I feel sure that the people will sooner or later demand an amendment to the constitution which will specifically authorize an income tax and thus make it possible for the burdens of the federal government to be apportioned among the people in proportion to their ability to bear them.

"It is little short of a disgrace to our country that while it is able to command the lives of its citizens in time of war, it cannot, even in the most extreme emergency, compel wealth to bear its share of the expenses of the government which protects it.

Capital and Labor Dispute.

"I have referred to the investigation of international controversies under a system which does not bind the parties to accept the findings of the court of inquiry. This plan can be used in disputes between labor and capital, in fact, it was proposed as a means of settling such disputes before it was applied to international controversies. It is as important that we shall have peace at home as that we shall live peaceably with neighboring nations, and peace is only possible when it rests upon justice. In advocating arbitration of differences between large corporate employers and their employés I believe we are defending the highest interests of the three parties to the disputes—viz.: the employers, employés, and the public.

"The employé cannot be turned over to the employer to be dealt with as the employer may please. The question sometimes asked: 'Can I not conduct my business to suit myself?' is a plausible one, but when a man in conducting his business attempts to arbitrarily fix the condition under which hundreds of employés are to live and to determine the future of thousands of human beings, I answer without hesitation that he has no right to conduct his own business in such a way as to deprive his employés of their right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

"To support this position, I need only refer to the laws regulating the safety of mines, the factory laws fixing the age at which children can be employed, and usury laws establishing the rate of interest.

"The effort of the employer to settle differences without arbitration has done much to embitter him against those who work for him and to estrange them from him—a condition deplorable from every standpoint.

Employes Not Unselfish.

"But if it is unwise to make the employer the sole custodian of the rights and interests of the employes, it is equally unwise to give to the employes uncontrolled authority over the rights and interests of the employer. The employes are no more to be trusted to act unselfishly and disinterestedly than the employers. In their zeal to secure a present advantage they may not only do injustice but even forfeit a larger future gain. The strike, the only weapon of the employe at present, is a two-edged sword and may injure the workman as much as the employer, and even when wholly unsuccessful is apt to leave a rankling in the bosom of the wage earner that should not be there.

"Society, moreover, has something at stake as well as the employer and employe, for there can be no considerable strike without considerable injury to the public. Society, therefore, is justified in demanding that the differences between capital and labor shall be settled by peaceful means. If a permanent impartial board is created to which either party of an industrial dispute may appeal, or which can of its own motion institute an inquiry, public opinion may be relied upon to enforce the finding. If there is compulsory submission to investigation it is not necessary that there shall be compulsory acceptance of the decision, for a full and fair investigation will in almost every case bring about a settlement.

Government by Injunction.

"No reference to the labor question is complete that does not include some mention of what is known as government by injunction. As the main purpose of the writ is to evade trial by jury, it is really an attack upon the jury system and ought to arouse an unanimous protest. So long as the meanest thief is guaranteed a trial by jury, a jury ought not to be denied to wage earners. However, as the writ is usually invoked in case of a strike, the importance of the subject would be much reduced by the adoption of a system of arbitration, because arbitration would much reduce, even if it did not entirely remove, the probability of a strike.

"Just another word in regard to the laboring man. The struggle to secure an eight hour day is an international struggle and it is sure to be settled in favor of the workingman's contention. The benefits of the labor saving machine have not been distributed with equity. The producer has enormously multiplied his capacity, but so far the owner of the machine has received too much of the increase and the laborer too little.

"Those who oppose the eight hour day do it, I am convinced, more because of ignorance of conditions than because of lack of sympathy with those who toil. The removal of work from the house to the factory has separated the husband from his wife and the father from his children, while the growth of our cities has put an increasing distance between the home and the workshop.

"Then, too, more is demanded of the laboring man now than formerly; he is a citizen as well as a laborer, and must have time for the study of public questions, if he is to be an intelligent sovereign. To drive him from his bed to his task and from his task back to his bed is to deprive the family of his companionship, society of his service, and politics of his influence.

Democratic Party United.

"Thus far I have dwelt upon subjects which may not be regarded as strictly partisan, but I am sure that you will pardon me if in this presence I betray my interest in those policies for which the democratic party stands. I have not had an opportunity to make a democratic speech for almost a year, and no one—not even a political enemy—could be so cruel as to forbid me to speak of those policies on this occasion.

"Our opponents have derived not only partisan pleasure but also partisan advantage from the division caused in our party by the money question. They ought not, therefore, begrudge us the satisfaction that we find in the fact that unexpected conditions have removed the cause of our differences and permitted us to present a united front on present issues.

Victory for Gold and Silver.

"The unlooked for and unprecedented increase in the production of gold has brought a victory to both the advocates of gold and the advocates of bimetallism—the former keeping the gold standard which they wanted and the latter securing the larger volume of money for which they contended.

"We who favor bimetallism are satisfied with our victory if the friends of monometallism are satisfied with theirs. And we can invite them to a contest of zeal and endurance in the effort to restore to the people the rights which have been gradually taken from them by the trusts.

"The investigations which have been in progress during the last year have disclosed the business methods of those who a few years ago resented any inspection of their schemes and hid their rascality under high sounding titles. These investigations have also disclosed the sources of enormous campaign funds, which have been used to debauch elections and corrupt the ballot.

Peril in Campaign Contributions.

"The people see now what they should have seen before—namely: that no party can exterminate the trusts so long as it owes its political success to campaign contributions secured from the trusts. The great corporations do not contribute their money to any party except for immunity expressly promised or clearly implied.

"The president has recommended legislation on this subject, but so far his party has failed to respond. No important advance can be made until this baneful influence is eliminated, and I hope that the democratic party will not only challenge the republican party to bring forward effective legislation on the subject, but will set an example by refusing to receive campaign contributions from corporations and by opening the books so that every contributor of any considerable sum may be known to the public before the election.

"The great majority of corporations are engaged in legitimate business and have nothing to fear from hostile legislation, and the officers should not be permitted to use the money of the stockholders to advance their own political opinions. Contributions should be individual, not corporate, and no party can afford to receive contributions even from individuals when the acceptance of these contributions secretly pledges the party to a course which it cannot openly avow. In other words, politics should be honest, and I mistake political conditions in America if they do not presage improvement in the conduct of campaigns.

Trust Issue Is Paramount.

"While men may differ as to the relative importance of issues, and while the next congress will largely shape the lines upon which the coming presidential campaign will be fought, I think it is safe to say that at present the paramount issue in the minds of a large majority of the people is the trust issue.

"I congratulate President Roosevelt upon the steps which he has taken to enforce the anti-trust law, and my gratification is not lessened by the fact that he has followed the democratic rather than the republican platform in every advance he has made.

"It has been a great embarrassment to him that the platform upon which he was elected was filled with praise of the republican party's record rather than with promises of reform. Even the enthusiastic support given him by the democrats has enabled the champions of the trusts to taunt him with following democratic leadership. He has probably gone as far as he could without incurring the hostility of the leaders of his own party. The trouble is that the republican party is in a position to apply effective and thoroughgoing reforms, because it has built up, though special legislation the very abuses which need to be eradicated.

Asks, What Is a Trust?

"Before any intelligent action can be taken against the trusts we must have a definition of a trust. Because no corporation has an absolute and complete monopoly of any important product, the apologists for the trusts sometimes insist that there are in reality no trusts. Others insist that it is impossible to legislate against such trusts as may exist without doing injury to legitimate business. For the purpose of this discussion it is sufficient to draw the line at the point where competition ceases to be effective and to designate as a trust any corporation which controls so much of the product of any article that it can fix the terms and conditions of sale.

"Legislation which prevents a monopoly not only does not injure legitimate business but actually protects legitimate business from injury. We are indebted to the younger Rockefeller for an illustration which makes this distinction clear. In defending the trust system he is quoted as saying that, as the American beauty cannot be brought to perfection without pinching off ninety-nine buds, so that the one hundredth bud can receive the full strength of the bush, so great industrial organizations are impossible without the elimination of the smaller ones. It is a cruel illustration, but it paints a perfectly accurate picture of trust methods.

Where Democracy Stands.

"The democratic party champions the cause of the ninety-nine enterprises which are menaced; they must not be sacrificed that one great combination may flourish, and when the subject is understood we shall receive the cordial support of hundreds of thousands of business men who have themselves felt the oppression of the trusts, or who, having observed the effect of the trusts upon others, realize that their safety lies not in futile attempts at the restraint of trusts but in legislation which will make a private monopoly impossible.

"There must be no mistaking of the issue and no confusing of the line of battle. The trust as an institution will have few open defenders. The policy of the trust magnates will be to insist upon 'reasonable legislation,' and then they will rely upon their power to corrupt legislators and intimidate executives to prevent the application of any remedies which would interfere with the trusts. Our motto must be: 'A private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable,' and our plan of attack must contemplate the total and complete overthrow of the monopoly principle in industry.

No Quarrel Over Remedies.

"We need not quarrel over remedies. We must show ourselves willing to support any remedy which promises substantial advantages to the people in their warfare against monopoly. Something is to be expected from the enforcement of the criminal clause of the Sherman anti-trust law, but this law must be enforced not against a few trusts, as at present, but against all trusts, and the aim must be to imprison the guilty, not merely to recover a fine.

"What is a fine of $1,000, or even $10,000, to a trust which makes $100,000 while the trial is in progress?

"If the criminal clause is not to be enforced it ought to be repealed. If imprisonment is too severe a punishment for the eminently respectable gentlemen who rob 80,000,000 people of hundreds of millions of dollars annually, the language of the statute ought to be changed, for nothing is more calculated to breed anarchy than the failure to enforce the law against rich criminals while it is rigidly enforced against petty offenders.

Existing Laws Not Enough.

"But it is not sufficient to enforce existing laws. If ten corporations conspiring together in restraint of trade are threatened to punishment, all they have to do now is to dissolve their separate corporations and turn their property over to a new corporation. The new corporation can proceed to do the same thing that the separate corporations attempted and yet not violate the law.

"We nedd, therefore, new legislation, and the republican party not only fails to enact such legislation, but fails even to promise it. The democratic party must be prepared to propose new and efficient legislation.

"Recent investigations have brought to light that nearly all crookedness revealed in the management of our large corporations has been due to the duplication of directorates. A group of men organized, or obtained control of several corporations doing business with each other and then proceeded to swindle the stockholders of the various corporations for which they acted. No man can serve two masters, and the director who attempts to do so will fail, no matter how much money he makes before his failure is discovered. Many of the trusts control prices by the same methods. The same group of men secure control of several competing corporations and the management is thus consolidated. It is worth while to consider whether a blow may not be struck at the trusts by a law making it illegal for the same person to act as director or officer of two corporations which deal with each other or are engaged in the same general business.

Suggests a Federal License.

"A still more far reaching remedy was proposed by the democratic platform of 1900—namely: the requiring of corporations to take out a federal license before engaging in interstate commerce. This remedy is simple, easily applied, and comprehensive. The requiring of a license would not embarrass legitimate corporations—it would scarcely inconvenience them—while it would confine the predatory corporations to the state of their origin.

"Just as a license to sell liquor leaves the possessor of the license to sell only in accordance with the laws of the state in which he resides, so a corporate license granted by a federal commission would not interfere with the right of each state to regulate foreign corporations doing business within its borders. If corporations were required to take out a federal license the federal government then could issue the license upon the terms and conditions which would protect the public.

"A corporation differs from a human being in that it has no natural rights, and, as all of its rights are derived from the statutes, it can be limited or restrained according as the public welfare may require.

"The control which congress has over interstate commerce is complete, and if congress can prevent the transportation of a lottery ticket through the mails, by the express companies, or by freight it certainly can forbid the use of the mails, the railways, and the telegraphs to any corporation which is endeavoring to monopolize an article of commerce, and no party can long be credited with sincerity if it condemns the trusts with words only and then permits the trusts to employ all the instrumentalities of interstate commerce in the carrying out of their nefarious plans. It is far easier to prevent a monopoly than to watch it and punish it, and this prevention can be accomplished in a practical way by refusing a license to any corporation which controls more than a certain proportion of the total product—this proportion to be arbitrarily fixed at a point which will give free operation to competition.

Tariff Allied to Trusts.

"The tariff question is closely allied to the trust question, and the reduction of the tariff furnishes an easy means of limiting the extortion which the trusts can practice.

"While absolute free trade would not necessarily make a trust impossible, still it is probable that few manufacturing establishments would dare to enter into the trust if the president were empowered to put on the free list articles competing with those controlled by a trust.

"While I shall take occasion at an early day to consider the tariff question more at length, I cannot permit this opportunity to pass without expressing the opinion that the principles embodied in the protective tariff have been the fruitful source of a great deal of political corruption as well as the support of many of our most iniquitous trusts. It is difficult to condemn the manufacturers for uniting to take advantage of a high tariff schedule when the schedule is framed on the theory that the industries need all the protection given, and it is not likely that the beneficiaries of these schedules will consent to their reduction so long as the public waits for the tariff to be reformed by its friends.

Worst Feature of the Tariff.

"But one of the worst features of the tariff levied not for revenue but for the avowed purpose of protection is that it fosters the idea that men should use their votes to advance their own financial interests. The manufacturer has been assured that it is legitimate for him to vote for congressmen who, whatever their opinions on other subjects may be, will legislate larger dividends into his pockets; sheep growers have been encouraged to believe that they should have no higher aim in voting than to raise the price of wool, and laboring men have been urged to make their wages their only concern.

"For a generation the 'fat' has been held out by the manufacturers by the republican congressional committee, and then the manufacturers have been reimbursed by legislation. With the public conscience educated to believe that this open purchase of legislation was entirely proper, no wonder that insurance companies have used the money of their policy holders to carry elections—no wonder that trusts have hastened to purchase immunity from punishment with liberal donations.

As to Selling Notes.

"How can we draw a moral distinction between the man who sells his vote for $5 on election day and the manufacturer who sells his political influence for $50,000 or $100,000, payable in dividends? How can we draw a moral line between the senator or congressmen elected by the trusts to prevent hostile legislation and the senator or congressmen kept in congress by the manufacturers to secure friendly legislation? The party which justified the one form of bribery cannot be relied upon to condemn the other.

"There never was a time when tariff reform could be more easily entered upon, for the manufacturers by selling abroad cheaper than at home, as many of them do, have not only shown their ingratitude toward those who built the tariff wall for them but they have demonstrated their ability to sell in competition with the world. The high tariff has long been a burden to the consumers in the United States, and it is growing more and more a menace to our foreign commerce because it arouses resentment and provokes retaliation.

Takes Up Railroad Rates.

"The railroad question is also interwoven with the trust question. Nearly all the private monopolies have received rebates or secured other advantages over competitors. Absolute equality of treatment at the hands of the railroads would go far toward crippling the trusts, and I rejoice that the president has had the courage to press the question upon congress. While the law, as it was finally distorted by the senate, is not all that could be wished, it deserves a fair trial.

"Rate regulation was absolutely necessary and it furnishes some relief from the unbearable conditions which previously existed; but we must not forget that the vesting of this enormous power in the hands of the commission appointed by the president introduces a new danger. If an appointive board has the power to fix rates, and can, by the exercise of that power, increase or decrease by hundreds of millions of dollars the annual revenues of the railroads, will not the railroads feel that they have a large pecuniary interest in the election of a president friendly to the railroads?

"Experience has demonstrated that municipal corruption is largely traceable to the fact that franchise corporations desire to control the city council and thus increase their dividends. If their managers adopt the same policy the sentiment in favor of the ownership of the railroads by the government is likely to increase as rapidly throughout the country as the sentiment in favor of municipal ownership has increased in the cities.

Government Must Own Railroads.

"I have already reached the conclusion that railroads partake so much of the nature of a monopoly that they must ultimately become public property and be managed by public officials in the interest of the whole community in accordance with the well defined theory that public ownership is necessary where competition is impossible.

"I do not know that the country is ready for this change. I do not know that a majority of my own party favor it, but I believe that an increasing number of the members of all parties see in public ownership the sure remedy for discriminations between persons and politics and for the extortionate rates for the carrying of freight and passengers.

"Believing, however, that the operation of all the railroads by the federal government would result in a centralization which would all but obliterate state lines, I prefer to see only the trunk lines operated by the federal government and the local lines by the several state governments.

"Some have opposed this dual ownership as impracticable, but investigation in Europe has convinced me that it is entirely practicable. Nearly all the railroads of Germany are owned by the several states, the empire not even owning the trunk lines, and yet the interstate traffic is in no wise obstructed.

"In traveling from Constantinople to Vienna one passes through Turkey, Bulgaria, Servia, Hungary, and a part of Austria without a change of cars, and yet each country owns and operates its own roads and different languages are spoken on the different divisions of the lines.

"Sweden and Norway each owns its railroads, but they have no trouble about interstate traffic, although their political relations are strained.

"The ownership and operation of the local lines by the several state governments is not only feasible but it suits itself to the conditions existing in the various states. In those states where the people are ripe for a change the local lines can be purchased or new lines be built at once, while private ownership can continue in those states in which the people still prefer private ownership. Some states have been more careful than others to prevent the watering of stock, and in the acquiring of roads each state can act according to the situation which it has to meet.

Right to Own Railroads.

"As to the right of the governments, federal and state, to own and operate railroads there can be no doubt. If we can deepen the water in the lakes and build connecting canals in order to cheapen railroad transportation during half of the year we can build a railroad and cheapen rates the whole year; if we can spend several hundred millions on the Panama canal to lower transcontinental rates we can build a railroad from New York to San Francisco to lower both transcontinental and local rates. The United States mail is increasing so rapidly that we shall soon be able to pay the interest on the cost of trunk lines out of the money which we now pay to railroads for carrying through mails.

"If any of you question the propriety of my mentioning this subject, I beg to remind you that the president could not have secured the passage of the rate bill had he not appealed to the fear of the more radical remedy of government ownership, and nothing will so restrain the railroad magnates from attempting to capture the interstate commerce commission as the same fear. The high handed manner in which they have violated law and ignored authority, together with the corruption discovered in high places, has done more to create sentiment in favor of public ownership than all the speeches and arguments of the opponents of private ownership.

"I have referred to the railroad question as a part of the trust question because they are so interwoven that it is difficult to consider one without the other.

Back to the Trusts Again.

"Just a word more in regard to the trusts. Some defend them on the ground that they are an economic development and that they cannot be prevented without great injury to our industrial system. This may be answered in two ways:

"First, trusts are a political development rather than an economic one; and, second, the trust system cannot be permitted to continue even though it did result in a net economic gain. It is political because it rests upon the corporation and the corporation rests upon a statutory foundation.

"The trust, instead of being a natural development, is a form of legalized larceny and can exist only so long as the law permits it to exist. That there is an economic advantage in production on a large scale may be admitted, but because a million yards of cloth can be produced in one factory at a lower price per yard than one hundred thousand yards can be produced in the same factory, it does not follow that cloth would be produced at a still lower price per yard if all the cloth consumed in the United States were produced in one factory or under one management.

"There is a point beyond which the economic advantage of large production ceases. The moment an industry approaches the position of a monopoly it begins to lose in economic efficiency, for a monopoly discourages invention, invites deterioration in quality, and destroys a most potent factor in production—viz.: individual ambition.

No Industrial Despotism.

"But the political objections to a trust overcome any economic advantage which it can possibly have. No economic advantage can justify an industrial despotism or compensate a nation for the loss of independence among its producers. Political liberty could not long endure under an industrial system which permitted a few powerful magnates to control the means of livelihood of the rest of the people.

"Landlordism, the curse of Europe, is an innocent institution in comparison with the trust when the trust is carried to its logical conclusion. The man who argues that there is an economic advantage in private monopoly is aiding socialism. The socialist, asserting the economic superiority of the monopoly, insists that its benefits shall accrue to the whole people, and his conclusion cannot be denied if the superiority of monopoly is admitted.

"The democratic party, if I understand its position, denies the economic as well as the political advantage of private monopoly and promises to oppose it wherever it manifests itself. It offers as an alternative competition where competition is possible and public monopoly wherever circumstances are such as to prevent competition.

Socialism a Mistake.

"Socialism presents a consistent theory, but a theory which, in my judgment, does not take human nature into account. Its strength is its attack upon evils the existence of which is confessed. Its weakness is that it would substitute a new disease—if not a worse one—for the disease from which we suffer. The socialist is honest in the belief that he has found a remedy for human ills and he must be answered with argument not with abuse. The best way to oppose socialism is to remedy the abuses which have grown up under individualism, but which are not a necessary part of individualism, and the sooner the remedy is applied the better.

"As I was leaving home I set forth my reasons for opposing the socialist doctrine that the government should own and operate all the means of production and transportation; my observations during the last year have strengthened my convictions on that subject. Because I am anxious to preserve individualism, I am earnest in my desire to see the trusts exterminated, root and branch, that the door of opportunity may be open to every American citizen.

"On another occasion I shall call attention to the rapidly growing expenditures of the federal government. It is natural that those who look upon taxation as a blessing should view overgrown appropriations with complacency, yet even the desire to find ways of spending the revenues brought into the treasury by a high tariff cannot wholly account for the reckless extravagance of recent congresses.

Remedy for Plutocracy.

"But at this time I desire to center your thoughts upon the overshadowing evil of the day—the trust—with the plutocratic tendencies that result therefrom. It demands a remedy, and the people are prepared to administer heroic treatment. The democratic party offers a solution which is both reasonable and adequate—a solution in which time honored principles are applied to new conditions.

"The democratic party is not the enemy of property or of property rights; it is, on the contrary, the best defender of both, because it defends human rights, and human rights are the only foundation upon which property and property rights can rest securely.

"The democratic party does not menace a single dollar legitimately accumulated. On the contrary, it insists upon the protection of rich and poor alike in the enjoyment of that which they have honestly earned.

"The democratic party does not discourage thrift, but, on the contrary, stimulates each individual to the highest endeavor by assuring him that he will not be deprived of the fruits of his toil.

"If we can but repeal the laws which enable men to reap where they have not sown—laws which enable them to garner into their overflowing barns the harvests that belong to others—no one will be able to accumulate enough to make his fortune dangerous to the country.

"Special privilege and the use of the taxing power for private gain—these are the twin pillars upon which plutocracy rests. To take away these supports and to elevate the beneficiaries of special legislation to the path of honest effort ought to be the purpose of our party.

Who Can Suffer Injury?

"And who can suffer injury by just taxation, impartial laws, and the application of the Jeffersonian doctrine of equal rights to all and special privileges to none? Only those whose accumulations are stained with dishonesty and whose immoral methods have given them a distorted view of business, society, and government. Accumulating by conscious fraud more money than they can profitably use upon themselves, wisely distribute, or safely leave to their children, these denounce as public enemies all who question their methods or throw a light upon their crimes.

Plutocracy Nation's Peril.

"Plutocracy is abhorrent to a republic; it is more despotic than monarchy, more heartless than aristocracy, more selfish than bureaucracy. It preys upon the nation in time of peace, and conspires against it in the hour of its calamity. Conscienceless, compassionless, and devoid of wisdom, it enervates its votaries while it impoverishes its victims. It is already sapping the strength of the nation, vulgarizing social life, and making a mockery of morals. The time is ripe for its overthrow. Let us attack it boldly, making our appeal to the awakened conscience of the nation in the name of the counting room which it has defiled, in the name of business honor which it has sullied, in the name of the people whom it has oppressed, in the name of the homes which it has despoiled, and in the name of religion upon which it has placed the stigma of hypocrisy.

"And, if I may be permitted to suggest a battle hymn, I propose a stanza, but slightly changed, from one of the strongest of the poems of Scotland's great democratic bard:

Columbia, my dear, my native soil,
For whom my warmest wish to heaven is sent,
Long may thy hardy sons of rustic toil
Be blest with health, and peace, and sweet content.
And O, may heaven their simple lives prevent
From luxury's contagion, weak and vile;
Then, tho' unearned wealth to wickedness be lost,
A virtuous populace may rise and stand
A wall of fire around their much loved land.

BRYAN MAKES A SECOND SPEECH

Tells Crowd Outside Madison Square Garden That Nation Has Great Problems to Solve.

New York, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—W. J. Bryan was called on for a second speech tonight after he left Madison Square garden. As he left the hall he was intercepted by a great outdoor crowd, who demanded a speech. Standing in his automobile he said:

"Ladies and Gentlemen: Weary and warm from my speech in the hall, I cannot speak to you at length. But you will find all that I said in the hall in the papers tomorrow morning. What I said there I need hardly repeat.

"I thank you for the generous evidence you all have given me of your good will. If I can claim any part of my country's love I can be grateful that the God who gave love made love blind. When we really love we do not look for faults in those we love. We take the will for the deed and count as done that which those we love have tried to do. This is my consolation when I feel sometimes that I have not lived up to the high merits my friends sing of me in their panegyrics.

"I don't claim infallibility. No one should claim that which he denies to others. All I desire is to use what ability I may have to it much or little, for the advancement of the good of my fellow men.

"We have great questions to meet as a nation, yet they will not be hard to understand, Thomas Jefferson once said that the great questions of government are easily solved, for they are matters that involve right and wrong.

"The heart of the human race is sound. I have traveled in many lands, listened to many strange tongues, and met people of many hues, but I have found that the human heart is sound everywhere. I have found, too, that the sense of justice is sound everywhere. It is strong in this country of ours. Upon this strong sense of justice we must build our trust. We must appeal to this sense of justice and say that among the men of our business world there must be no giants.

"We must say that no man that God has made should be forced to take an inferior position to the corporate men made by the trusts. We must have government monopolies if monopolies are necessary or where they are necessary.

"I believe that as the people come to study more and more this issue there will be an overwhelming majority come to believe in the application of the tenets of Thomas Jefferson to the principles of every branch of our government. And, in closing, I wish to thank the Commercial Travelers' Anti-Trust league, both for the work they have done for the country and for the work they have done for me, in that they have given me a chance to speak, now that I set foot again on my native land, upon the subjects that are dear to my heart and foremost in my endeavor."

CHEER FOR HOURS IN LUSTY CHORUS.

Vast Crowds Fill Madison Square Garden Long Before Bryan Arrives.

HUZZAS FOR EVERYBODY.

Tom Johnson and Hearst Divide Applause with "Dixie" and "Star Spangled Banner."

New York, Aug. 30.—[Special]—The great crowd which filled Madison Square garden to hear William Jennings Bryan speak was itself a feature of one of the most remarkable demonstrations that has been witnessed in New York for many a year.

It was a crowd which contrasted strangely with the throng which filled the garden ten years ago. In 1896 the crowds came of curiosity to see an enemy who had "invaded" their city—"invaded" was Bryan's own word. Tonight's crowds came to see—not an enemy, but a conqueror—a man who had triumphed over them and one whom they were as eager to acclaim as ten years ago they had been as frantic to condemn.

The people began to assemble in the garden as early as 6:30 p. m. About 1,500 camp stools had been placed on the floor in the body of the house, leaving the two ends of the ellipse open for standers. A speakers' rostrum had been erected on the north side of the auditorium, and it was draped with flags. On its front was a reproduction of the national seal about five feet in diameter. At the east end a platform had been built for the band, and this was also decorated with flags. The Nebraska coat of arms hung from a balcony above the band stand.

Along the balcony, back of the speakers' rostrum, was a streamer bearing the words "Commercial Travelers' Anti-Trust League," and to the west of that was another bearing these words: "Iroquois Club of Chicago—Welcome to Bryan."

Aside from these there were no decorations, and the only other bit of color in the garden was supplied by the thousands of small American flags that had been put in each seat.

Audience in White Waists.

It was a white waisted and white shirted audience that soon filled the seats. Most of the men shed their coats and waistcoats. Now and then a man in evening dress sweltered in these stiff garments, but as a rule the people adopted "home folks" ideas of comfort to the extent that it was next to impossible to tell exactly where the real "home folks" were seated. An occasional comanche yell revealed where some of the westerners were seated, and a sharp, shrill yell, that resembled a screech, showed where the southerners were congregated when the band played "Dixie."

Otherwise, it was impossible to classify the audience, one-half of whom were women in stunning, white things, in any way than as a perspiring mass, stripped of clothing as far as propriety would allow, and eager to see the man already as good as nominated for the presidency by the democrats because of the halo which eight months of travel about the globe had thrown around him.

The first sign of enthusiasm came at 7:12 o'clock, when the band started up. Soon a delegation from the balcony back of the speakers' stand carrying a flag that was said to be the state flag of Maryland. It looked like a heraldic banner and was divided into four parts with crisscross devices and yellow and red galore and cross emblems in the corners.

Immediately a cry arose to know what the flag was. One irreverent man said he guessed it was a trophy that Mr. Bryan had brought home from the orient because it looked like a cross between a Chinese banner and a Malay pirate's ensign. A Maryland man who heard the remark said across some seats.

"I am sorry, sir, that I cannot get near you, for I should make you apologize for that or take the consequences."

The police stopped further hostilities.

Soon after this the audience was surprised to see five men, all in white, enter and take places in the press stands directly under the speaker's place. They were five physicians from Bellevue hospital, two of them from the psychopathic ward, ready for emergencies. The ambulances stood at the door.

At 7:40 o'clock, when the garden was practically full, with empty seats only at the corners, the first real enthusiasm of the night started. The band played "Dixie" and the southerners had the first tryout of their lungs. The band then played "America," and most of the folks thought it was the national hymn, and stood up and waved the flags. Soon the "Star Spangled Banner" burst out, and then there was a tremendous amount of cheering, with every person in the hall standing.

When this outburst had quieted the fan salesmen began to shout their wares generally to this refrain: "It's goin' to be warm here tonight, gents; you'se had better git er fan."

Then the band, after a rest, struck up "Maryland, My Maryland," and all hands cheered the swaying melody nearly as much as they did the national air. The Maryland state flag was waved as if a cyclone had struck it and was trying to fringe it to pieces.

Just before 8 o'clock Acting Mayor McGowan and Controller Metz went up on the speaker's stand and got a lively hand. Tom Johnson and Gov. Folk of Missouri next appeared, and there was a lively welcome for them as they were recognized. By this time all the boxes and most of the seats in the gallery had been occupied. Smoking was going on freely in the place, despite signs prohibiting it, and a light blue haze enveloped the people.

Begin Before Bryan Arrives.

It was exactly 8 o'clock when Harry W. Walker advanced to the front of the stand and rapped on the railing with a light cane for order. Mr. Bryan had not yet arrived, but it was decided to go ahead with the program. The roar in the garden was almost deafening when Mr. Walker began to speak. Not fifty persons heard what he said. He introduced Gov. Folk, who was received with hearty cheers, and who soon succeeded in restoring quiet in a measure so that probably one-half of those in the hall could hear what he said. Gov. Folk wore a black frock, and, coming from Missouri, didn't seem to mind the heat at all. His voice is high pitched. He spoke with the deliberation of an announcer at a garden show. He said the people had assembled to "voice the love and faith of millions in the great leader who has again set foot upon his native land." He added:

"Millions love him because his hands are clean, his heart is pure, and his soul is not touched nor tainted with scars of unearned gold."

Folk Sounds Nation's Peril.

Then Gov. Folk told the audience that the country was "on the threshold of the greatest political awakening this nation had ever known." He declared that the reign of special privilege was about to end. He spoke of the insurance disclosures, of the indictments against trusts, and other things that had revealed to the people the "corruption and greed" of men who had been having "bacchanals of avarice." Then he said the awakening was simply a sign of patriotism, wherever there was great cheering.

Gov. Folk went on telling all that the muckrakers have told and declared that no legislature had yet been bribed "to give equal rights to the people." He wanted the "surest and safest guide" of "equal rights for all and special privileges for none." Then he closed:

"In times like these, when mighty movements are in progress and few men stand out holding the light to guide the footsteps of the seekers after truth, the great torchbearer of rightness is with us and he is the guest whom we welcome home tonight."

Crowd Likes Tom Johnson.

Then Gov. Folk introduced Mayor Tom Johnson as permanent chairman. The crowd was glad to greet Tom. He resembled Bryan and his smile was as expansive as the one that Bryan had rolling along Broadway in the afternoon and that he lost when he reached the garden. Tom was all western. He wore no waistcoat and he showed his suspenders. He was one of the "peepul"—no mistake about that.

"Three cheers for Tom Johnson," dozens of men shouted at once, some of them through newspaper megaphones. Tom liked it all and once or twice playfully pretended to stop the fun, but it went on just the same. Soon he got order enough to shout that the empty seats could be taken by any one who wished to occupy them. Great confusion arose in an instant and the place was like a bear garden for a time.

While the noise was at its height there was an outburst of cheering on the south side. Mrs. Bryan had come in, with her daughter Grace and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Nixon, and had occupied a box in which a basket of roses had been placed. Her entry had been inconspicuous, and most folks thought that she had just been discovered.

But the cheering was not for her. Hearst had arrived. With his wife, W. A. Follansbee, George Wilson, and William Astor Chandler, he stalked to his box and the south side went nearly wild.

While this Hearstian tempest was going on Mr. Bryan slipped in under the speakers' stand and was marching to the front before the people saw him. It was right about face at once.

Mr. Hearst got the cold shoulder for his and the crowd jumped and howled and waved flags for about three minutes. Bryan nodded his head in one or two jerky movements, shook hands with three or four persons, sat down, and pretended to busy himself with a program, as if he were utterly unconcerned. The smile faded and he half closed his eyes and ran them about for a sly look at things.

There were scores of cries for three cheers, and then Tom Johnson broke in and abruptly introduced Augustus Thomas to get off the welcoming oratory. Mr. Thomas spoke with a rasping Missouri voice, and had no difficulty in making himself heard. His eulogistic references to Bryan brought out applause at every pause. Mr. Thomas was classical in the extreme, and he talked of Lycurgus and the sage of Sparta, and he declared that the "conscience of the people is aroused." He addressed his remarks chiefly to Mr. Bryan, while that gentleman sat apparently benumbed under the spell of eloquence.

Mr. Thomas closed with the statement to Mr. Bryan:

"Your country meets you at her gate with accolade and banner. She gives you the proudest welcome that ever greeted private citizen in the history of the world, the echo of millions of American hearts."

"You come alone to take it, but it has been as steadily deserved, as nobly won as was ever any triumph that cheered a Roman conqueror leading his iron legions through the Appian Way."

Tom Johnson Breaks In.

This should have been Mr. Bryan's "cue" to come to the center of the stage, but there was another player who had not yet spoken his lines, and Tom Johnson came to the front, while Mr. Bryan arose and shook the hand of Mr. Thomas warmly.

Tom Johnson got down to business at once. He started out by saying that it was the "happiest occasion of his life," and the irreverent shouted, "Good boy, Tom."

Then Tom said he intended to make the audience as happy as possible by saying as little as possible, and the crowd again shouted, "Good boy, Tom."

He then said that Mr. Bryan was the "first private citizen of the land," and got mixed up in trying to say that he was only two years in advance from the time when he would be elected first official citizen, and the crowd laughed and cheered, and that was all there was of that. Then Mayor Tom got off his few words of welcome to Bryan, and the crowd realized that at last the supreme moment had arrived.

At Last Bryan Comes.

As soon as Mr. Johnson had finished Mr. Bryan arose, and the cheering began. There was no question about its being hearty. Mr. Bryan leaned on the rail and carried a palm leaf fan in his right hand. He was dressed in a black frock coat and wore his accustomed white tie.

Mr. Bryan gloomily fixed his eyes on space, somewhere near the center of the garden, and waited. His face grew grave. He finally cast his eyes down. His mouth twitched slightly. There was a suggestion of tears in his eyes and he closed them. Then he looked about again and fanned himself gently. Again his emotions seemed to get the better of him and he shut his eyes.

The cheers had been going on for two minutes when they showed signs of falling off. The band struck up the "Star Spangled Banner," and the cheering was redoubled. All through it Mr. Bryan was gradually pulling himself together, and when the band again broke in with "Should Auld Acquaintance Be Forgot?" and the audience took up the refrain, his eyes lightened and a really pleasant look stole over his face, to be followed by one of great soberness when the song was finished. He had been swaying slightly while the music was being sung, and again he closed his eyes.

Finally Controls the Crowd.

"Dixie" followed and the yells were deafening. This caused him to open his eyes again, and he began to wave his right hand to the people to be seated. He waved to the right and left. He held up his hand for silence and gradually he had one part of the audience slipping into their seats with the aid of a storm of hisses.

Just as he was getting the audience under control the cheering broke out again, but he went right back at his work and soon the people subsided and a hush came and the former "boy orator" began to speak, not to read.

Although the upper gallery had been nearly emptied before Mr. Bryan finished speaking, and the two tiers below it had many vacant seats, there was a great outburst of cheering when he took his seat, which kept up for five minutes, until the band struck up "The Star Spangled Banner." There was a general handshaking with the speaker on the platform, indulged in by Acting Mayor McGowan, Gov. Folk, Mayor Johnson, and others, which took on the nature of a genuine love feast.

While the crowd in the big auditorium stood on its feet and cheered Mr. Bryan was escorted out of the middle entrance on Twenty-seventh street to the automobile which was in waiting there. He was driven around the corner and down to the outdoor stand on the corner of Twenty-fifth street and Madison avenue. The police had the stand roped off and there was a cordon of police about the structure, but the crowds pushed in so closely that the automobile was held up several feet away from the stand and Mr. Bryan had to thread his way through the cheering spectators. After the noise of his reception had subsided he spoke briefly.

After Mr. Bryan had concluded he was whisked by automobile around to the Victoria hotel. Just as he stepped from the machine he saw Mr. Hearst standing in the doorway.

"Hello, Hearst," said Bryan, and he crossed over and shook him cordially by the hand. Mr. Hearst accompanied Mr. Bryan up to his room and was with him for some time.

With the exception of a chosen few, none was allowed to go to the Bryan side, and it was announced that the festivities were all over for the night.

BRYAN GREETED ON ARRIVAL.

Lands from Launch and Heads Parade to Hotel Victoria, Where He Thanks Crowd for Reception.

New York, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—It was just 4 o'clock this afternoon when Mr. Bryan landed at the Battery from a launch of the yacht Illini and paraded up through Manhattan at the head of twenty-three carriages. The yacht had arrived off pier A a half-hour before, but the start ashore was delayed because Mr. Bryan insisted upon shaving with Lewis Nixon's safety razor and hunting up a clean collar.

"O, everybody in New York has a wilted collar today," insisted Mr. Nixon.

"Well," replied the Conservative Force, "I'm glad I'm with the majority for once in my life."

Then Mr. Bryan climbed into the launch and the parade was started.

There was a tooting of whistles from harbor craft and cheers from about 3,000 people gathered about the Battery wall when the little brown launch shot shoreward and the unterrified saw sitting amidships the classic brow of the Nebraskan gleaming in the sun. Then, as the launch drew up to the pier and the classic dome heaved skyward and the crowd noted the fancy gray felt hat and the trouser wrinkles of dearest memory, happy cries of "He's came!" escaped from the small boy and undignified but fervent yells of "Willie's off the yacht."

Greeted by McGowan and Folk.

And as Mr. Bryan stepped ashore his hand was grasped by Acting Mayor McGowan, who, with Gov. Folk of Missouri, had stepped forward to greet him.

In a few words the mayor welcomed Mr. Bryan to the city, and Mr. Bryan just as briefly thanked Mr. McGowan. Then, while the mayor grasped Mr. Bryan by his strong right arm and led him up the gangway to the top of the wall, the camera regiments and moving picture machines rattled away like rivet drivers.

The twenty-three carriages that had been lying to along the asphalt oiling now advanced, and into the first carriage climbed Mr. Bryan, followed by Mayor McGowan, Gov. Folk, and William Hoge, the commercial travelers' anti-trust magnate.

In the second carriage were Tom L. Johnson—whom a roundsman had tried to throw out of the police lines earlier in the afternoon—Alexander Troup of Connecticut, National Committeeman Norman E. Mack, and Nathan Straus.

As the Bryan carriage started toward Broadway Bryan stood up and waved the gray hat toward Mrs. Bryan and Miss Grace Bryan, his daughter, who were seated in a red touring car along the curb of the plaza. Then, like a Long Island funeral, half the reporters got down to tell in line and acknowledged the plaudits of the "peepul" with quiet ease and graciousness.

Big Gaps Along Curb.

All the plate rope belt, from Bowling green to Fulton street, threw confetti in the form of ticker tape at the passing show. Like flurries of snow, the thin white streamers trailed down from high office windows and got all tangled up with the horses. The fronts of the buildings soon were draped with the streamers, and the horses of the mounted police who headed the parade did some ground and lofty shying in consequence.

If the office boy demonstration of lower Broadway were continued all along the line even the home folk would have had no kick. But up in the colder regions of the farthest north distressingly big gaps began to appear along the curb, like teeth knocked out. And when the parade reached Fiftieth street and Broadway, turned east, and trailed down Fifth avenue, there were few people out, and these were unconcerned.

But there were wild western yells when the head of the parade got down the avenue toward the big crowd surrounding the Fifth avenue side of the Victoria. If Mr. Bryan was disappointed with his reception uptown—and he said he wasn't—his pleasure was evident when he arrived among his own at the end of the ride.

It was a difficult task for Mr. Bryan to get into the hotel, because of the crowds that tried to rush him joyously as he stepped from his carriage. With the help of Police Captain Schlottman and his men, however, Mr. Bryan got aboard the hotel rotunda, fought his way upstairs, and in a few minutes answered the yells of the crowd by appearing on a balcony on the Twenty-seventh street side of the hotel.

Quiet When Bryan Speaks.

Many minutes of tickled hooting followed the first flash of the silvery dome on the balcony. Then Mr. Bryan raised his hand slowly, solemnly, and a great stillness settled over the crowd.

"Ladies and gentlemen," began the ex-candidate, "I'm so careful about my words and so conservative in what I say that I seldom have to retract anything. Nevertheless, when a man makes a mistake I firmly believe he should acknowledge his error.

"So today I want to absolutely repudiate a statement made by me in this city ten years ago. At that time I spoke of this place as the enemy's country. Today I say with equal force that it is the home of my friends."

Then Mr. Bryan disappeared. Following this everybody tried to crowd into the hotel, which already was in danger of bursting. Those that did get in arrived in the rotunda just as Mr. Bryan came down the stairs with Capt. Schlottman beating a way for the distinguished visitor. At the cry of "Speech!" Mr. Bryan halted on the stairs, as if he had heard the cry home place before and knew exactly the right thing to do. Once again the gesture that means "Shut up" or "Conductor, stop the car," according to circumstances, and the rotunda quieted below the croon of the electric fans.

Makes Spiel on Stairway.

"I believe," he began, "that this evening is the time fixed for my speech and that you will not expect a speech from me now. But when a man is in difficulty he must call on his friends to help him. I am in difficulty now. I am trying—trying, I say—to get home."

This was greeted with cries of "You are home now," "No; his home is in the White house," "O, cork up and let him spiel."

"Once I thought my home was in Nebraska. ("No, it's right here"), but some way it is in Missouri. I've finally decided that I don't care where it is. And in the meantime I wish to tell you that I am going to take another course in college in order to learn more of our language, so that on an occasion such as this I can give some expression of my feelings of gratitude. In England I had to say on one occasion that I knew only one language, but now I am convinced that I must learn them all to tell you how I thank you for your reception."

Hoping these few lines would find them the same, Mr. Bryan stood waiting for the police to dig a passage for him through the dense throng. At last he reached the doorway at the Twenty-seventh street side of the rotunda and the real work of the day started—the handshaking.

According to the rules the game was to butt your way toward the spot where Mr. Bryan, protected still by the police captain and a row of brass buttoned persons, stood beneath an electric fan held aloft by one of the proudest hotel buttons that ever fanned a potentate. Two abreast the crowd came and for forty whirling minutes each pair grabbed him at starb'd and port simultaneously and shook the tired man till the perspiration flowed like water from a damp dog.

Decorated with Roses.

Women pinned roses on him as they passed. John M. Garman of Wilkesbarre, Pa., who was state chairman during Bryan's second campaign, headed a Pennsylvania delegation and presented him with an immense wreath of roses, in the center of which was a heart of silver, engraved with an inscription that ran:

"More than half a million democrats of Pennsylvania join with pride in the national greeting to William Jennings Bryan, the most eminent private citizen of America, upon his return from a tour of foreign lands. They hail him as the next president of the United States."

"I'm Mr. Henry Smith of Alabama," one would say.

"Smith—O, yes, I know the name," Bryan would answer affably. "How's the wife?" was a favorite finale, and Smith would bubble over with dee-light.

Fully a third of the handshakers were women, and all the men told the ex-ex-candidate that when he wants to be president he can, and there's nothin' else to it.

Poses for Camera Squad.

But even the handshaking came to an end as dusk approached, and once again Mr. Bryan climbed the stairs to pose for the camera squad—uptown division—talk to men from southern and western states, who want him to come to address three or four state fairs, and things at once during the fall, whisper politics in a corner with the McMillans, Mayor Dunnes, Gov. Jenningses, eat dinner with a rush, and in other ways take a good rest for the big meeting of the night.

While Mr. Bryan and his wife were taking their dinner in their rooms Ex-Gov. W. S. Jennings of Florida acted as the guard at the door, turning back enthusiastic "home folks," committeemen, and state delegation members who wished to have a confidential word or two with Bryan over the roast and the salad. One citizen of Nebraska tried to bribe the waiter to take his card in to Mr. Bryan with one course of the dinner, and expressed his confidence to bystanders that all Mr. Bryan had to do was to see that card and he would ask its owner in to take a bite of pie at least.

Downstairs in the main dining room of the Victoria the various members of reception committees and delegations of welcomers crowded the tables and stood in line for a chance at a seat. All was democratic and Jeffersonian until one citizen from Illinois came into the dining room in evening clothes and fluted shirt bosom. That was the first fly in the ointment of the conservative cohorts. Most of those delegates from west of the Ohio and south of Mason and Dixon's line had sat down to the tables in their walking suits or "store clothes," as such habiliments are designated in the strongholds of the safe and sane democracy.

Sartorial Discussion Results.

Some ate their dinner in manifest nervousness because of the presence of the clawhammer, and this uneasiness was increased when a second and a third delegate entered the dining room arrayed in the formal clothes for evening. Discussion of the sartorial theme transferred itself to the bar after dinner.

"Well, my wife insisted that I bring along my clawhammer," said one of the Nebraska delegates, "but just between us, gents, its no d——d hot to go around in boiled shirts, and I don't think Bill would like it for dollar democrats to go throwing any dog on the occasion of his reception here."

The Nebraska gentleman's dictum was considered final by the insurgents on the dress question, and those who appeared in dinner coats and dress suits were looked upon with suspicion the remainder of the evening.

At 8 o'clock Mrs. Bryan and Grace, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Nixon, left their rooms and took a carriage for the garden.

Promptly at 8:15 Mr. Bryan left his apartments and, escorted by Augustus Thomas of the reception committee of the Anti-Trust league, hurried down the stairs and into an automobile which was drawn up at the door. It was evidently thought that the crowd outside was too great to permit Mr. Bryan's walking to Madison Square garden, as he planned doing, so the automobile was ready to convey him thither.

After Mr. Bryan and Mr. Thomas had stepped into the automobile the machine moved swiftly off to the garden, with mounted policemen before and behind it. Mr. Bryan was brought to the middle entrance on Twenty-seventh street. Other members of the reception committee followed in carriages.

Mr. Bryan spent the most of his time today before he started for the Battery on Lewis Nixon's houseboat, Loudoun, which was anchored off the Ocean Yacht club at Stapleton, L. I. He had spent the night on E. F. Goltra's yacht Illini, and was up bright and early taking the morning air from the deck. About 10 o'clock Mr. Nixon, with a party of democratic managers, arrived at the Ocean Yacht club house. In the party were Tom L. Johnson, of Cleveland; William Hoge, chairman of the Travelers' league, under whose auspices the reception was organized; Bob Davis, one of Jersey's political lights; Norman E. Mack of Buffalo, and Mayor Brown of Lincoln, Neb. They were taken out in a launch to Mr. Nixon's houseboat, and soon Mr. Bryan came over in a launch from the Illini.

It was reported that there was a considerable difference of opinion in the democratic ranks as to what Mr. Bryan ought to say in his speech. None of the confrères wanted Mr. Bryan to say anything that might injure his chances in the presidential campaign, and all of them had decided, but diverse, opinions as to what would hurt the boom.

Advice as to Speech.

One thing that was taken up in the conference was whether Mr. Bryan should read his speech or speak off-hand and freely. It was Mr. Bryan's intention at first to read the speech, but most of his advisers were against that. Mrs. Bryan, it is understood, also urged him to speak without manuscript.

Soon after Mr. Bryan left the Illini the yacht headed in for the battery. Mrs. Bryan was landed there and went to the Hotel Victoria.

It was after noon when the conference on the Loudoun broke up. Then Mr. Bryan received the newspaper men. He prefaced the interview with a statement that he would not talk on any political questions.

"Well, how about phonetic spelling then?" asked one reporter.

"I am too conservative in my methods of thought to decide hastily on a question so important," Mr. Bryan replied.

"Will you participate in any way in the political situation in New York state?"

"I shall not."

"How about Speaker Cannon's candidacy for the presidency?" Mr. Bryan was asked.

"As Cannon is both person and politics," Mr. Bryan replied, "I cannot discuss him."

He was asked to discuss the Philippines and the spirit of Americanism that has taken hold of the islands. He said he could not discuss that, as it was political.

Sees Outcome in Russia.

"How about Russia and the duma?" Mr. Bryan was asked.

"No one can speak with any degree of certainty," he replied, "as to what the immediate future of Russia will be, but we can speak with certainty of the ultimate result. I might illustrate in this way: If you ask me in February what sort of weather we will have I cannot say whether it will be snow or storm or sunshine, but I can say that in a few months we will have summer. No one can say what experience Russia will pass through in the next few years, but it is possible to say that she will have a constitutional form of government."

"Has Mr. Hearst called?" Mr. Bryan was asked.

"No," replied Mr. Bryan.

"Do you expect him?"

"I can't say."

"It has been stated Mr. Hearst was not entirely friendly to you, but he has denied that statement; is it true?"

"I do not think that either Mr. Hearst or myself have to deny any statement of that kind."

"What is your impression of your European trip?"

Lauds Nebraska Loyalty.

"We went with the belief that it would be educational, and found it even more instructive than we had expected. Our homecoming was a great pleasure, however. Mrs. Bryan and I were highly gratified to meet our Nebraska friends who came so far to greet us. These are the veterans with whom I have passed through many political battles. They took me, a young man, and elected me to congress. They have stood by me in all the conflicts for sixteen years, and I don't believe you can find anywhere on earth more moral courage, more true democracy, and more genuine patriotism in the same number of men than you can find in that gallant band which crossed half the continent to make our homecoming a glad one. There are just 114 types of manly beauty, and in that crowd there was one man who was representative of each type."

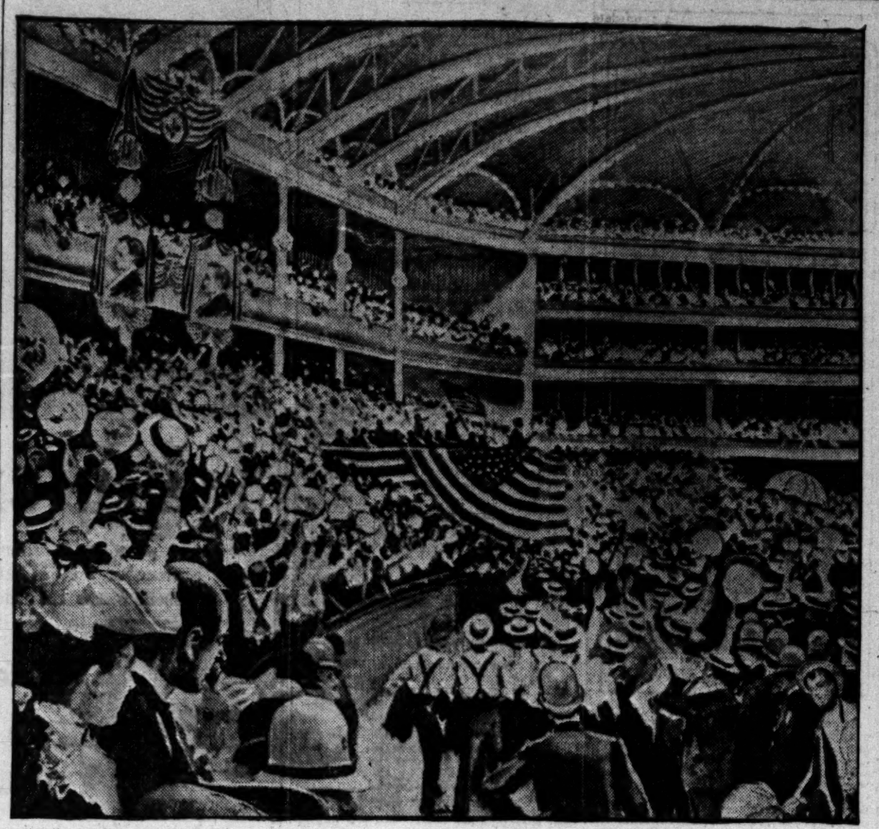

Mr. Bryan declined to talk of Roger Sullivan.

"You were in Germany, Mr. Bryan. Did you look into the attitude of that country toward the United States as regards tariff?"

"That question would drive me into the tariff controversy. The tariff is too big a question to settle in half a dozen sentences, and I have no time for more extended treatment."

Mr. Bryan returned to the Illini about 2 o'clock, and shortly before 3 the anchor was hoisted and the trim little craft headed toward the Battery.

The yacht anchored off the Battery about 3:30 o'clock, and Mr. Bryan, seated on the deck, waited until it was time for him to make the landing.

dignity by Yale students. Later on he will start on for the west, stopping on his way to Lincoln for a specially arranged reception at Chicago. Then he goes to New Zealand to study the subject of government ownership at short range.

Mr. Bryan's speech tonight and his plans for the future are a sufficient indication of what is to be the democratic platform in the next presidential campaign. He has abandoned the free silver idea entirely. I am told that he will not even insist on the formal affirmation of that dead and gone theory. Instead of that, according to Mr. Bryan's idea as expressed in private conversations with different democratic leaders today, the democratic platform in 1908 will make government ownership of railroads as distinct a piece of party belief as was the free coinage of silver ten years ago.

Government Ownership New Creed.

The enactment of the railroad rate regulation law by the republican administration is to be taken only as a first step towards government ownership, and Mr. Bryan from this time forward, as the party managers all have been told, will declare himself more and more clearly for absolute ownership by the federal government not only of railroads, but of telephone and telegraph lines as well.

It was a great and enthusiastic crowd which howled itself hoarse at Madison Square garden tonight. Mr. Bryan had been saving himself for a record breaking speech, and while it is true he used no notes he evidently had prepared himself long in advance, and his speech, so far as length is concerned, was even more impressive than the average presidential message to congress.

It seemed to me, however, that there had been a distinct diminution in real Bryan enthusiasm. The people who cheered him so heartily at the garden tonight were not of the number of crazy Bryan enthusiasts whose presence was felt to such a degree in the presidential campaign of 1896. Mr. Bryan has been too much before the people. They seem to be a little bit tired of him, and there was a manifest lack of real enthusiasm about the great crowd which thronged Madison Square garden tonight.

PRESS COMMENT ON SPEECH.

New York, Aug. 31, 3 a. m.—[Special.]—Following are the comments of the leading New York newspapers on Mr. Bryan's speech:

WORLD—There is no escape from the sweeping sensationalism of many of his most important recommendations. His speech proves that he was, indeed, right when he claimed to be more radical than he was in 1896. However, the democratic politicians have blindly committed the party to anything that Mr. Bryan says and does, and his speech of last night is the party platform. In London Mr. Bryan complained that Mr. Roosevelt had stolen his clothes. But it would not have been enemy for a peerless leader to return in political nakedness, so garments had to be provided. If Mr. Roosevelt stole Mr. Bryan's clothes, Mr. Bryan in turn seems to have stolen Mr. Hearst's clothes—and Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.

HERALD—Mr. Bryan brings back to America a prediction for two foreign ideas—an income tax and government ownership and operation of the railways. A tax on incomes involving an inquisition into every man's private affairs may work well enough under monarchical governments, but it would be out of place in this republic. Government ownership and management of railways may likewise be practicable in an empire like Germany with its compact little area of 200,000 square miles and its 30,000 miles of lines. The ownership and operation of the 220,000 miles of railroad like network over our 3,000,000 square miles of territory would be another matter. There are now more than 1,000,000 employés. Under public and political operation that number would be doubled. Fancy 2,000,000 more voters directly under the thumb of a national partisan administration. Government regulation is essential, government ownership an undesirable and remote possibility, but government management—never.

SUN—There is no doubt about the magnitude of the demonstration arranged to commemorate Mr. Bryan's homecoming, and the impressive welcome must have been peculiarly grateful to him, offered, as it is, in a city which ten years ago he had reason to describe as "the enemy's country." The decade has witnessed, however, not a few dislocating changes in the political situation, not only in New York, but in many another northern state, changes which throw light on the motives now actuating men once unfriendly or lukewarm toward the Nebraskan, and should warn the professional candidate that the surface of things, though smooth and bright enough, hides many a pitfall, and that it behooves him to walk with exceeding wariness, lest when the prize seems within his grasp, he stumble and clutch only the vacant air.

TIMES—Returning to his native land Mr. Bryan presents himself to his countrymen no longer as a democrat, but as the founder and leader of a new party and the advocate of new and revolutionary principles. Mr. Bryan's express appeal to members of both parties, it seems to us, leaves democrats all over the country free to manifest their disapproval of his principles, and to reject public ownership as undemocratic and him as no longer a democrat. The democratic party, with its history, its traditions, and its achievements, cannot surrender to this radical and revolutionist.

Clothes Shop Has New Fall and Winter Garments

We will get "honors" again on our new fall sack coat. It is just different enough from the ordinary to cause it to be much in demand among the better dressed fellows of the "younger element."

The coat is a 8-button sack, just a trifle shorter than last season's models, with long wide lapels, and two cords in the sleeves instead of cuffs. The backs slightly shaped, but not as much as with the coats of last year.

You will see this new garment much in evidence about the best clubs and hotels this fall and winter.

CONDEMNED FOOD IS DOUBLE PERIL.

Inspector Murray Fears 30,000 Filled Cans Will Explode or Be Eaten.

DEATH IN EITHER CASE.

City Would Be Wrecked or Consumers Killed; Other Crusades Are Booming.

"Fish" Murray, the cyclonic avenger of food frauds foisted upon the Chicago public, is reaping the reward of his energy.

He has on hand 30,000 cans of decaying food and he is beset by the fear that his stock of contraband either will blow up with fatal result or be stolen and eaten with equally deadly effect.

"I am at my wits' end how to dispose of the stuff," said Murray, nervously, yesterday. "About half of that truck is likely to blow up at any minute, and the thought of my responsibility for life and property in this town under the circumstances keeps me from sleeping nights. The stuff won't burn, and if I bury it somebody will dig it up and eat it. I guess it's up to Dr. Whalen to dispose of it."

It appears that Murray's attempted incineration of condemned food recently at the stockyards garbage dump was not an unqualified success, for about a third of it was left unscathed by the fire and was carried off afterward.

Murray Makes New Discoveries.

Murray, accompanied by Dr. Nason and Dr. Bach, made another descent on the warehouses of Wakem & McLaughlin, 504 North Water street, where 887 cases of canned peas, pumpkin, and tomatoes were condemned. Murray ordered the proprietors to remove 105 of the cases before today, declaring an explosion was imminent.

A large amount of spoiled meats was discovered by Inspectors John Ahern and Sol Van Praag in the store of Moeller, Stange & Co., 923 Lincoln avenue. Large quantities of sausage, ham, bacon, and other meats were kerosened on the spot and consumed in the furnace.

An analysis of condiments obtained from C. F. Claussen & Sons, Western avenue and Fifty-second street, showed adulterants, and Murray threatened to close the plant. Samples of the Snider Catsup company's product showed benzoic acid and artificial coloring. The mustard of Courtier Bros. company was found to contain benzoic acid. Labels admitting the goods to be imitations were found on the figs sold by the Huss-Edler Preserve company, the Union Catsup company's catsup, and the Excelsior Specialty company's baking powder.

Saloon Smells Reach Department.

John Roberts, First National bank building, complained to the department of the bad odors emanating from the Marx saloon free lunch beneath McVicker's theater and the Becker & Johnson restaurant, Lake street and Wabash avenue.

The inspectors have learned that adulterated milk is being sold plentifully in all quarters of the city. Nearly 100 dealers are being prosecuted in Justice Gibbons' court. Out of 201 separate cases 187 were heard and fines of from $25 to $50 imposed in each instance.

Starts Short Weight Suits.

City Sealer Joseph Grein's campaign against dealers in short weight butter and lard resulted in suits against the following:

Agar Packing company, 92 North Green street; 8 pound pail of lard 12 ounces short.

Anglo-American Provision company, stockyards; 5 pound pail of lard 13 ounces short.

Armour & Co., stockyards; 5 pound pail of lard 9 ounces short.

Other Crusades Booming.

Justice Callahan fined William Anderson, driver for the Galway Ice company, $25 and costs for selling short weight ice. Before Justice Eberhardt this morning Mr. Grein will prosecute C. A. Ferrin for selling thirty-seven and one-half pounds of ice for fifty to Mrs. A. Wright, 836 Congress street.

Sanitary Inspector Hedrick added two more sweatshops to his blacklist, and Building Inspector Bartzen reported that almost every tenement in the district violated the law.

In the morning Hedrick instituted a school of instruction for his women inspectors, who, he insists, do work inferior to the male inspectors. He detailed Mrs. Dolly Bingham, Mrs. Ida Sullivan, Mrs. Augustus Pio, and Mrs. Julia Dunlap to accompany Chief Deputy Inspector T. J. Claffey to the Ghetto and there learn the fine points in sanitary science. Neither Claffey nor the women were heard from the remainder of the day.

WANTS CURB ON MOTORMEN.

Delegate at Traveling Engineers' Convention Scores Reckless Handling of Street Cars.

"There ought to be some kind of a law compelling motormen—especially of Chicago—to thoroughly learn how to handle air-brakes," said C. C. Farmer yesterday at a meeting of the Traveling Engineers' association at the Auditorium hotel. "They throw on air inside of ten feet of their stopping point, and every passenger standing goes to the mat if not holding a strap."

Delegates told about street car motormen's abuses of the airbrake, the discussion being the warmest of the convention.

F. P. Roesch, master mechanic of the Southern Railway, of Avondale, Ala., opened a general discussion on "The care of locomotives at terminals and while in service" that occupied the afternoon session.

CONFER 163 DEGREES TODAY.

University of Chicago's Sixtieth Convocation Will Be Held This Afternoon in Mandel Hall.

The University of Chicago will celebrate its sixtieth convocation this afternoon in Mandel hall, concluding the summer term which has been the most successful in the university's history.

Degrees will be conferred on 163 students. Ninety-one will receive the bachelor's title, while the master's or doctor's honors will be given to forty-two scholars.

Prof. William W. Folwell of the department of political science of the University of Minnesota will deliver the convocation address.

Jilted Actress Won by a Printer

MRS. GEO. E. LEIFERMAN

With a good chance of a judgment for $21,000 against the rich man who jilted her, Miss Lola Walker, artists' model, actress, and more lately a "milady" milliner, has gone back to her first love and was quietly married in Chicago to George E. Leiferman, 8316 West Sixty-third place. The wedding occurred last Monday and was the second romance culminating in that manner which has gladdened the Leiferman household this summer. William Leiferman, an elder brother, gained fame for himself one day last June by kidnaping Miss Grace Monroe, the daughter of Chicago Lawn's Congregational minister, and, against the wishes of her parents, marrying her.

Young Leiferman, who is employed as assistant foreman for a printing concern in Plymouth place, had gone to school with Miss Walker. They have been "sweethearts," she says, for "a long, long time."

"DYING MAN" HIS EXCUSE

DOCTOR PROTESTS AT ARREST FOR SPEEDING AUTOMOBILE.

Explains to Justice Boyer That Urgency of Call to Kenilworth Justified Violation of Evanston Ordinance—After Case Is Continued the Magistrate Finds Physician Still in the Suburb, He Apparently Having Forgotten Danger of His "Patient."

"I am a physician and the lady with me is a trained nurse. Don't delay us. I am on the way to Kenilworth to attend a patient who is reported to be dying."

That was the explanation made last night by Dr. W. F. Code, 405 Huron street, Chicago, to a policeman who stopped him for driving along Ridge avenue, Evanston, in his automobile at the rate of eighteen miles an hour. The woman with him said she was Miss E. J. Barry, a hospital nurse.

Despite the physician's emphatic assertion that the urgency of his trip justified him in violating the ordinance regulating the speed of automobiles, both he and his companion were taken into custody.

On reaching the police station Dr. Code asked for an immediate hearing of his case so that he could continue his trip to his patient. This request was granted and he was taken before Justice Boyer, who continued the case until Sept. 6.

Doctor Changes His Mind.

The physician, followed by the nurse, hurried from the courtroom, and, entering the automobile, drove away.

Justice Boyer left a few minutes later and walked to Davis street and Sherman avenue, where he saw Dr. Code and Miss Barry speaking to a man. Believing the strange man was a detective who had stopped the physician again for speeding his automobile, the justice asked why the automobile had been stopped.

"I happened to meet this man, who is a friend of mine," replied the physician.

"How about your dying patient at Kenilworth?" inquired Justice Boyer.

"O! well, if he is not dead yet, I guess I will let him die," the justice said the doctor replied.

W. H. Pratt of Kenilworth, a retired manufacturer, was arrested in Evanston on a charge of driving his automobile twenty-two miles an hour. Justice Boyer fined him $20.

Woman Slain in Auto Crash.

Toledo, O., Aug. 30.—Imogene Reynolds, a milliner, was killed and three persons seriously injured by the collision of an automobile with a freight train about three miles south of Toledo shortly after midnight last night. The most seriously hurt of the three injured is Burton O. Gamble, manager of the Toledo Motor Car company. The car was running at high speed when it crashed into a train standing across the Maumee river road.

MRS. SHIELDS WINS DIVORCE.

Daughter of Military Commander Tells Court Why She Went on Stage and Gets Decree.

A decree of divorce from Shedd M. Shields was awarded yesterday to Ethel M. Shields, daughter of the late Col. J. B. Martin, who, at the time of his death in 1895, commanded the department of Missouri. The decree, which was signed by Judge Kavanagh in the Superior court, is based on the charge of desertion. From a life of luxury, Mrs. Shields declares, she was compelled to go upon the stage so as to earn a living because of the poor business judgment of her husband.

Mrs. Lucy B. Fry appealed to the Circuit court for separate maintenance from Dr. Franklin A. Fry, a dentist, who is accused of cruelty. They live at 6020 Ingleside avenue and were married in 1883.

Separate maintenance was asked in the Circuit court by Mrs. Kate Stiler, who accuses Martin Stiler, superintendent of the Custodis company, of cruelty.

OBITUARY.

MRS. ELIZABETH J. HOPSON, who died on Tuesday, will be buried today after services at her late residence, 2125 Prairie avenue. She was head of the firm of E. J. Hopson & Co., milliners, for fifty-three years, and for a long time was an active member of the First Presbyterian church. She had been ill for three years, as the result of an accident in New York. Joseph Hopson, her husband, two daughters, and a son survive.

LADY CAMPBELL-BANNERMAN, wife of the British premier, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, died at Marienbad yesterday. She had been an invalid for years. Lady Campbell-Bannerman was Miss Charlotte Bruce, daughter of the late Gen. Sir Charles Bruce. She was married to Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman in 1860.

GEN. HENRY W. CHILDS, former attorney general of Minnesota, died in St. Paul yesterday, at the age of 58. He was special counsel for the state in the three trials of Dr. George R. Koch for the alleged murder of Dr. L. A. Gebhard at New Ulm, and his extraordinary exertions in that case broke him down in health.

STORM BREAKS ON HEAD OF VILLAGE

West Hammond Citizens Nearly Mob President Peter Mak at Town Meeting.

CROWD CRIES 'HANG HIM!'

He Refuses to Explain Stand on Dives and Flees Under Guard.

The storm of anger that has been gathering among the respectable residents of West Hammond has broken over the head of Peter Mak, the aged president of the village board. Mak, who is charged with making the protection of the dives and resorts that are the chief characteristic of the village his principal business, was nearly mobbed at a town meeting Wednesday night.

As the aroused citizens who packed the village hall cried "hang him" Mak sought safety under the protection of his policemen. When he left the hall later he was so alarmed that he darted away from his escort and escaped down dark alleys to his house. He was not seen yesterday.

Although the storm has been gathering for months, it probably would not have broken when it did had not an incident that took place Saturday night stirred the residents. Henry Peters, chief of police, and Patrolman Barney Johnson were raiding a resort recently opened by two South Chicago men on the principal throughfare of the village, only a few blocks from the Hammond courthouse.

Stops Raid, Starts Fight.

Some of the inmates of the resort had been arrested when Mak appeared. As chief executive of the village, he ordered the policemen to desist.

A fight followed in which, it is said, Mak tore the policemen's stars off. The president did not get off without a severe beating.

When knowledge of the affair spread through the village a special meeting of the trustees was called to demand an explanation from Mak. The meeting Wednesday night was attended by the president, his head scarred from his fight, and by Trustees Yarck, Green, Fritsche, Longbein, Robwidder, and Weklinski. Two hundred citizens had gathered in the village hall, packing it to its capacity.

Mak promptly refused to offer any explanation. Cries from the crowd drowned the proceedings, and for some minutes the hall was in an uproar, in which the shouts of "hang him," "get a rope," and "tar and feather him" arose above the din.

Crowd Demands Impeachment.

When the villagers had shouted themselves out for the time, Trustee Robwidder moved that proceedings to impeach and indict Mak be started. Trustee Fritsche seconded the motion. Terrific cheering from the crowd indorsed the plan. Chief Peters made his voice heard and counseled moderation and the session remained in such a turmoil that the motion could not be put and voted on. At this juncture Trustee Weklinski moved to adjourn and Mak declared this carried.

Mak's departure and precipitate flight followed half an hour later.

Mak Often Accused.

Mak is not new to accusations from his fellow citizens. Recently he was pursued by 200 angry women because, it is said, he kicked a woman downstairs when she refused to let a constable evict her. At another time it is said he locked up an innocent man, and he had to face a small mob which demanded an explanation.

He was arrested and indicted last winter by the Cook county grand jury charged with being responsible for the dives that have multiplied in the village. Several other officials of the village also were included in the charges. The state's attorney announced that he was going to clean out the resorts. But the case fell through, and since then no attempt has been made to drive out the vicious elements.

West Hammond residents, despairing of assistance from State's Attorney Healy, will hold a massmeeting soon to devise means to purge their village of the dives.

CITY WILL HASTEN TO AMEND TIRE LAW IF HELD DEFECTIVE.

Corporation Counsel's Office Prepares to Take Case to Supreme Court After Judge Tuthill's Intimation.

Corporation Counsel Lewis, preparing to meet the decision on the wide tire law which Judge Tuthill intimated he would render against the city, decided to appeal the case to the supreme court at once, and also when the council meets again, to have the ordinance remodeled, striking out the feature the court will hold illegal.

Judge Tuthill declared from the bench that the wide tire law was a "piece of rank class legislation," because it failed to provide that wagons bearing more than 20,000 pounds should be equipped with wide tires.

"In excepting the heaviest loads in this manner," went on the court, "injustice is done to the majority of team owners. With that in view, it seems to me at present that it is my duty to enjoin the city from enforcing the ordinance."

Mr. Lewis ordered that his assistant, Lee D. Mathias, prepare an amendment to the ordinance, striking out the words "but not exceeding 20,000 pounds," which, when passed by the council, will require all wagons carrying 18,000 pounds or over shall be equipped with eight inch tires.

The 150 cases against the violators now pending before Justice Gibbons will be continued, but no more arrests will be made by the city until the law is amended or the court reverses the decision of Judge Tuthill.

THROWN FROM PORCH, DIES; TWO MEN SEIZED FOR MURDER

Rudolph Eckart, a Teamster, Becomes Engaged in a Quarrel with Bakers and Is Killed.

Hans P. Erickson, 215 North Morgan street, and Peter Frugaard, 85 West Huron street, bakers, are locked up at the West Chicago avenue station accused of murdering Rudolph Eckart, 40 years old, a teamster, who was thrown from a porch fifteen feet high and fatally hurt. He died on the way to the hospital.

The trouble started in a saloon owned by Johnson & Hunt at Milwaukee avenue and Carpenter street, where the three men became engaged in a quarrel.

Irving W. Wolff, a bartender, told the story of the murder as follows:

"I got tired of hearing the two men swearing at Eckart, and I took a club from the bar and started toward them. I told them to leave the place, and they walked out the back door. Eckart was walking behind me, and one of them called to him to go outside. Then Eckart suddenly seized the club I was holding and ran toward Erickson and Frugaard, who were on the porch. They overpowered Eckart and lifted him over the railing, dropping him in the yard, about fifteen feet below."

CROWDS OF WOODMEN ARRIVE.

Exhibition Drill Will Be One of the Features of Celebration at Amusement Park.

Woodmen arrived in Chicago yesterday in crowds from Illinois and neighboring states for special exercises in the lodge's honor which will be held at White City today. There will be 3,000 new members taken into the organization Nov. 24—the largest class, it is claimed, ever received at one time by any fraternal organization. The Woodmen's team from Joliet will give its exhibition drill and other special features will be introduced.

Mother to Attack Girl's Marriage.

MRS. ROLAND J. HENSON

Attempts to have the marriage of her daughter, Gertrude C. Gibson, declared illegal are being made by Mrs. Mary Ware of Glendale. The young woman eloped on Aug. 4 with her cousin, Roland J. Henson, and they were married in St. Joseph, Mich. On their return Mrs. Ware caused her daughter's arrest. She was arraigned yesterday in Justice Fitzgerald's court and the case was continued until Sept. 8. During the hearing the mother tried to strike the young bride. Mrs. Henson, who is 20 years old, was a telephone operator at the station at Kedzie avenue and Forty-seventh street. Henson is employed by the Barber Asphalt company.

SMULSKI STICKS TO OFFICE

REMAINS CITY ATTORNEY TO PROTECT HIS ASSISTANTS.

Republican Candidate for State Treasurer Says He Would Resign Municipal Position at Once if He Could Have Assurance That His Loyal Working Force Would Not Be Ousted to Make Room for I. M. O. Supporters of the Mayor.

John F. Smulski, recently nominated by the republicans for state treasurer, wants to resign the office of city attorney, but cannot find any good way to do it.

"I have no intention of resigning just now," Mr. Smulski said, "but if I should be elected state treasurer in the fall, as I expect to be, I shall have to resign my city office on Jan. 1. I would like to get out of the office of city attorney at once if I could only see my way clear to it. If the city administration would give me an assurance that after I had resigned my office force would be left undisturbed I would quit tomorrow.

"I am working sixteen hours a day now, have had no vacation this summer, and see no prospect of one. I am tired out. But I have to think of my men. They have been loyal to me, and I do not want to turn them adrift. People may say that's politics, but if it is it is the right sort of politics.

Why He Doesn't Resign Now.

"They have worked hard and deserve consideration. What they have done is shown by the fact that it is now the end of August, and the total judgments against the city in personal injury suits for the year amount to $163,000, while for the three months alone before I was elected they came to $306,000."

In the city hall the story was that Mr. Smulski went to Mayor Dunne with the proposition of resigning if he could be promised that his successor, whom the mayor would have the right to appoint, would keep the most of his assistants in office to the end of his term.

He went away thinking the matter had been arranged, but afterwards found out that the jobs in his office were being rapidly parceled out among the I. M. O. lawyers who make up the mayor's political support. As the main business of most of these lawyers is bringing personal injury suits against the city and they had a number of them now pending on their calendars Mr. Smulski reconsidered his resolution.

Mitchell Denies Cole's Charge.

Benjamin Marion Mitchell, democratic candidate for the state senate in the Twenty-first senatorial district, whom George E. Cole accused of being a stalking horse put up by Roger C. Sullivan to oblige Senator Daniel Campbell, the republican nominee, was angry yesterday.

"I can give Mr. Cole some information," said he. "I am not a stalking horse for anybody. I was nominated because I expect to be elected, and when the votes are counted in the district this fall he will find out his mistake. Mr. Campbell knows now he has a fight on his hands in the Twenty-first district."

Democrats Seek New Quarters.

The headquarters of the democratic county committee at 70 Washington street will be closed today. The new committee does not care to assume the financial responsibility for the remainder of the lease, leaving that to Ex-Chairman Thomas Carey. The plan is to purchase a house either on the west or north side, probably west, and make a permanent home for the party.

"We have not yet decided where we shall move to," said Chairman O'Connell. "We have seven locations offered us. There is no hurry about the matter as we do not intend to open the campaign until Sept. 15."

WOMAN'S SUIT TO DETERMINE RIGHTS OF CAPT. STREETER.

Mrs. Sallie Cummings to Ask Court to Prevent Interference with Property She Bought on the Lake Front.

With the purpose of settling forever the rights of Capt. George Wellington Streeter and others to property in "Streeterville," suit will be filed in the federal court by Mrs. Sallie E. Cummings of Pensacola, Fla., praying an injunction to restrain the city of Chicago and the Palmer, Fairbank, Kirk, and Farwell estates from interfering with certain property in "Streeterville," which she bought of the doughty captain several years ago.

Mrs. Cummings is at present in Chicago. She paid Capt. Streeter $10,000 for eight lots in Erie and Superior streets. The assessed valuation of the lots is more than $100,000.

Capt. Streeter will not be present at the hearing of the suit, for he is at present under the ban of the courts for violating a writ of ne exeat in connection with his wife's suit for divorce. Attorney W. G. Anderson, who represents Mrs. Cummings, also wants to see Streeter, as the latter is defendant in an action brought by Anderson to recover $10,000 legal fees.

Mrs. Cummings edits and publishes two newspapers at Pensacola and has been prominent in political affairs in the state.

UNEARTH A PLOT AGAINST LAVIN.

Claim to Have Discovered Attempt to "Shake Down" Inspector in 1901.

HAGAMANN THE CAUSE.

Animus Growing Out of This Declared Responsible for the Present Agitation.

An alleged plot which failed was unearthed yesterday by friends of Inspector Lavin as the explanation of the way in which Lavin's name was connected originally with the Hagamann robbery.

The three men who figure in this alleged plot are accused of first whispering the name of Lavin around the Criminal court building and arousing the suspicions of the state's attorney's office. They are Constable "Tom" Courtney of Justice Grant's court, embarrassed at the present time with several indictments; "Sam" Dieboldt, a former collection agency lawyer, indicted for extortion, and "Phil" Bulfer, another lawyer, who was in Dieboldt's office.

Tells of Attempted "Shake Down."

"These three men got wind of Clark and Barry's deal with Mahoney," said Lavin's friend, "but they did not know who the policeman was at that time. Dieboldt first went to former Inspector Hunt and is said to have tried to shake him down. He told Hunt they would get the two thieves to implicate him if he did not pay. Hunt kicked him out of his office.

"Dieboldt then went to Captain Lavin, as the next officer reputed to have a little money, and put the proposition to him. Lavin also threw the man out. This treatment furnished the animus for the reports that circulated later and which Lavin has been bearing all these years."

More Trouble for Comerford.

Police Attorney Comerford got into more trouble during the day over the tampering with the affidavit made by Attorney Alexander Collins. It was discovered that in the original statement, filed in the civil service commission rooms, the word "Lavin" had been scratched out twice. The last line as fixed by Attorney Collins read:

"And Clark and Barry told me that they had been jobbed."

The same line is made to read in the affidavit which Comerford gave out:

"And Clark and Barry told me that they had been jobbed by Lavin and Mahoney."

Collins scratched out the word "Lavin" and Comerford scratched out the word "Mahoney" to leave the question as to who did the jobbing uncertain.

Charges Against Captains.

Chief Collins would not give out the detailed charges against Capt. Rehm and Capt. Hayes, but told the substance. He said:

"I consider Capt. Hayes old and feeble and not able to do active duty. The charges will be that he drank liquor on duty; that he failed to visit the stations as required, and that he is inefficient.

"My charges against Capt. Rehm are that he failed to visit his stations on Sunday as required. He also failed to visit the other stations every day."

Capt. Rehm's friends are indignant at the chief's treatment of him. They say that it smacks of injustice to suspend a man and leave his reputation open to all sorts of insinuations, hints, rumors, and guesses for ten days and then to bring out a charge that he was absent from the station on Sundays. They are asking why it was not possible to make this simple charge at the start and thus save his family many days of worry.

JOHN BROWN'S PICTURE SHOWN.

Chicago Artist's Painting of the Hero of Ossawatomie Is Exhibited to Grand Army Men and Their Wives.

A Chicago artist's painting, "The Imprisonment of John Brown," was unveiled with exercises last night at 3724 Cottage Grove avenue in the presence of a number of Grand Army men and their wives in honor of the fiftieth anniversary of John Brown's famous fight with the Missouri bandits.

The picture, which measures 9x12 feet, was painted by H. Webb Keedy, 625 Forty-sixth place, 23 years old, from a description given by his uncle, Elijah Avey, 3711 Ellis avenue, who was an eye witness to the execution of John Brown.

Mr. Avey gave a lecture describing the imprisonment and execution of the immortal Brown. The picture is said to be the only one in existence showing the imprisonment of Brown.

Indian Warehouse Keeper Resigns.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—The commissioner of Indian affairs was notified today of the resignation of Roger C. Spooner, superintendent of the Indian warehouse at Chicago. Nothing has been done toward appointing his successor.

POLICE CLOSE UP TWO MORE HOTELS

Second Raid Strikes Places Above Tuckhorn's and Craig's Resorts.

LEGAL FIGHT DUE NEXT.

City to Resist Efforts to Get Injunctions to Protect Reopening.

Two "hotels" occupying the floors above notorious south side resorts were raided by the police last night. The spectacular features that accompanied the big raids of Tuesday night were wanting. When the policemen reached the places they found the proprietors expecting them and the rooms empty. A police sergeant "tipped off" the raid, said the men who made it.

The "hotels" to receive the latest application of Police Attorney Comerford's medicine follow:

Police Find Rooms Dark.

When five policemen from the Harrison street station, headed by Inspector Wheeler and Attorney Comerford, reached Tuckhorn's place they found him, ablaze with diamonds, on the walk. He and his resort furnished the only light on the corner, as the rooms above were dark. The policemen went to the office, arrested Mrs. Oswald and Harry Swigert, said to be a roomer, took the register, and found their task done. Tuckhorn wanted it understood that he had nothing to do with the "hotel."

There was more life at Craig's, although the place came far from being at its normal. Three men and as many women were taken from the rooms, and the books were seized as in the previous raids.

Warrant for Man in Brooks Case.

The identity of the man who paid the expenses of Miss Margaret Brooks, the 17 year old girl at the Hotel Rensu, was revealed through letters to the girl, whom he had induced to leave her home in Green Lake, Wis., last December. The police took up the search for him with renewed vigor.

Late in the evening they swore out a warrant for Alfred Streeter in connection with the case of Miss Brooks. He is a traveling man with an office in the Manadnock block and lives at the Grace hotel. When heard from he was in Cleveland, O. Streeter will claim, it is asserted by his friends, that he is not the man the police want.

The girl's father is on his way to Chicago from Green Lake to assist in the prosecution of the proprietor of the Rensu and the man who stole his daughter.

Mr. Comerford prepared to take the whole matter before the grand jury, and Miss Brooks will be an important witness.

City to Fight Injunctions.

Corporation Counsel J. Hamilton Lewis, his assistant, Lee D. Mathias, and Chief Collins held a "council of war" last night to prepare to resist the applications for injunctions made by the proprietors of four raided hotels, which were filed during the day before Judge Kavanagh. Mr. Mathias has been appointed to assist Frank Comerford, the police department's attorney, in helping the city in its war against illicit hotels, and every step taken by the proprietors will be fought to the full extent of the law.

"We are determined to crush out this evil," said Chief Collins, "and no stone will be left unturned to keep these hotels closed. We have plenty of evidence that the places do a questionable business, and this is being put in shape for use in court."

The applications for injunctions will come up before Judge Kavanagh this morning. These applications were made by the following hotels:

Queen hotel, 366 Wabash avenue, Mrs. Victoria Stafford, lessee.

Great Western, 363 Wabash avenue, Richard C. Stafford, lessee.

Grand Eastern, 360 Wabash avenue, Mrs. Margaret J. R. Busch, lessee.

Empire, 346 Wabash avenue, Ellen Burke, lessee.

Bills Call Hotels Respectable.

The petitions were filed by Attorney Charles C. Stilwell. In each bill it is asserted that the hotel is respectable and has at all times been careful to exclude questionable appearing persons.

It is also stated that Chief of Police Collins and Capt. Gibbons of the Central detail "are insolvent" and that it would be impossible to collect any damages from them.

The bills give some information regarding the lease of the hotels, as follows:

Grand Eastern—Lease runs to 1912; $5,000 a year; value of furniture, $10,500; 110 rooms.

Empire—Lease runs to 1907; $3,360 a year; value of furniture, $5,000; 31 rooms.

Queen—Leased until 1915; $12,000 a year; value of furniture, $25,000; 171 rooms.

Poll Lists at Hotels.

From the polling list of the First ward it was found that the raided hotels furnished the following votes every election:

Great Western	55	Grand Eastern	18
Queen	25	La Salle house	3
Sir William	4	Brunswick	2
Rensu	1	Quincy	4
Adelphia	2	Empire	6
Royal	4	St. Nicholas	6

"That doesn't look like colonizing, does it?" asked Ald. Kenna, who gave out the list.

Discuss Capt. Busch's Case.

At a meeting of the Lincoln park commissioners it was decided, informally, to let Capt. Busch of the park police resign, if everything alleged against the Grand Eastern hotel, run by his wife, was proved.

"I do not think it will be necessary to ask the captain to resign," said one of the commissioners after the meeting. "I feel sure he will see fit to do so before the next meeting of the board. There is nothing against him as a police officer, but in the light of recent developments we cannot retain him on the park force."

F. H. Gansbergen, Amos Pettibone, Charles P. Whitney, and Charles H. Wilse attended the meeting.

Dr. Ira B. Cook of Evanston received from the lessee of the Hotel Cecil, Mrs. Helen Markham, $10,700 a year. Julius Perlberg, a saloonkeeper, declared that the proprietors of the hotel sold more beer and miniature whisky bottles during the five years the place had been running than any two legitimate saloons in Chicago and that they had cleared over $100,000 before they had been occupying the building a year and a half.

"STENSLAND" CRAZY ON TRAIN.

Passenger Resembling Fugitive Bank Looter Causes Panic by Attempting to Kill Himself.

Racine, Wis., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Just after the northbound passenger train on the Northwestern railroad left Kenosha tonight a passenger resembling Paul O. Stensland suddenly became insane, causing a panic among the passengers in the coach. He threw his clothing out of the window and made an effort to jump out and kill himself. The train crew and others had a desperate fight in subduing him. He refused to give his name, but insisted that he had had a good time in his life, that it was all over, and that he wanted to die. He said his home was in Harlem, New York.

POLICE AND MANY A GUESS

CUSTOM HOUSE PLACE CROWDED WITH EXCITED POPULACE.

Barred Money Wagon of the American Express Company Dashes Into the Narrow Thoroughfare—From Van Buren, Harrison, and Dearborn Streets Come Squads of Bluecoats, Who Close in Around the Vehicle—Then Comes the Solution!

Custom House court, between Harrison and Van Buren streets, suffered a paroxysm of excitement yesterday afternoon such as it had thought never to suffer again after the banishment of its old "red lights" two years ago.

Sharply at 3:30 o'clock one of the heavy, barred "money wagons" of the American Express company dashed into the court out of Van Buren street and thundered along the west curb line to a quick stop about midway of the block. It had attracted attention in Van Buren street, naturally. Half a minute later fifteen policemen in marching step closed into the court after the wagon. In a moment Van Buren street was on tiptoe for a block in each direction.

Suddenly out of the Caxton building, on the east side of the court, twenty-five more bluecoats pushed through the rear doors, almost opposite the express wagon, and moved toward it, with an excited following from Dearborn street hard on their heels.

Another glance south toward Harrison street showed a still larger grouping of helmets, blue and brass, coming at a quickstep toward the point of approach indicated by the other squads that were closing in.

Great Excitement in Court.

Close on the heels of the Harrison street blue bulwark came the flotsam of the lodging houses, the Chinese laundrymen and small merchants, the negroes of the quarter, and the riffraff of every barroom and barrel house for two blocks east and west.

Custom House court was filled from wall to wall. In the rear windows of the Caxton, Monon, and other tall buildings on the west side of the court, half a thousand heads crowded out, looking down. Half the Van Buren street front of the giant Monadnock building to the roof showed heads and shoulders and excited faces.

The Harrison street policemen were a little behind time and the only standing room in the court was ahead of them, while the crowd just behind was impatient beyond measure. Suddenly a bolder man than the rest, uglier and huskier than the average of the Harrison street spectators, attempted to break the police barrier from behind and beat the record to the scene. But as he edged close over to the west wall of the court to slip by, a brawny arm in a blue sleeve grabbed him by the collar, yanked him back one yard, and without turning to look the owner of the arm left him at the post. And the squad moved on, sweeping the court.

"Hotel raid?" Robbery?" "Murder?" were excited queries from all sides.

But as the crowds closed in it was seen that the bluecoats were entering the building at 54 and 56, on the west side of the court, four yards south of the express money wagon.

Mystery Grows More Intense.

"It's a printing shop—murder!" exclaimed an excited man with forty inch waist, no waistcoat, and a dead cigar chewed to a frazzle in his mouth.

A hundred people from Harrison street jammed into him from behind and shoved him against the hub and rim of the wagon's front wheel in appreciation of his information. From the Van Buren street end of the court and from the passage through the Caxton building from Dearborn street 400 others had jammed the entrance to 54 and 56 until the fat man got no farther.

"Say, Jones," called the senior partner in an office on the fourth floor of the Caxton building, speaking to the junior, "you are younger than I am, go down and see what has happened."

Jones went, while the court filled fuller and the windows commanding it on all sides accommodated more heads. The court was jammed from end to end when Jones got back to his excited office.

"What in heaven's name?" exclaimed the beautiful stenographer.

"Print shop," said Jones, mopping the sweat. "Printers just done with about a million tickets to the Policemen's Benevolent association's blowout at the Auditorium. Trustees from the stations getting 'em in blocks of 500 to 7,000 each. Had to buy one for a dollar. Want to take it off my hands?" Jones was real mad.

Delegates to Be Entertained Here.

At a meeting held at the Auditorium hotel last night arrangements were made for the entertainment of delegates to the thirteenth annual convention of the National Association of Agricultural Implement and Vehicle Manufacturers at the Auditorium Oct. 9, 10, and 11.

Small Wanderer Found Downtown.

A 4 year old boy, drawing a small wagon, appealed to the Harrison street police last evening to find his mother and home, from which he had wandered away. He was found at La Salle and Van Buren streets, and was dressed in a white duck suit.

"OPEN SHOP" POSTAL RULE

DEPARTMENT REFUSES TO RECOGNIZE EMPLOYES' UNION.

Decision Is Reached at a Conference in Washington Between Postmaster Busse and Officials—Those Who Refuse to Join Will Be Protected—Directories Returned from Substations and Printers Are Pleased—Six Pressmen Quit Work.

The "open shop" principle will rule in the Chicago postoffice, where a union of employés has been organized to affiliate with the American Federation of Labor. Not only in this city but throughout the country the department will recognize union and non-union employés on the same footing. This policy was determined yesterday at a conference between Postmaster Fred A. Busse and Acting Postmaster General Hitchcock and Second Assistant Postmaster General Shallenberger in Washington.

The determination was that so long as the postal clerks or other postoffice employés conform to the rules and regulations of the office and do not attempt to coerce or in any way molest those who do not enter the union there will be no objection to the employés affiliating with labor organizations. It expressly was stated, however, that the department would afford the fullest protection to those who for reasons of their own do not see fit to join the union.

During the day news came from Minneapolis that the postoffice clerks there had rejected overtures to form an organization in their ranks similar to the Chicago union.

Faulty Directories Returned.

Nineteen city directories that have been returned to the R. R. Donnelley & Sons company by as many postal substations have caused union printers to reiterate their claims that their work cannot be equaled by nonunion labor such as produced the publication.

There is some evidence, however, that the postoffice directories will not be taken by the publishers as proof of the poor workmanship of their employés. The directories all have been exchanged and perfect books sent to the stations.

It appears that the heads of the substations of the postoffice make a practice of closely examining their directories in order to insure them against mistake in securing doubtful addresses. This year nineteen of the stations returned their books because pages had been misplaced and other errors had been made. The directory company claims this is nothing unusual, as some directories are returned this year because of slight errors in binding the pages.

Pressmen Go Out on Strike.

Six pressmen employed by the Faithorn Printing company, one of the Typothetæ shops already affected by the eight hour strike of the printers, struck because of the dismissal of one of their number.

An injunction against the striking ironmolders of the American Brake Shoe company was granted by Judge Bethea in the federal court during the morning. It took several days for the judge to decide to grant an order against the men, but he said he would use all the power of the government to enforce it.

LOSES JOB THROUGH DRINK.

City Employe Discharged for Being Absent from Duty Without Permission.

James Weir, 5833 Emerald avenue, assistant foreman in the city water pipe extension department, was discharged by the civil service commission yesterday on the finding that he had been absent from duty without permission sixty-four days in seven months.

"Your absences were due to drink, were they not?" asked Commissioner Powell.

"Yes, and a sore leg," replied Weir.

The commission took under advisement the charges against W. S. Haskell, superintendent of the Fifth ward, and will announce its decision today.

Ald. Beilfuss, chairman of the small parks commission, announced that the bathing beaches will be kept open to the public until Sept. 15 or later if the weather warrants. An additional appropriation to cover the expense thus occasioned will be asked from the council.

FAIL TO ACCOUNT FOR FINES.

Justices by Negligence Cause Shortages in Cook County Funds—Brundage Wants Reform.

Justices of the peace, who are expected to report all fines and state charges, have been lax in their duty. President Edward J. Brundage of the county board has found in this laxity a new source of shortage in the funds of the county, but no charges of criminality are made. He found also that the fines imposed were in only a small proportion of the cases collected. Often the justices would simply report no fines collected. Mr. Brundage has called the attention of A. F. Nightingale, county superintendent of schools, and County Judge John W. Houston to the matter, asking him to investigate and reform the methods of the magistrates.

BIG FAMILY HOLDS PICNIC

DESCENDANTS OF JOHN TON MEET IN ANNUAL REUNION.

Remarkable Gathering Attended by Nearly One-Half of the 440 Persons Still Living Who Are Represented on the Genealogical "Tree"—Matrimonial Bureau Is Established to Insure the Future Preservation of the Name—"Uncle Jake" Patriarch.

The Ton family held its eleventh annual picnic yesterday in Thornton park, twenty-one miles southwest of the city. In many ways the Ton family can substantiate its claim of being the most remarkable family not only in Cook county but in the country.

In Cook county alone the descendants of John Ton, who came from Holland in 1849 and settled on a farm near Roseland, number 284. The family has a "tree" twelve feet high showing a living representation of 440 persons. The "tree" bears the names of all members of the Ton family from the present back six generations.

Births Far Exceed Deaths.

Among other things, the historian's statistics show that not a death has occurred in the vast family during the last year, but there has been an increase of 19—by birth, 12; by annexation (marriage), 7.

Oldest living member, "Uncle Jake," 70 years, the last of the nine sons of the original John Ton. He lives at Michigan avenue and One Hundred and Ninth street.

That there are 81 marriageable persons, 16 women and 15 men, among the present generation.

"Well, well, well!" reflected the patriarch, "Uncle Jake." "Things are coming to a pretty pass. I have warned you. Business enterprise has been encroaching on matrimonial venture. Something should be done."

Marriage Bureau Is Started.

To such a depth were the hearers moved that a motion was introduced and carried with a sweep that a family matrimonial bureau be established "for the future preservation of the Ton family and the benefit of the single Tons."

G. A. Brennan, principal of the Van Vlissingen school, Wentworth avenue and One Hundred and Ninth street, was appointed head of the bureau and instructed to levy a fine of $5 per capita on any of the thirty-one single Tons who have not departed from the paths of single blessedness by the next annual picnic.

Officers Are Elected.

At the annual election of family officers the Madderom and Koester branches clashed good naturedly. The Madderom branch won. The officers are:

President—H. R. Koopman.

Vice president—Peter de Groot.

Secretary—S. B. Brennan.

Treasurer—Cornelius Inthout.

The all day picnic closed with a prayer and touching valedictory by "Uncle Jake." He bade them all good-by, for today he departs for Seattle, Wash., where he will reside with his daughter. As a parting tribute the hat was passed for "Uncle Jake," and $6 was collected.

Ten nationalities and fifteen occupations and professions were represented in the Ton family.

WOMAN HELD UP AND ROBBED.

Victim Identifies Negro as Thief—Picture Agent Arrested on Charge of Swindling.

After she had been held up and robbed of a watch and chain Mrs. Henry McDonnell, 401 West Randolph street, identified John Sidney, a negro, 22 years old, as the thief last evening. Sidney was arrested two hours after the robbery. Mrs. McDonnell was robbed when she was leaving the Ann street station of the Lake Street Elevated road.

Humphrey Barrett, 32 years old, 920 North Kedzie avenue, a picture agent, was arrested at North avenue and Larrabee street on complaint of several customers, who charge him with swindling. Some of the alleged victims are:

Mrs. Marie Lunden, 606 Division street.

Miss Emma Green, 585 Dearborn street.

Agnta Oberg, 606 Winthrop avenue.

Charged with having a stolen check in his possession, Grover C. Debre, 28 years old, a chemist, was arrested in the Union depot last evening.

SCHOOL BOOK WAR COSTS $100,000.

Taxpayers Lose a Big Sum Through Failure to Accept Macmillan Co.'s Bid.

PARENTS MUST PAY MORE.

President Ritter of Board Shows Extra Expense by Figures; Delay to Blame.

President Emil W. Ritter of the board of education declared yesterday that procrastination on the part of the board in settling the school reader fight would cost the taxpayers of Chicago $100,000 during the next four years. The estimate made by President Ritter was based on the difference in price between the primer and readers adopted by the board at its meeting Wednesday night and the price at which the series of readers published by the Macmillan company was offered to the board six weeks ago.

"Had the school board adopted the Macmillan series of readers, the series recommended for adoption by Supt. Cooley and his advisers when the low Macmillan bid first was made, the parents of the school children of Chicago would have been saved $100,000 in four years," declared President Ritter. "We did all we could to secure the adoption of the Macmillan books at the low price which was made to us, but failed. We were able to secure only seven votes. Time dragged along and the Macmillan company found that it would not be able to fill the order of the Chicago schools in time and so it withdrew its bid.

Votes for Next Best Thing.

"We were unable to consider the Macmillan books Wednesday night. I voted for the next best thing. We had not only a remarkable low price on the Macmillan series, but an arrangement also was made whereby we would save 28 cents on the geographies. I suppose the Macmillan company found that their bid was too low, and that that had something to do with its withdrawal. The mistake was made when the board failed to adopt the Macmillan books when the low price was made to us.

"The first price made by the Macmillan company was not low. We found that the concern was selling its readers at a lower price in other states. We forced them down to the prices asked in Indiana and Kansas, and the mistake was made when the board failed to accept the amended proposition. I am satisfied with the result of the Wednesday night meeting, but not pleased. We were forced by the press of time to reach some decision. The Jones readers are superior books. They will be an innovation. They teach morality and ethics. They have been indorsed by humane societies all over the country. The price of the Jones readers is only a little more than the price which the children have been paying for the Rand-McNally readers. The mistake was in not adopting the Macmillan readers."

Wheeler Company Reduces Price.

When the Macmillan low bid was made only seven trustees voted for the readers, according to President Ritter. They were Wiley W. Mills, Modie J. Spiegel, John Sonstelby, Miss Jane Addams, John C. Harding, Emil W. Ritter, and Louis F. Post. President Ritter's estimate was based on the difference in the price of the adopted books and the low bid of the Macmillan company, which is shown by grades as follows:

First grade	$6,527.30
Second grade	5,260.50
Third grade	4,902.30
Fourth grade	3,819.92
Fifth grade	2,088.16
Sixth grade	966.21

President Ritter and Wiley W. Mills announced that W. H. Wheeler & Co. had agreed to reduce the price of the Wheeler primer from 30 cents to 25 cents, making the difference in cost between the Wheeler book and the Macmillan book 15 cents instead of 20. The school trustees announced also that by a later bid than was read at the board meeting Wednesday night or had been published in the proceedings, Ginn & Co., publishers of the Jones readers, had agreed to make the board as good a price as that made by any other publisher with the exception of the Macmillan company. The letter was written to Miss Jane Addams, chairman of the school management committee and now is supposed to be in her possession, as it is not in the custody of President Ritter, Secretary Larson, Business Manager Gulliford, or Attorney Maher.

Regrets Loss of Macmillan Bid.

"While the recent bids of the two companies which were not made public at the board meeting render the proposition adopted by the board as good as any which was before that body Wednesday night," declared President Ritter, "the proposition is not as good as that made by the Macmillan company, as all bids were much higher than their bid. After we had lost the chance to adopt the best proposition which was made to us we had left only the alternative of doing the next best thing. We shall hold Ginn & Co. to their agreement to meet the prices of the other firms with the exception of the Macmillan firm or else we will not do business with them. I shall look over both contracts carefully before signing them. Both concerns will have to agree to make their prices to us as low as the prices made to any other school systems and shall be required also to agree to reduce the price to us if ever they make any reductions elsewhere."

REDS GIVE SPUDS A CLOSE BATTLE.

Evers' Digging Home from Second in Ninth Lands the Game for Chicago, 3-2.

BAD THROW BY HUGGINS.

With Score Tied He Foozles, and Locals Squeeze In the Run Needed to Win.

[BY SY.]

A double barreled foozle by Miller Huggins in the ninth inning let John Evers sneak home from second base with a run which turned yesterday's game with Cincinnati into a 3 to 2 victory for the First Nationals just as everybody had settled back to watch an extra inning battle.

Although outbatted and outfielded, the Chance brigade, slightly crippled, managed to keep on even terms with the reds and to create the situation where that slip by the one opponent who had been a potent factor in holding down their own score would give them the game. With the runs 2 and 2, Evers opened the last half of the ninth by beating out a hit close to second, although Huggins made a brilliant stop of it. Moran sacrificed and Taylor fouled out.

Extra Innings Expected.

Gessler was the fans' last hope, and many of them were willing to sit through a few extra rounds, serenely confident the Spuds would win out anyway and that it didn't mean the loss of a pennant if the game went the other way. That was the situation when the doctor with the William Tell name rapped a grounder straight at Huggins. The little fellow fumbled it an instant, but still had plenty of time to retire the side at first. As he drew back to throw the ball slipped out of his hand and the chance was lost.

J. Evers, quick thinker and opponent of working overtime without pay and a half, grasped the situation, rounded third, and dug for the plate. Huggins chased the ball desperately, picked it up, and tried to cut Johnny off, but he was so far off balance his throw would not carry and besides went wide of the mark. Evers 'spikes carved the victory on the plate. It was a small hole to pull a game through; but not so small as the one Jimmy Slagle wriggled through in Philadelphia earlier in the month.

Chance and Slagle Out.

Manager Chance started to hold down first, but put Hofman in his place in the third inning to favor a lame leg. In the fifth Jimmy Slagle ran into a head-on collision with Schlei at the plate, and the bump jarred him so badly that he was relieved by Gessler in the seventh. "Doc," by the way was the victim of peculiar circumstances when he butted into the scrap. Slagle started the time at bat, but after he had fouled off a couple in anything like his real form Chance sent Gessler to replace him. With two strikes already called Gessler let the next one go by and Johnstone called it a strike. Thus the doctor got charged with a strike out, only one-third of which belonged to him.

Spuds First to Score.

The Spuds scored first in the second inning. Tinker whipped a single to center, went to second on Evers' out, and scored in jig time on Moran's safe crack to left. Cincinnati evened it up in the third. Tinker's high throw to Hofman gave Schlei second base for a starter. Deal struck out bunting, and Fraser tied the knot with a single which Sheckard fumbled.

The Spuds took the lead again in their half when Sheckard walked, was sacrificed to second by Schulte, and scored on Steinfeldt's solid bump to left after Hofman had popped out. Both Taylor and Fraser pitched themselves out of bad holes several times thereafter, and, just before Cincinnati tied up the score again in the seventh, it looked as if Jack was going to blank the visitors once more. Smoot opened that round with a double into the right field corner. Lobert bunted three fouls and was out. Mowery flied to Slagle, but Schlei came along with an untimely single to center which let Smoot score.

Reds Threaten in Eighth.

In the eighth it looked serious for Taylor. There were reds on first and second with only one out. Jude was disposed of at first, advancing the others, and Smoot came up. Homer had been hitting the ball in the beak all day, so Taylor calmly wrote him a pass to first in defiance of the interstate commerce commission, filling the bases. Lobert was next and rolled an easy one to Steinfeldt, closing the orifice. Score:

Notes of the Spuds' Game.

Twelve straight.

Thirty-two more to play.

Mowery's hit in the fifth was going straight at Tinker on the ground, but struck something and bounded far out of his reach.

Cincinnati again today for its last appearance here this year. It will be "children's day" and all youngsters who can pass under the crossbar will be admitted free.

Taylor opened the game with a great play. Chasing Huggins' roller he fell flat over near first, but held the ball securely and managed to toss it to Chance in time.

Chance's men have a long start toward a record for consecutive victories. They need only eight more to tie the old one, but it's a bit careless to speak of it without "touching wood."

Chicago had no coacher at third in the eighth despite the ticklish situation, with the score tied and a runner on first. The fans noticed it and called the team down for it. The oversight was quickly remedied.

Smoot toppled Tinker over in a close play at second base in the second inning and spoiled a sure double play by it. The Spuds kicked for the other out, but Emslie allowed Smoot was doing his duty only.

By winning half their games from now on the Spuds can beat New York's world's record for the greatest number of games won in a season. The Giants' high mark was 106 in 1904 and Chicago needs only fifteen to tie that.

The luck only evened up in that ninth inning, after all. Just before Gessler hit the ball which Huggins fumbled so badly, he had stung a liner to right which looked good for the game, but the ball struck the screen just a foot or two foul.

Huggins, who tossed off the game, had been playing brilliantly all the way, one theft of a hit from Taylor in the second being spectacular. In that round the youngster threw two Spuds out at first and retired the other on a y. In the third he made two putouts, but did not get into the third play.

The Spuds had a large opening in the fifth. Slagle singled and Sheckard doubled before a man was out. Schulte fouled and Hofman hit to Deal, who hesitated, then threw wide of the plate on the third base side. Slagle ran into Schlei and both fell. It did not look as if the admiral touched Jimmy, but Johnstone said he did and the "ump." was where he could see. That made two out and Steinfeldt was the third.

EVEN BREAK FOR THE GIANTS.

SEVENTEEN BOATS ENTER FOR TRIANGULAR CRUISE.

Big Field to Start in the Chicago Yacht Club's Unique Contest Tonight—First Leg to Be to St. Joe, Mich.

Seventeen yachts are entered in the first triangular cruising race of the Chicago Yacht club, which starts tonight from the Van Buren street gap.

The cruise is to cover three days and as many nights, and will end Monday evening, after 152 miles have been sailed. Three ports will be touched by the racers, the first leg of the contest being to St. Joe. The plan is to race tomorrow from the Michigan resort to Michigan City, Ind., where the fleet will rendezvous over Sunday and engage in the final race of the triangle back to this city Labor day.

The first detachment of schooners and yawls will leave at 7 p. m., and at ten minute intervals the small and large sloops are scheduled to start. Owing to the yachting rule against the firing of guns after "colors," the starting will be done by the burning of Coston signal lights at the Chicago Yacht club. The preparatory light will be burned at 6:50.

The first prize will be the Officers' cup, and will go to the yacht making the greatest number of points in the three races, figured on the percentage system of the Lake Michigan Yachting association.

Rear Commodore George Tramel of the Chicago Athletic association's yachting department announced last night that his fifty foot sloop, Vencedor, would be sailed in the race by a strictly amateur crew. The judges will be C. E. Kremer, H. P. Finney, Howard Shaw, and T. M. Blodgett. The judge's boat will be Mr. Shaw's Kitchi Gammi. Entries:

Schooners—Hawthorn and Mistral.

Yawls—Arcadia, Naiad, Kayoshk, Delight, and Tannis.

Sloops—Siren, Vencedor, Neva, Chetopa, Hattie B., Illinois, Minota, Prairie, Pequod, Seminole.

SKIDDOO BEATS TROUBADOUR.

Surprise in the Inland Lake Regatta—Several Sailors Dumped Into the Lake.

Oshkosh, Wis., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Skiddoo, the representative of the Butte des Morts Yacht club of this city, sprang a surprise on the inland lake fleet this afternoon. Skiddoo defeated Troubadour by a minute and a half and finished two minutes ahead of Minnetonka. Pats II. was twenty-seven minutes behind Skiddoo.

Glyndwr was given fifth place, although its time was not taken at the finish. When the leaders rounded the home buoy the second time it was two legs behind. On the second round Glyndwr lost a man overboard on the run to the outer mark. White Heather went to the assistance of the swimmer and capsized in so doing. Glyndwr also put about. Tiuana, the steam yacht of W. C. Gilbert of Neenah, reached him first. Glyndwr came up alongside Tiuana and the man jumped from the steamer to the yacht, and the latter proceeded on its course. Pats II. also joined in the scramble. This put Glyndwr and Pats II. some six minutes behind.

Alberta, the Neenah-Nodaway boat, the second time around capsized near the home buoy and drifted down upon it. One of its crew crawled upon the buoy. The boat was righted by means of a line cast by a launch. Alberta went on without the man, but soon another gust of wind struck and over it went again. This time it was righted by its crew without assistance, but the judges disqualified it for receiving assistance in the first case.

There will be one more race tomorrow. Troubadour has the championship and the Norton cup won even if it should fail to get a place. The heat of Friday, however, will be necessary to decide second place among Skiddoo, Glyndwr, and Minnetonka.

Today's race was two miles to leeward and return, sailed thrice. All the boats were reefed. Summary:

Boat and club.	Start.	Finish.	Actual time.
Skiddoo, Butte des Morts	2:35:27	4:46:10	2:10:43

Gopher won the fourth heat of the class B boats. The surprise of the race was Ohiyesa, the Minnetonka boat, which led for several legs and was beat out by Gopher on the last stretch after a hard fight. Sylva of St. Joe, Mo., injured in a collision on Wednesday, did not start. Rapid Water and Pottawattamie have been withdrawn. Summary:

White Sox Spend Day of Rest at Cleveland in Advance of Series.

JONES HINTS AT NEW MAN

Intimates Team Is to Get a Star Player; Highlanders Win a Pair of Games.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—The White Sox arrived here at noon today, confident of taking three or four of the five games to be played with Cleveland, counting the one to be played at Chicago on Sunday.

While Jones says he thinks the Sox will win the pennant, he is not making any boastful claims at present. He was enthusiastic, however, today in extolling the work of his twirlers. Not mentioning any names, he said he had the three best twirlers in the country, and that with them in form he did not fear any team in either of the big leagues.

Altrock, who has had a long rest, will pitch against Cleveland on Friday, with Joss, another who has had a lengthy vacation, on the firing line for the Naps. Lajoie probably will go back to third base again, with Stovall on second and Rossman on first.

Jones is still angry at Umpire Evans, who, he says, should be removed from the staff of American league umpires. "We were robbed in Philadelphia on Wednesday," said Jones this evening. "Evans allowed Cross and Davis to delay the game until it rained. Then Davis told him to call the game and he immediately did so. It was such a bare faced piece of business that Hank O'Day, the National league's best umpire, said Evans' work was a joke. I have witnesses that O'Day made that statement."

Jones also made the assertion that Ban Johnson would be broken hearted if Chicago won the pennant.

Jones says that within twenty-four hours he will have signed to a Chicago contract one of the best players in the country, who will join the team at once. He refused to divulge his name until the signautre was secured. Asked about Eddie McFarland, he said: "I am through running after him."

TRY STARTING AND SPRINTING.

Cambridge and Harvard Take Only Light Work Because of Heat—Weakness of Crimson.

PUTNEY, England, Aug. 30.—The day being intensely hot, with a haze over the river, the Cambridge and Harvard university crews did only light work today, practicing starting and sprinting.

This is necessary in Harvard's case. A well known oarsman today said that Cambridge vastly excels Harvard in the matter of starting and this deficiency of the Americans might be costly the day of the race unless remedied betimes.

Harvard has arranged for a full course trial tomorrow paced by a scratch crew of well known oarsmen from the London Rowing club.

The Cambridge men explain their having a lighter shell built by the statement that the one they have been using was built for boisterous weather, such as usually prevails in the spring when the Oxford-Cambridge races are rowed, and is needlessly heavy for the quiet water now encountered.

CALLS HARVARD BOAT A "TUB."

Vivian Nickalls Says Slide Wheels Are Too Large and Seats Too Low.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Aug. 30.—Vivian Nickalls, the old Oxford blue winner of the diamond sculls, and brother of Guy Nickalls, said today: "I wish Harvard could be persuaded to race in an English built boat. The more I see their wretched tub the less I like it. I cannot understand why there are such enormous wheels in the slides or why they have the seats fixed so low in the boat. If they had adopted the ordinary wheel they could fix their seats to the gunwale, which, I am confident, they would find to be of great advantage."

Mrs. Charles L. Dering of Midlothian Defeats Mrs. W. A. Alexander of Exmoor 1 Up in 20 Holes in Semi-Finals Match of the W. W. G. A. Tourney, and Will Battle with Miss F. Everett—Home Player Beats Miss Myra Helmer, 4, Up 2 to Play.

Western Champion Mrs. Charles L. Dering, of Midlothian, and Miss Frances Everett, of Exmoor, a former champion, survived the semi-final rounds in the Women's Western Golf association tournament at the Exmoor Country club yesterday, and today will meet to decide possession of the W. A. Alexander trophy, emblematic of the western championship.

Mrs. Dering won her way to the final after a brilliantly contested match with Mrs. W. A. Alexander, which reached the twentieth green, while Miss Everett won from Miss Myra Helmer, the young Midlothian player, 4 up and 2 to play. Results in the championship and subordinate flights were as follows:

CHAMPIONSHIP.

Mrs. C. L. Dering, Midlothian, defeated Mrs. W. A. Alexander, Exmoor, 1 up, 20 holes.

Miss Frances Everett, Exmoor, defeated Miss Myra Helmer, Midlothian, 4 up 2 to play.

ASSOCIATION CUP.

Mrs. H. A. Beidler, Lake Geneva, defeated Miss E. Holbrook, Evanston, 1 up.

Mrs. H. L. Pound, Skokie, defeated Mrs. P. Manchester, Skokie, 3 up 2 to play.

EXMOOR CUP.

Mrs. E. C. Belknap, Evanston, defeated Miss Josephine Sherman, Riverside, 1 up.

SOLACE CUP.

Mrs. C. W. Buckley, Exmoor, defeated Miss C. Adams, Evanston, 2 up.

Mrs. J. C. Page, Edgewater, defeated Miss Thayer, Milwaukee, 4 up 3 to play.

Two Strong Golfers.

The two golfers who will meet today in the final are two of the most forceful players in the west. Both have the right physical qualifications, coupled with good golfing temperaments. Miss Everett is one of the longest drivers in the country and can send the ball as far as the average man player. Her short approaches and play on the greens generally have been her greatest weakness. Mrs. Dering, while not driving quite as far, is steady in all departments.

Yesterday's match between the champion and Mrs. W. A. Alexander was one of the best in the history of the western championship and something akin to the final in 1902, when Mrs. Alexander lost to Miss Bessie Anthony, 1 down.

For a number of years Mrs. Alexander has ranked as one of the best of Chicago's players, needing only strength to make her one of the best in the country. Last year she was not at her best, but in the present tournament appears to have regained her skill. She gave Mrs. Dering a hard battle in spite of the fact that the champion went around in 93.

Square Match Five Times.

Five times was the match squared and three times Mrs. Alexander was in the lead. Mrs. Alexander won the second hole, but lost the fourth. Mrs. Dering took the sixth, but her opponent annexed the eighth. By taking the ninth Mrs. Dering turned 1 up. She took the tenth 4—7 and was 2 up. The Exmoor player took three of the next four holes and was 1 up at the fifteenth.

Although bunkered at the next hole Mrs. Dering pitched her ball nearly sixty yards to within six feet of the cup and won 4—5, the fine recovery probably saving her the game.

On the next green Mrs. Dering tried to pitch over a stymie and lost, 6—5. Mrs. Alexander was dormie 1 at the eighteenth tee, but her approach hit a water pipe on the green and was deflected and a long putt gave the champion the hole and squared the match.

Mrs. Dering Takes Match.

The nineteenth hole was halved in 5, and at the next Mrs. Dering was on the green in three, winning in bogey 5 to 6 by the home player. Cards:

Play Even Golf.

Miss Everett and Miss Helmer played even golf on the out trip, the former taking three holes, while the Midlothian representative took the first and the ninth. Coming in, Miss Everett won the tenth, 4-5, and a 2 on the short eleventh put her three up. The next two holes were divided and Miss Helmer took the fourteenth. Miss Everett captured two more in succession and the match. Cards:

NOLAN ACTS THE ROLE OF TYRANT.

Imposes Further Hardships on Gans in the Matter of Weighing In.

THRICE ON THE SCALES.

Must Be There in Fighting Togs at Noon, 1:30, and Then at 3 O'Clock.

[BY GEORGE SILER.]

Goldfield, Nev., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Joe Gans, it is said, will have a hard job on his hands at 12 noon, 1:30, and 3 p. m. on Labor day. At each of these hours he will have to weigh 133 pounds with his fighting apparel. The supposition that he could weigh in nude at the earlier hours and with his fighting togs at 3 p. m. was knocked in the head this evening by Billy Nolan, who stated that Gans would be compelled to weigh in fighting regalia every time he got on to the scales.

Nolan stated that if Gans was overweight at 12 noon he would claim the $5,000 forfeit and demand that Gans post another forfeit of $5,000 for the second weighing in, and, if again overweight, another $5,000 for the final weigh in.

The conditions imposed by Nolan, whether understood by Gans or not, will compel Gans to train to 131½ and remain at that weight for three hours before the fight. This means a hard task for Joe.

Seeks New Manager.

It was rumored today that Gans was trying to get away from Larry Sullivan, the man who posted his $5,000 forfeit. Gans came here and signed over his end of the purse and his interest in the pictures to Sullivan. Now he is not only sorry but, it is said, he is afraid his forfeit backer will not do the right thing with him after the fight.

The colored man did a four miles' run on the road early this morning and one hour of gymnasium work in the afternoon, finishing well under the required weight.

Gans said he will be ready to fight immediately after his last weighing in. He sent a colored betting commissioner to Goldfield today to gather all the 10-8 bets he could find.

Bat Hears from Clairvoyant.

Nelson cut out boxing today, but will start it again tomorrow. Bat is not superstitious. He does not believe in fortune tellers or palmists, but went at the latter game this morning and was informed his lines denoted he would win the coming fight. Half an hour after he received the good news, a boy handed him his mail and the first letter he opened was from a Hindoo clairvoyant named Hyloo Salada, of 4217 Indiana avenue, Chicago, which read as follows:

Chicago, Aug. 26.—Mr. Nelson.—Dear Sir: You will be put out before the seventeenth round. Truly ciacieri, HYLOO SALADA.

Nelson considers it a good joke. He still places his faith in palmistry.

Tolling Off a Knockout.

I had an understanding today with Texas Rickard regarding the method of timing in the fight. Inasmuch as prejudiced spectators often find fault with and question the referee's count in knock downs, I advised that the official timekeeper toll off the seconds in a loud, clear tone of voice, and to count with the upward and downward movement of the arm. It is the same method I suggested which was adopted at the Fitzsimmons-Corbett fight at Carson City, and it will be employed on Monday. The official timekeeper has not yet been named, but the man selected must be capable and cool. Rickard's attention was called to the error of the timekeeper at the Terry McGovern-Pedlar Palmer fight at Tuxedo, who pulled the gong at the end of the first minute's fighting in the first round.

Arena Is Completed.

Work on the great arena where the fight is to be held was finished today, and all is in readiness for the Labor day battle royal. The Goldfield arena is undoubtedly the finest structure of its kind ever erected, and the wisdom of local promoters in putting up such a costly arena is doubted.

The actual cost of the arena is $13,149.95, and there is 214,660 feet of lumber in the structure. The structure is built as solid as the carpenter's craft knows how, and it will stand for years to come if the athletic club decides to leave it after the coming fight. The arena is ideally located from a picturesque point of view. It is set in a hollow between the camp and the railroad station a mile away, and is flanked on each side by the walls of a gulch. The bleacher seats run up over twenty feet from the ground, and the whole structure is surrounded by a board fence sixteen feet high.

On account of the cost of the arena the advisability is discussed of maintaining it for future glove contests, and in the meantime using it for a skating rink and dance hall.

Padding canvas for the ring platform will reach here tomorrow and will be inspected by both officials.

Herman After Gans-Nelson Winner.

Through his manager, Nate Lewis, Kid Herman has challenged the winner of the Gans-Nelson fight for a battle at the lightweight limit, 133 pounds. Lewis has posted a certified check for $2,000 and declares Herman will be ready to fight in thirty days. He says this will be increased to $5,000 for a side bet if desired.

Adamson to Wrestle Beell.

Fred Adamson yesterday was engaged to wrestle Fred Beell next Monday afternoon at the Casino in connection with the show, at which returns from the Nelson-Gans fight will be displayed. The match will be catch as catch can, pin falls, strangle hold barred. Beell is in Wisconsin, and is expected here tomorrow. Adamson, who originally came from New York state, is now living here. Dr. Message, who is conducting the show, has received a letter from the manager of Hackenschmidt, the Russian giant, saying the latter will come to America next winter, and wants to appear at Chicago.

PASSES AN ANTI-GAMING BILL.

New South Wales Assembly Prohibits Betting in Clubs, Shops, and Streets—Ban on Tips.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Aug. 30.—A radical anti-gaming and betting bill, which was passed by the assembly of New South Wales today, prohibits betting in clubs, shops, or street, and the publication of betting in newspapers before the events. While not rendering illegal betting on racecourses and grounds devoted to sports, it empowers the proprietor to remove bettors and restricts the number of race meetings.

GETAWAY DAY AT SARATOGA.

Champlain Handicap Furnishes a Brilliant Race Between Dandelion and Entree.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—The Saratoga summer meeting came to a close today with the Champlain handicap, one mile and a furlong, as the feature, and in a close finish it resulted in a victory for the favorite, Dandelion. He was heavily played, being backed down from even to 4 to 5 at the close. Graziallo was the pacemaker to the stretch, where Dandelion took the lead. Entree came strong, but in a terrific drive the favorite won by a head.

With its 250 yards of lawn worn brown, its grand stand almost deserted, and the betting arena half empty, the Saratoga racecourse presented a doleful appearance this afternoon. Compared with getaway day at Washington Park it was like a wet night compared to sunshine, and the attendance would not have been called good at Roby.

Before the last race there was a stampede for the 5:30 train to New York and most persons seemed glad to get away. Dave Johnson, Jesse Lewisohn, J. B. Brady, and John Madden are said to have taken large sums out of the ring, also some of the clubhouse contingent and some horsemen. Nearly all the bookmakers are losers on the meeting.

First race, 11-16 miles—Solly M., 120 pounds [Horner], 30 to 1 and 8 to 1, won; Miss Strome, 116 [Hefferman], 5 to 1 and 6 to 5, second; Puissant, 114 [Miller], 5 to 1 and 6 to 5, third. Time, 1:09. Arimo, Elmont, Lucy Marie, and Elixir ran.

Second race, steeplechase, about 2 miles—Allegiance, 153 pounds [Hueston], 4 to 1 and 6 to 5, won; Sandalwood, 134 [Pending], 5 to 1 and 7 to 5, second; Ligero, 132 [Gartland], 10 to 1 and 5 to 2, third. Time, 4:31 2-5. C. B. Campbell and The Claimant ran.

Third race, ¾ mile—Givonni Balerio, 101 pounds [Hefferman], 6 to 1 and 2 to 1, won; Bertha E., 101 [H. Hennessey], 2 to 1 and 4 to 5, second; Calabash, 101 [Alex], 15 to 1 and 6 to 1, third. Time, 1:14. Just, Lord of the Forest, Courtmartial, Hocus Pocus, John H., Bribery, and Cull ran.

Fourth race, the Champlain handicap, 1 mile and 1 furlong—Dandelion, 126 pounds [Sewell], 4 to 5 and 1 to 4, won; Entree, 112 [Miller], 3 to 1 and 3 to 5, second; Ravena, 104 [Koerner], 4 to 1 and 9 to 10, third. Time, 1:54. Graziallo ran.

Fifth race, 1 mile—Columbia Girl, 97 pounds [Koerner], 13 to 5 and even, won; Bryan, 99 [J. Hennessey], 5 to 1 and 2 to 1, second; Cadichon, 97 [Freshon], 8 to 1 and 3 to 1, third. Time, 1:41 1-5. Water Pansy, Tom Lawson, Midas, Society Bud, Ocean Spray, Yada, Dazzle, Edith James, Mount Henry, Varietes, and Wrenne ran. Tyron left at post.

Sixth race, 11-16 miles—Paumonok, 110 pounds [J. Hennessey], 2 to 5 and out, won; Fish Hawk, 107 [Koerner], 7 to 1 and even, second; Joe Miller, 110 [Sewell], 7 to 1 and 2 to 1, third. Time, 1:07. Ironton, George B., Rothgeb, Sir William Johnson, Cobleskill, Jobstown, and True Lass ran.

BIG FUTURITY RACE TOMORROW.

Keene Seems to Hold the Best Hand, with Five Good Ones—Raineys Are Next.

New York, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—One of the striking features about the Futurity Saturday will be the absence from the stake of contenders from some of the most prominent stables. August Belmont, Harry Payne Whitney, John Madden, and the Sanford stable have not an entry for Saturday's great classic that can be taken seriously. Whitney now is absolutely without a representative, having declared his only eligible nomination, Rufus, within the last week. Belmont has two eligibles in Okenite and Glamore, but neither on any public performance is entitled to consideration. John Madden is out of it altogether.

The Futurity, however, both in quality and quantity, will compare favorably with the fields of former years. According to the present outlook eighteen or nineteen horses will go to the post. Of this number, the stable of James R. Keene seems to stand out in bold relief. The Wall street financier has a string of five youngsters that are eligible for the blue ribbon classic. They are Ballot, Peter Pan, Pope Joan, Zambesi, and Grimaldi. The first three are racehorses of the highest class.

Next in importance come the horses of Roy and Paul Rainey—Horace E. and De Mund. Horace E. has had but one public performance, and that in a race at Saratoga, in which he was badly beaten after showing a tremendous flight of speed. De Mund is in grand shape at present.

INSURANCE LOOT CURBED BY COURT

Equitable Life Hit by Decision of Justice Bischoff; Directors Are Liable.

GARTERS CAUSE ALARM.

Wearers of 300 Dozen Amenable to Law, as Elastics Are Infringements.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE.
New York, Aug. 30.

The Equitable Life Assurance society and its directors, according to a decision by Justice Bischoff in the Supreme court today, must defend the suit brought against them by State's Attorney General Mayer to compel an accounting as to the management and disposition of the funds and property of the society. The suit also demands that the directors be compelled to repay any of the society's money which may have been lost or wasted by a violation of the duties of the directors. The court upholds a demurrer interposed by the attorney for the defendants that there was improper joinder of causes of action, but dismissed the demurrer in which it was alleged that the directors could not be compelled to make repayment, as asked by the attorney general.

Court Puts Curb on Insurance Graft.

The board of directors of the Equitable Life today accepted the resignations of George J. Gould and Judge D. Cady Herrick as members of the board.

The decision of the lower court denying the application for a mandamus compelling the state superintendent of insurance to remove from the "administration ticket" for trustees of the Mutual Life Insurance company the names of four members of the international policy holders' committee was affirmed today at Albany by the Appellate division of the Supreme court.

Well may the girls and women of the east side feel alarmed today. Three hundred dozen garters sold by Joseph Cohen, 60 Orchard street, have been declared illegal fringements, and not only the seller but the buyers and wearers of the dainty iridescent hued supporters are amenable to the law.

Garters Infringements; Wearers Alarmed.

Lawyer Elias Rosenthal, 404 Grand street, Cohen's attorney, today notified his client that he would have to answer tomorrow in the United States Circuit court why he should not be punished for contempt of court for failing to comply with the injunction issued under the seal of Chief Justice Fuller of the United States Supreme court, ordering Cohen not to continue the sale of the garters in question.

The complainant owner of the patent which Cohen has been charged with infringing submitted a sheaf of affidavits from pretty girls who testified to having purchased the garters at his stores.

Miss May Steinman blushingly admitted that she is possessor of as cute a pair of beautiful elastic ribbons as ever graced hose. She bought them, she said, at Cohen's. Similar testimony was given by Miss Rose Landsman. Katie Sherwood said she didn't care what kinds of injunctions were issued, she didn't believe the court would be so rude as to exact an affidavit from her as to what kind of garters she is wearing.

Lois Allee is as winsome a little miss as ever wore short skirts. She declares she is 17 years old, but she looks about 12. If any one told you she had been ardently but vainly wooed by a millionaire suitor you would characterize the story as a "schoolgirl yarn." Yet such is the case. Miss Allee—she insists upon the "miss"—has been proposed to by the head of the Riviera Industrial company, Dr. William Real De Kleft, whose stenographer she has been for eight whole days, and who is credited with being a millionaire several times over. But Miss Lois does not love her employer, and, besides, she does not want to leave her "mamma," so she rejected his suit, thereby winning distinction as being the first typewriter in the world to refuse a millionaire husband.

Girl of 17 Vainly Wooed by Millionaire of 70.

The First National Union of Employés of Navyyards, arsenals, and gun factories was started today as a result of the three days' convention of employés of navy yards in different cities, which was held at the German Odd Fellows' hall, 69 St. Mark's place. It is estimated 30,000 workmen are employed by the navy department in the United States, and organizers will be sent to different cities to form locals. The organizations is to be known as the National League of Employés of Navy Yards, Naval Stations, Arsenals, and Gun Factories of Continental America.

First Union of Navy Yard Employes.

The Roosevelt Home club of New York City is to be investigated by the postoffice department at the request of President Roosevelt, with a view to issuing a fraud order against it. Postmaster General Cortelyou was given instructions today to take the matter up immediately. The object of the club, as set forth in a circular issued on Aug. 24, by Roderick Bett, who signs himself as president of the club, is to solicit funds for the purchase of the house at 28 East Twentieth street, New York City, where President Roosevelt was born.

RUSS FAMINE SPREADING.

FOUR MORE PROVINCES WILL BE AFFECTED WITHIN MONTH.

Supplies of Money for the Relief Exhausted—Daughter of Premier Stolypin, Wounded by Bomb Explosion in Father's Apartment, Still Living and Hopes Are Held for Her Recovery—Three Other Victims of the Outrage Are Identified.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 30.—News from the famine stricken provinces is increasing in gravity. By the end of September the famine will have spread to the governments of Kazian, Simibinsk, Samara, and Saratoff. The zemstvo treasuries have been exhausted and the cost of feeding the population will devolve upon the central administration. The quantity of grain wanted in the above governments for food and sowing will be 800,000 tons.

Telegrams from the provinces today gave a fearful picture of murder, pillage, and incendiarism from one end of the country to the other. The entire harvest in the Prujan district, besides a large number of cattle and agricultural machines, has been destroyed by fire.

In Mordovo, near Volga, thousands of persons are without roofs over their heads. In Morshansk there has been enormous damage from fires. In the Romma district fires are nightly destroying houses, furniture, corn, and hay, while from Bresslitoffsk come telegrams similar to those from many other parts of Russia. Subscriptions are being opened for the famine stricken peasantry, and appeals may be made to foreigners.

German Colonists Leave Provinces.

German colonists in the provinces of Samara and Saratoff, who for generations have materially contributed toward raising the agricultural prospects there, are selling their farms at normal prices and emigrating from Russia.

In Samara the government troops have been called out twelve times in the last few weeks to suppress agrarian disorders. The most serious one was at the township of Tcherkati, a place of 15,000 inhabitants, which is known as a revolutionary center.

A large store of bombs and arms has been discovered there, and a police commissioner who went there to make investigation was received with rifle shots. He returned on the following day with a detachment of infantry and an engagement ensued, the peasants firing on the troops from ambush.

The troops repeatedly fired volleys and finally stormed the village.

One hundred and thirty-five arrests were made in Moscow yesterday and 100 civilians were taken from St. Petersburg to Cronstadt today on a charge of complicity in the recent mutiny at Cronstadt.

Premier's Daughter Lives.

Premier Stolypin's daughter, who was thought to have been fatally injured by the bomb explosion in her father's apartments on Aug. 25, is still alive, and there are hopes of her recovery. All of the other persons injured by the explosion, with the exception of the student, Dulevich, and the carriage driver, Bernavsky, are improving.

Three of the bodies which were not identified following the explosion have been recognized. All three of these victims were of noble birth, being the Princess Endoxia Cantacuzene, Mme. Istomia, and her 8 year old son. Five corpses have not been identified.

A commission sitting under the presidency of the minister of education has recommended the reopening of the universities, except the one at Warsaw, and other of the higher schools, under practically the same conditions as were vainly tried last autumn—namely: an autonomous government by a professorial counsel, without the consent of which the police will not be permitted to enter the universities.

Bomb Thrown in Kearkov.

KEARKOV, Aug. 30.—A bomb was thrown under the carriage of Director Poller of the Belgo-Russian factory today. Poller was seriously wounded.

Arrests Cause Clash.

SARATOV, Aug. 30.—An attempt to arrest two agitators in the village of Ivanovka today resulted in a collision between the police and a peasant mob. The police used their rifles, causing several casualties.

Estate Pillaged at Mistislavl.

NOKILEV, Aug. 30.—A mob of peasants today pillaged the Golinsky estate, near Mistislavl, killed two of the guards, and severely wounded a sergeant of police. Troops have been sent to the scene of disorder.

Defeated by Government Forces at Dajabon and Jicaquita—Gen. Marcado Is Killed.

CAPE HAYTIEN, Hayti, Aug. 30.—Advices received here from Santo Domingo say that after the insurgents had occupied Dajabon, in the northern part of the country, the government forces made an attack upon it and compelled the enemy to abandon the town, leaving Gen. Adejandro Marcado and five men killed on the field. The government force lost eight killed.

WILL FIGHT WIDOW'S CHARGE.

Frank E. Dooling Gives Bonds for His Appearance to Answer Accusation of Defrauding Mrs. Doelle.

Frank E. Dooling, for whom Mrs. Catherine Doelle, a widow of Austin, had secured a warrant charging him with defrauding her of $800 and securing $2,500 from her on a bogus note, surrendered himself yesterday and was released by Justice Bennett on $2,500 bond, signed by Henry Delaney, a wholesale liquor dealer at 279 East Madison street. The hearing was set for Sept. 7.

Dooling said the $800 secured from Mrs. Doelle was his commission for the sale of property. The note for $2,500, he said, is not due.

"He had nothing to do with the sale of that property," said Mrs. Doelle.

Dooling called Mrs. Doelle up over the phone early yesterday morning and said he wanted to see her again, but when she began talking real estate matters he hung up the receiver. It was some time afterwards that he learned a warrant had been issued for his arrest.

REBELS ROUTED BY CUBAN TROOPS

CLASH IS NEAR HAVANA.

Surrenders as Result of Government's Amnesty Offer Are More Numerous.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

HAVANA, Aug. 30.—In the most important fight of the present revolution the rebels in Havana province were defeated today by the government forces under command of Gen. Alfredo Rego and Capt. Rosendo Cosso of the rural guards.

The clash occurred in Tapaste Hill near Campo Florida. After two hours' fire the government troops made a machete charge, routing the rebels and driving them back into the country. The known loss of rebels five men killed, but it is supposed at least ten others lost their lives. One of the dead is Capt. Herrera, a negro.

One of the prisoners captured says that probably forty insurrectionists were killed and that many more were terribly slashed with machetes in the charge of the rural guards.

The rebels left twenty horses and a quantity of arms and ammunition on the field. Three prisoners were captured.

Government Officers Wounded.

Capt. Collazo and Corporal Martinez of the government forces were wounded. These were the only casualties on the government side.

The rebels who were defeated were part of Col. Asbert's command, but the actual leader is not mentioned in the official dispatches.

Reports of surrenders in compliance with the government's offer of amnesty are more numerous than heretofore, most of them coming from towns near Havana, to which quite a large number of insurgents have returned. The insurgent chief, Tata Sanchez, is the most prominent of those who surrendered today. He returned to his home at Salud with a few of his followers.

On the other hand, the insurrection is receiving some recruits. Col. Carlos Duas, a prominent resident of San Antonio de los Banos, has joined the insurrection, followed by some of his friends, forming the nucleus of a new band.

The situation in the vicinity of Cienfuegos is threatening. Parties of insurgents wander at will near the city. It is reported that 3,000 insurgents are out in that vicinity.

The insurgents have taken all the animals from the plantations of Kaffenburgh & Sons of Boston and the Manicaragua Tobacco company of Boston. The Constancia Sugar company, an American corporation, having a plantation near Cienfuegos, has filed a claim against the government for damages for live stock taken and property injured. The state department has conferred with Consul General Steinhart regarding the matter.

American Property Raided.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—According to a dispatch received at the state department today from one of the American owners of the Constancia estate, near Cienfuegos, Cuban insurgents raided this property four days ago, taking a number of horses. The state department did not make public the name of the American who sent the dispatch. This is the first protest received from Americans against molestation of their interests. Mr. Sleeper, the American chargé at Havana, was cabled to demand of the Cuban government adequate protection for the Constancia estate and all American property similarly situated.

More Arms for Government.

New York, Aug. 30.—Another consignment of arms and ammunition went to Cuba today for the Cuban government. It was on board the steamer Seguranca of the Ward line, which sailed in the early afternoon. This is the second shipment of arms and ammunition, to be used against the Cuban rebels, that has left this port within a week.

Press Delegates Seeing Colorado.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 30.—Many delegates to the convention of the International League of Press Clubs today visited the irrigation agricultural district of northern Colorado, and enjoyed the scenery of the trip "around the horn" on the Colorado and Southern railroad. The visitors were treated to a pumpkin pie festival at Loveland.

REVEALS HIPPLE AS THIEF

RECEIVER SAYS FAILED PHILADELPHIA BANK WAS LOOTED.

Investigation Shows Dead President Took Collateral from Vaults to Make Loans, Which Were Not Repaid Nor Securities Returned—Millions Loaned to Segal Declared Virtually to Have Been Stolen from the Bank by Its Head.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Receiver Earle announced tonight what he considered to be the only scheme whereby depositors in the wrecked Real Estate Trust company could get their money back dollar for dollar.

His plan is that the creditors of the company take preferred stock in it for their claims and appoint their own officers. This plan has not been perfected in detail, as it will take some little time to get the matter in shape to present to the creditors in its proper form.

Mr. Earle argued that under a receivership the business of a failed concern never would yield the results that could be obtained if the business was managed by the parties directly in interest.

Hipple Thief and Defaulter?

Coroner King of Montgomery county admitted today that Frank K. Hipple, president of the failed trust company, who was found dead at his home in Bryn Mawr, Pa., last Friday, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head. The coroner said he suppressed the actual cause of death in order to give the directors of the company time to investigate and if possible straighten out its affairs.

According to Receiver Earle, Hipple was a thief and a defaulter and if he had lived might have gone to jail as a bank breaker. Hipple, according to discoveries made today, embezzled collateral from the trust company in order to raise money for his private needs. In one case cited by Receiver Earle, desiring money for personal uses, President Hipple took collateral worth $65,000 from the vaults of the bank and borrowed $50,000 upon it. This $50,000 was not repaid, nor was the collateral returned to the bank.

The $5,000,000 which President Hipple loaned to Adolph Segal virtually was stolen from the bank, the receiver said, and loaned to Segal.

Little Fear for Church Funds.

There is much speculation in financial circles as to the identity of the persons other than Segal who borrowed money from the Real Estate Trust company. The directors of the company refuse to make the names public for the reason that the transactions were regular and the loans amply protected.

John H. Converse, president of the trustees of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church and a director in the Real Estate Trust company, said today he had no reason to change his statement yesterday to the effect that the securities of the general assembly, amounting to nearly $1,000,000, are safe.

SUICIDE CLEW IN A BOTTLE.

Note Tells of "Mary Anderson's" Determination to End Her Life by Drowning.

A clew to a possible suicide was found by Deputy Sheriff Herbon of Willow Springs last night, when a bottle containing a note from "Mary Anderson" was discovered floating down the drainage canal. The message was dated Aug. 3 and read as follows:

I am going to tie a stone around my neck and jump into Bubbly Creek, so that he, John Anderson, can marry another girl. I am tired of life at the stockyards. MARY ANDERSON.

Herbon telephoned to the stockyards police who at once began an investigation. No trace of a missing woman was found, however.

MISING BOY FAILS TO RETURN.

Alex Newberger Fails to Heed Appeal of Mother for Him to Come Back.

Alex Newberger, the 17 year old boy who left home to "see the world," failed to return yesterday despite his mother's appeal that he come back. All day long the mother wept in the tailor shop of her husband, J. M. Newerger, 344 Fifty-fifth street, but no news of the missing boy was received. Mrs. Newerger still hopes that somewhere the boy will see her appeal to him. The father declares that if he be in need of money to come back, all he had to do is to telegraph him and the money will be wired.

Notice to Ice Consumers

For the purpose of answering numerous inquiries and of refuting many misleading and unfounded rumors, we desire to state that notwithstanding the abnormal demand there has been no increase in the price of ice delivered by our wagons or sold at any of our distributing depots since May 5th last, and these prices have been lower than those in any other large city, with one exception, during the same period.

The general short crop of ice of last winter (being the smallest crop in proportion to the population, harvested in the United States in the past forty years, with one exception) and the high temperatures of this season, culminating in the recent long-continued hot and humid weather, have caused an unprecedented demand for ice for Chicago deliveries, both wholesale and retail. The recent weather conditions have also caused an unusually large shrinkage in the ice in storage in the houses of the Company, the amount of which cannot be determined with any degree of accuracy until our regular monthly inventory has been taken by actual, careful measurements, and the results compiled, which will be in the early part of September.

Whatever effect this inventory may have on our future prices, there will be no advance in the price of ice for families who are supplied by our wagons or who purchase small pieces at our cars or depots.

TOO MUCH LAWMAKING.

Two men, wide apart in experiences, in temperament, and in political principles, have coincided in the views they have presented to the American Bar association. George R. Peck of Chicago and Alton B. Parker of Esopus both decry the tendency to trust overmuch in legislation as a cure for the evils of the day. Mr. Peck emphasizes more the tendency of the legislature to interfere in matters of detail, and Mr. Parker more the call for legislation of a sympathetic or sentimental nature. The one sees a tendency to destroy individuality and the other a tendency to do violence to established institutions because of hysteria. The remedy in either case is to hold less frequent sessions of the lawmaking body and to enforce more vigorously existing laws.

The trouble with legislatures is that they are controlled by lawyers in those rare cases where their membership is not almost entirely made up of lawyers. The lawyers who conduct political campaigns and attend legislative sessions necessarily have less time to devote to the profundities of their professions than the lawyers who keep out of politics. They have sufficient familiarity with the law not to be afraid to tinker with it. Many attempts are made to fill voids in the law when the only void is in the legal knowledge of the proposer of the new statute. The legal mind also has the defect of approaching a measure which is felt to have popular support from the standpoint of the attorney who is trying to prove his client in the right rather than that of the old counselor who tries to see clearly where justice resides. There is no doubt that lawyers in legislative bodies ought to exercise a restraining influence upon the flood of legislation. There is unfortunately no doubt that they are largely responsible for it.

In spite of the tendency to legislate both more minutely and more sweepingly—that is, to create a vast number of statutory offenses unknown to the common law—there has been no uniformity of mind or action created. There is no fear that there will be. Building laws may specify what must be done or undone in the construction of a house, but room is left for the most diverse expression of individuality in houses. There is no more reason to believe that all people can be forced to act alike than that all can be made to look alike.

Mr. Parker's words in regard to hysterical legislation seem so plainly to be inspired by one particular measure adopted by the last congress that they lack something of the disinterested note which inspires confidence. Yet there is a large measure of truth in the assertion that laws are sometimes put upon the statute books to fulfill promises made before election, in which the interest is worked up for the occasion by politicians hunting for an issue. Although the case which Mr. Parker seems to have been considering does not properly come within this category it is possible for a clever man to hit upon a fault in a law or in its enforcement, exaggerate the need of new legislation, and make himself the champion of an imaginary uprising of the people. If he is sufficiently clever he can make the imaginary uprising a real one and convey himself to power. This is no new thing, however, nor is the gentleman from Esopus its discoverer. Demagogy is as old as political institutions, and the world is probably as likely now as ever to progress toward security and stability under the law in spite of hysteria. The conservative always finds the progressive rash and the radical finds precedent a fetter, but the world moves onward.

STATE DRAMSHOPS.

South Carolina tried prohibition, and it did not work. Senator Tillman became the champion of the dispensary system, and it was adopted. The state became the sole and only saloonkeeper. The South Carolinians did not take the ground which progressive municipal ownerites may take some time or other, that whisky and beer are "public utilities" to be administered by the state, but they reasoned that there would be less drunkenness, especially among the negroes. The principal object of prohibitory legislation in the south is to make it difficult for the blacks to get liquor. In communities where the whites are largely in the majority prohibition is not popular. The South Carolinians believed that the state could and would do more to stop the illicit sale of liquor than it had done under the prohibition régime.

Probably the dispensary system did check drinking at first, and could be called a success. But the defects of state administration of business enterprises began to manifest themselves. Abuses crept in and the system was denounced by both prohibitionists and drinkers. The former said that "blind pigs" were allowed to do business without interference. The latter said the dispensaries sold bad liquor. It was openly charged that the dispensary system had become a thing of "graft and rebates," that contracts for the supply of liquors were given to favored contractors and that officials were bribed to tout for certain brands of beer and whisky.

There was so much dissatisfaction that the legislature passed a local option law. It authorizes counties to vote for county dispensaries or for prohibition. Under that law seventeen of the forty-one counties have done away with dispensaries. The powerful interests back of the dispensary system wish to regain the patronage and perquisites they are losing. They desire the repeal of the local option law and they backed at the recent primaries candidates for state officers who are for the dispensary. Those candidates were defeated by men opposed to the dispensary, and the local option law will not be repealed. The majority of the South Carolinians are opposed now to the state ownership and operation of dramshops.

Senator Tillman is as much attached to the dispensary system as he was when he had it established and has denounced all attempts to modify it. By doing so he has lost some of his popularity. He was renominated for the senate at the primaries, but his name was scratched considerably. His constituents think for themselves as far as the liquor question at least is concerned and do not take orders from any senator.

A TRUST'S PLEA.

A plea, no longer heard, used to be urged occasionally in behalf of some public officer who was discovered to be short in his accounts. The plea was that, even if the charge of financial irregularities were true, he was "loyal to the union." It was assumed by his friends that that ought to get him off, just as a criminal whose guilt was manifest escaped conviction because his lawyer laid stress on the fact that he had been with Anthony Wayne at the storming of Stony Point.

Sometimes a trust which has been called to account for doing business in a manner forbidden by the laws puts up a defense which bears some resemblance to that of "loyalty to the union." The plea is that the trust has made a market abroad for the domestic product it handles and that the attacks upon it are hurting the American export trade. The trust does not go into the accusations made against it of breaking the laws and oppressing the domestic consumers, but it says, "let us alone for the sake of American commerce."

It may be remembered that the packers had much to say on that theme earlier in the year. They deprecated the stir made about the packing business not so much because it hurt them individually as because it tended to cut down the volume of American exports and hurt the whole country. As lovers of their country it distressed them that anything should be done calculated to lessen its foreign trade, which they had done so much to build up.

The same spirit breathes in the appeal of the Standard Oil company to be let alone. It has sent its wild advertisements flying to tell what it has done to build up the foreign trade of the United States and how its good work is being undone by what the press and the president have had to say regarding the corporation.

The Standard tells of the heroic efforts it has made to meet in neutral markets the competition of foreign rivals who have many natural advantages, such as "pauper labor employed in production" and the "active encouragement of their local press." It thinks the patriotic attempts it has made to expand American trade entitle it to better treatment than it is receiving at home. It drops the oily tear as it reflects on the ingratitude of the republic and the possibility that the foreign trade of its domestic rivals whom it has tried so hard to destroy may be injured.

The advertisements of the Standard Oil company do not contain a word about the rebates which have been paid it by American railroads. They do not mention the low prices at which producers have been forced to sell their oil in order that the trust might be the better able to sell cheap oil to foreigners and thus cut under foreign competitors. These interesting points are not touched on. It is assumed the public will forget them in its desire to protect the foreign trade of the country.

A decline in the volume of petroleum exports would be regrettable, but it would be more regrettable if the Standard Oil company were to escape prosecution because it has done so much to build up exports. Services in the cause of foreign trade cannot be pleaded in bar of an indictment for breaking domestic laws.

POPULARITY AS AN ASSET.

A monster demonstration may be a real expression of popular feeling, or it may be a cleverly organized affair, the shrewd managers using certain attributes of human nature as sure assistants to their own designs. It is always difficult to understand how many of the "rooters" at a convention or a welcoming reception are present at their own initiative because of real friendship and feeling for the one whom they desire to honor. The art of creating impressions by smoothly oiled machinery has long been understood by political managers. There are many things about the reception given to a prominent American returning from abroad which suggest this careful planning by skillful organizers.

But there is another consideration connected with the value of personal popularity as a political asset. There have been comparatively few among American statesmen who have had the peculiar power of attracting warm friendships. Jefferson had it to some extent, for the masses believed in him and trusted him more than any other man was ever trusted in this country, if the biographer of the first democratic president is to be believed. Jackson had it in superlative degree, and he received devoted support from thousands who believed in him implicitly. Harrison aroused great enthusiasm in 1840, but it was largely fictitious, resultant from carefully planned campaigning by whig leaders. Clay undoubtedly had this personal magnetism, which bound men to him. But it never made him president, even though he tried for the honor again and again, and people were so devoted to him that they swore never to have their hair cut or to shave until he was in the White house. Blaine could win and hold friends much as Clay had done in the earlier day, but he never received the prize for which he strove.

President Roosevelt has the same power. He is personally popular. The puzzle which the republican managers have to solve is to find some one for 1908 who can approximate to the popularity of the present incumbent of the presidency. The result may be the choice of a candidate for entirely different reasons, and then the campaign would naturally pass away from the field of personal politics into the saner one of principle.

Now and then some man possessed of the particular qualities which win and keep friends has appeared in the arena of politics in this country, but, when the long list of candidates, successful and unsuccessful, is recalled, it is a surprising thing to note how few there have been of whom it could truly be said that they were popular idols, esteemed for personal reasons, and winning support by the charm of individuality. In fact, it is doubtful whether a half dozen such men of national reputation and influence could be found among all the leaders of political life and thought since the birth of the nation. As a rule it has been principle for which voters have contended, principle established by a study of the record of the candidates and principle as represented and illustrated in the record of party. Personal popularity is worth something, but is is not everything. It is more likely to secure a nomination than an election.

THE PRIZE FIGHT.

If John Calvin or John Knox had ever dreamed that a Presbyterian preacher would have to make public announcement that any women of his congregation who attended a prize fight would be expelled from the church they would have given up their struggle at once and retired to some monastery. The dispatch from Goldfield simply illustrates how easy it is to cover a thing with the mantle of respectability which should be reprobated by all decent folk.

To read that a United States senator is a leading figure in the arrangements for a prize fight is startling, despite the repeated appearance of senators in illegal and improper enterprises. The effrontery of an advertising manager in publishing an invitation to the president of the United States probably reflects the feeling of many of those who are interested in the show planned by an alleged "aristocratic" athletic club.

That this is an age of athletics is apparent. There appears to be a demand for "sporting extras" at all hours of the day. The success of a horse in an attempt to lower an already remarkable record appeals to thousands who never saw a horse race. The country seems baseball mad. The varied forms of athletic prowess find their own company of adherents and enthusiasts, and in the general attention to the contests of many kinds the grosser forms of sport find their opportunity. But, even under such conditions, it is hard to believe that many of the supposedly gentler sex would take much enjoyment in watching a fistic encounter, which, however much softened to meet the forms of law, cannot fail to have many features distinctly brutal.

LETTER OF MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

Copyright: 1906: By the Marquise de Fontenoy.

AMONG the recent appointments recorded in the London Official Gazette is that of the young duke of Manchester to the dignity of a deputy lieutenant of the county of Armagh. It seems but the other day that the duke was figuring in the bankruptcy court, and involved in all sorts of scrapes, most of them of a financial character, from which he emerged by means of legal technicalities. And yet here he is, not merely in the possession of one of the highest offices at court—namely: that of commander of the yeomen of the guard of the sovereign—but, likewise, now a magistrate of the county, intrusted with the administration of the law and with power over the liberty of his fellow citizens.

That he has any knowledge of the law, save such as he picked up in the rôle of a defendant, in which he has so frequently figured, no one would venture for a moment to suggest. Under the circumstances it is ridiculous to imagine that he owes his appointment as deputy lieutenant to anything else than to the fact that he happens to be a duke, the son of the dowager duchess of Manchester, and the grandson of the duchess of Devonshire, both of whom are personæ gratissimæ at court.

As deputy lieutenant the duke will be entitled to wear a scarlet and gold uniform and plumed chapeau, which, abroad, is usually taken for that of a British general; in fact, at a distance almost the only difference that can be observed in the uniform is in the shape of the sword, that of the deputy lieutenant being an ordinary straight affair, with a hilt guard, whereas the saber of the British general partakes of the character of the oriental scimitar. And yet the office of deputy lieutenant is in reality a military one, a fact of which few people seem to be aware. For the militia of every county is under the orders of the lord lieutenant of the shire, who, by reason of his office, is, ipso facto, its commanding general, precisely as in this country the state governors are the principal commanding officers of the militia of their state.

The lord lieutenant is responsible to the sovereign for the furnishing by his county of the requisite quota of men for the militia, and is, invariably, a great territorial magnate, generally the most influential land owner of the county, and by virtue of his office, as principal representative of the sovereign, he precedes every one else in the shire, even dukes and marquises, and presides over the board of county magistrates, the members of which he appoints, and who are styled his deputies. The office of deputy lieutenant is one of the most ancient in England, and I need scarcely add, played a still greater rôle in the middle ages than it does today.

Prince George of Greece, heartily sick of his governor generalship of Crete, which virtually entails his exile to an island which is in no sense congenial to him, has now definitely decided to resign and to sacrifice the civil list of $40,000 which he has been drawing for the last eight years. Prince George has been a distinct failure as governor general, and, instead of modeling his rule upon the strictly constitutional régime of his father, the king of Greece, has apparently taken for example his relatives, the most reactionary of the Russian grand dukes.

The result is that the prince is so intensely unpopular with all classes of the inhabitants, Christian as well as Moslem, that serious danger exists of another insurrection, not this time against the sultan but against the governor general.

It seems that King George suggested to the powers that he should be intrusted with the selection of a new governor general. This proposal was rejected on the ground that it constituted an infraction of the suzerainty of the sultan. Another suggestion, that the administration of the island should be confided to the international commission of the Greek national debt at Athens, was turned down on similar grounds, and at the present moment it is proposed that the national assembly should elect a governor general, subject to the ratification of his appointment by the great powers and by the sultan as suzerain.

The assembly is likely to choose some Greek politician who will be rejected by the sultan, and probably by the powers, and it will be hopeless to expect any definite settlement of the Cretan problem, which has been a source of so much trouble and anxiety to the powers, until the island is finally annexed to the kingdom of Greece. To this project the kaiser, by reason of his friendship with the sultan, remains the chief obstacle. The loss by the padishah of the nominal suzerainty of Crete will constitute a blow to his prestige in the eyes of the entire Moslem world. Not until Emperor William sees fit to withdraw his support from the sultan in the matter can any satisfactory settlement of the troublesome Cretan question take place.

In view of the awkward contretemps which has taken place at Constantinople, where the sultan has publicly affronted the United States by declining to receive the newly appointed ambassador, John G. A. Leishman, I would venture to suggest the following solution of the difficulty based upon a pretty extensive experience of Stamboul and of the views and prejudices of the sublime porte.

One of the principal objections that the sultan has to a full fledged American ambassador at Constantinople is the belief that it will entail the presence in the Bosporus of another foreign man of war as guardship. All the great powers who maintain full fledged embassies in the Turkish capital have, ipso facto, the right of maintaining a warship of their navy under the walls of Stamboul by way of protection of the members of the diplomatic mission from any popular rising.

The presence of these warships along the Golden Horn, commanding with their guns the palace of the sultan, is deeply resented by Turks of high and low degree as an insult and as an indication of the fact that the Ottoman empire has been compelled to yield in the matter to superior force. At the time of the Armenian massacres the late Sir Michael Herbert, who died as British ambassador at Washington, availed himself of his authority as chargé d'affaires at the Turkish capital to land a large detachment of sailors and marines from the British guardship in the Bosporus and to march them, fully armed, with their machine guns through the streets of Constantinople to the embassy, a display of force which contributed more than anything else to stop the massacres, which were tolerated, if not connived at, by the padishah.

The latter, having a wholesome dread of the extremely vigorous methods of American diplomacy, as displayed on several occasions in connection with American missionary troubles, fears that the presence of another foreign warship under his palace walls would not merely impair his prestige in the eyes of his own people but expose him to the peril of having American troops and sailors landed whenever he showed any disinclination to comply at once with requests from Washington.

Were the American government to intimate to the sultan that it would be willing to forego, at any rate for the present, the prerogative of maintaining a warship in the Bosporus pertaining to the countries having full fledged embassies at Stamboul, I am quite sure that the ruler of the faithful would offer no further objections to the recognition of the transformation of the American legation in his capital into an embassy.

The theoretical right which ambassadors are supposed to possess of access at all times to the sovereign to whom they are accredited and of which so much capital has been made is an altogether minor consideration. For the sultan has never hesitated to keep his doors closed to ambassadors whom he disliked, and he used to make the late Lord Currie wait for months together whenever he asked for an audience in his capacity of ambassador of the British empire.

In fact, at Constantinople the theory that an ambassador can have access to the sovereign at any time is a mere diplomatic fiction, as many foreign ambassadors accredited to the sublime porte have found to their cost.

ROOSEVELT AS LAWMAKER SCORED BY ALTON B. PARKER.

Defeated Democratic Candidate for President in Speech Before Bar Association, Says Ignorant Zeal Is Responsible for Mass of New Enactments.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 30.—The feature of today's session of the American Bar association's convention was the annual address which Alton B. Parker has been in the habit of delivering to the association, and there was a full attendance of members, as well as a large gathering of visitors, who followed the speech of the ex-presidential candidate with interest.

Mr. Parker's subject was "The Congestion of the Law." He dealt principally with the increasing tendency of legislative bodies to propose and enact new laws. Every man who has had occasion to study the question has been forced to conclude, he said, that only a small percentage of new enactments involve a new principle or even a new policy.

"Most of the laws proposed in such number and variety are assertions of the police power. Even the machinery which they create—under the fond delusion that it is new—is as old as western civilization itself," he said.

Mr. Parker quoted one of the sayings of Montesquieu that "it sometimes is necessary to change certain laws, but the case is rare, and when it occurs one should touch them only with a trembling hand," and added:

"If this were taken to heart by the members of congress and of the state legislatures of the American union, who annually turn out an average of nearly 15,000 laws—two-thirds of them devoted to private or special questions—it is certain that there would be greater satisfaction and a general recognition of the fact that quality of laws and not their number counts."

Laws Due to "Ignorant Zeal."

"In many cases," he continued, "the misdirected or ignorant zeal of an executive officer is responsible for many new and useless laws. Such an official—generally with the elements in him of the agitator, and often of the demagogue—has been carried into office, after an hysterical canvass, under the promise to prosecute certain kinds of accused persons. Once elected he tilts against classes or individuals, only to find that juries do not convict, or that, if they do, courts will not sustain. Then comes a new harvest of laws in order to justify or supplement the zeal of men who may be honest, but who are wanting either in judgment or knowledge."

Discussing the mass of legislation enacted for the benefit or at the behoof of a party, Mr. Parker said:

"It was the fundamental idea of the founders of our government that the three branches of government should be kept distinct, with certain well defined and understood differences. The executive officer might recommend legislation, but it was assumed that any interference on his part to command it would not only be going beyond his powers, but would also excite resentment.

"Now, however, this idea has gone to the limbo of other beautiful, but dead, ideals. An executive officer may not only recommend but is expected to urge and, if necessary in order to carry his point, to use the great power of his office to compel the enactment of laws."

Would Put Curb on Executive.

"When we shall learn," he continued, "that legislative bodies must be made up of mediocrities so long as quantity and not quality of laws is regarded as the essential requisite; . . . when executives are forbidden, rather than encouraged, by public sentiment to interfere with the orderly course of lawmaking it will be permissible to look forward with hope to the times when hysteria, blackmail, partisanship, personal ambitions, and selfish interests will not add ten new laws to the statute books when only one is needed."

In conclusion, Mr. Parker declared that the cure for this lawmaking mania must come from the great body of American lawyers, and urged the initiation of a systematic movement by the Bar association for the correction of legislative evils.

Among other reports approved at today's session was one by the committee on commercial law. The report embodies six resolutions and recommends that the committee for next year be instructed to oppose any effort to repeal the present bankruptcy law or to restrict the field of its operation or impair its efficiency. One of the resolutions says that the association regards the law as by no means perfect or incapable of improvement by amendment, but as drawn upon correct lines and capable of perfection without drastic amendment.

FAIRBANKS ON BATTLEFIELD POINTS LESSONS OF CIVIL WAR

Vice President Addresses 6,000 Kansans at Osawatomie, the Scene of Slavery's First Great Fight Fifty Years Ago, Made Memorable by Deeds of John Brown.

Osawatomie, Kas., Aug. 30.—From a knoll on the battlefield of Osawatomie, where half a century ago the first armed conflict over slavery took place, Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks today addressed a gathering of 6,000 Kansans.

Vice President Fairbanks spoke of the stirring times that led up to the border wars in Missouri and Kansas and of the effect of these early struggles upon the country's history. He said in part:

"We would not recall the differences and the heart burnings of fifty years ago with the purpose of awakening them to life, for they are dead and buried beyond resurrection. We now rejoice in the fact that they are dead and buried, together with the institution which engendered them, and that where there was discord there is now unity.

"The Kansas-Nebraska act, which repealed the Missouri compromise of 1850, deeply stirred the moral elements of the country and encouraged the elements favoring slavery. Kansas instantly became the great prize for which the two struggled. The contest between them for the mastery here constitutes a tragic page in American history. It may be truly said that the beginning of the end of African slavery in America was the enactment of the Kansas-Nebraska bill.

Osawatomie Prelude to Tragedy.

"When the Kansas-Nebraska measure became the law of the land it was already written in the book of fate that nothing would suffice short of the absolute extinction of slavery upon the American soil.

"The contest which followed its enactment on the soil of Kansas was unique in our national experience. The warfare which waged here was its natural fruit, though not foreseen by its authors. The blood shed fifty years ago served to arouse the attention of the country and to emphasize the dangers which were impending. The engagement here was a sporadic outburst. It was, as it were, a stray shot upon the picket line, and truly presaged the larger engagements of the mighty armies of the north and the south.

"With all their wisdom, those who were engaged in the great contest saw into the future but imperfectly. War which was made to destroy the union resulted in the overthrow of the institution of slavery. War was made to preserve slavery, not to destroy it. If it had been supposed at the outset that slavery was, in fact, the real issue, the final result would at least have been delayed. States which were neutral or which supported the union cause might have aligned themselves with the secession movement, if it had been thought that the extinction of slavery was the end to be accomplished. No one saw farther than Mr. Lincoln, to whom was given the supreme opportunity to lead a race out of bondage, but it was not given to him to see the outcome of the contest from the beginning.

Gave New Definition to "Liberty."

"Those who fought in the long ago for liberty had little conception of what liberty means today. In the midst of the civil war Abraham Lincoln said: 'The world is in need of a good definition of the word "liberty."' America has given this splendid word a better definition than is found elsewhere. It has a more far reaching and greater significance than it had fifty years ago. The flag of the republic is the symbol of a liberty larger and more beneficent than was conceived of by those who drew the sword in its name here, or than was dreamed of even by the great American emancipator.

"The past has transmitted to the present its burdens and its great responsibilities. If it were the irony of fate that we should not preserve and secure to all the fullest possible enjoyment of the blessings of liberty which have been vouchsafed to us through the sacrifice of those who have achieved it, there must be preserved in the fullest possible degree the right of our countrymen to enjoy the blessings of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. The principles enunciated in the declaration of independence are as vital today as in the hour of their birth. The weak must be safeguarded against the unjust encroachments of the strong. All must be protected to the utmost in the opportunity to enjoy the privileges which were intended to be and are of right theirs under the genius and spirit of American institutions."

Mr. Fairbanks left late in the day for Dodge City, Kas., where he is to speak at a G. A. R. reunion. From Dodge City he will go to Boise City, Idaho, as the guest of the national irrigation congress. Gov. Hoch will be the principal speaker here tomorrow.

INSIDE STORY OF THE MURDER OF KING ALEXANDER AND QUEEN DRAGA.

Curtain Raised to Depict Drama of Blood Within Walls of Royal Palace—Ruler Obdurate.

CHAPTER XVI.

ON Thursday, July 19, 1900, there was in the afternoon the usual reception of the foreign diplomats in the Servian foreign office in Belgrade.

The last minister to be received was the German minister, Baron Waecker-Gotter. The locum tenens of the Servian premier and foreign minister, Mr. Vukashin Petrovitch, was leaving the building, together with the baron, when the home minister, George Genchitch, stopped him and asked him to return at once with him to his office.

He said to him in a visible state of agitation:

"I cannot tell you what it is, but I will only say that something fateful, something fatal, something dreadful, is going to happen! I was obliged to take an oath that I should not betray the secret, and I shall not do so. But this I can tell you—that I have wired in cipher to King Milan that a great misfortune for him personally, for King Alexander, for Servia, and for us all is in preparation, and have asked him to come at once to prevent that misfortune if possible."

Mr. Genchitch advised his colleague to go to the palace at once. "Perhaps the king will tell you what is going on."

It was nearly 7 p. m. Mr. Petrovitch—whom I shall call Mr. Vukashin, as he always signs himself, and as he generally is known in Servia under that name—went to the palace and was surprised to find in the antechamber Nicholas Christitch waiting. Mr. Christitch had been called generally to the palace during the last thirty years whenever the kings of Servia found themselves in an exceptionally difficult situation. Mr. Vukashin asked the old statesman laughingly:

"Have you perhaps come to form a new cabinet?"

King Alexander received Mr. Vukashin in great agitation and irritation. He told him simply that he then had no time to listen to him, and dismissed him somewhat ungraciously in a few minutes. The minister felt so humiliated and offended that he went home and wrote his resignation.

On July 20 Dr. Vladan on his journey from Zurich to Lucerne received a telegram from his locum tenens, Vukashin, stating that he had resigned and begging him to return at once. Vladan wired to King Milan at Carlsbad and asked him if he knew what was taking place in Belgrade. Dr. Vladan and King Milan wired that day to each other in ciphers, but they could not decipher their dispatches with the cipher books which King Alexander's secretary had given them. Losing most precious time in unsuccessful deciphering, both were annoyed, but they did not suspect that by the king's orders they were given wrong books. Even this small detail was foreseen. At last on July 21 King Milan wired to Dr. Vladan, in an open telegram, that he had received from the home minister, Genchitch, an urgent request to return at once to Servia, "but secretly." "To return was not compatible with my duty. I therefore refused the request and asked for information by letter."

A little later, on the same day, Dr. Vladan received in Lucerne the following telegram: "The king has decided to marry Draga Mashin. The government has resigned, feeling unable to prevent that catastrophe for the country and dynasty. Vukashin."

Dr. Vladan wired to King Alexander in cipher:

"Vukashin announces to me by a telegram of this day that your majesty has decided to marry Mme. Draga Mashin. Most humbly I pray your majesty to let me know if this fatal decision for Servia and for the dynasty is a definite one."

King Alexander answered the same day in a telegram which had only two ciphers, which meant:

"Yes, my decision is definite. Alexander."

On the same day Dr. Vladan received two other telegrams.

The one was from Carlsbad.

"I have sent in my resignation as commander in chief of the army. But do not resign, at least not for a day or two. If possible come at once to me—Milan."

The other telegram was from Belgrade, signed by Mr. Vukashin.

"The question is decided. The resignation of the cabinet has been accepted."

Dr. Vladan, having ceased to be the head of the government, thought it useless to go to Carlsbad to confer with King Milan, who had ceased to be the head of the Servian army.

The foregoing story is a chronological sketch of the events which rapidly followed each other. I now raise the curtain to depict a drama. The diary, or memorandum, which has been written by one of the principal actors of the drama itself, gives us graphic description of the events. This is the diary of Vukashin Petrovitch, minister of finance in the cabinet of Dr. Vladan, and his locum tenens in the premiership and the foreign office during his absence.

On July 20, early in the morning, King Alexander had in his hands the resignation of his acting premier, Mr. Vukashin. But he returned it to him and invited him to lunch. Everybody in the palace noticed that the king that morning was preoccupied, irritable, and confused. After the luncheon he took Mr. Vukashin to a small but elegantly furnished room in the palace, known as Queen Nathalie's boudoir.

The King—I have something of the greatest importance to tell you, something on which depend my future, my life, my destiny. But let me in the first place reproach you for your resignation. We have been so many years such good friends that we have no right to be oversensitive in small matters. Have you seen Genchitch? Has he told you anything?"

The Minister—Yes, I have seen Genchitch; but unfortunately he refused to tell me anything.

The King—Well, then, I will tell you everything myself; but before I do so you must make a solemn oath on this holy picture that you will not tell any one what I now am going to confide in you!"

And with these words King Alexander brought out from his breast a small bijou holy ikon of the Russian type, which of late he had taken to wearing on a gold chain. Probably the picture represented Saint Nicholas, the patron saint of the family Obrenovitch. I believe it was the gift of his mistress Draga, and likely she made it doubly precious to him by swearing on it to love him and to be faithful to him through all eternity.

The Minister—Your majesty, I must tell you that I do not believe in holy pictures, and an oath on them would not be binding on me.

The King—Then swear by the memory of your departed son!

Mr. Vukashin Petrovitch had a gifted and promising son, a young doctor, who a year or two before these events died in a Vienna hospital from blood poisoning through a wound got in a surgical operation.

The Minister—The memory of my son certainly is sacred to me, but I cannot make it the foundation for an oath.

The King—Then give me your word of honor!

The Minister—Certainly, but only after I have seen that my word of honor will not bring me into conflict with my other duties.

The king rose in evident anger and with the words: "In that case I have nothing to tell you," left the room.

But in ten minutes he returned, went near Mr. Vukashin, and said: "Why should you not promise me to keep the secret?"

The Minister—My refusal concerns only the secrets of the state; but if you have to tell me something that does not concern the state and public service, you may be sure that I will carry it with me to the grave.

The King—Well. Now listen to me. You know, Vukashin, that I have had neither childhood nor youth like other men. The eternal quarrel between my parents made my life bitter, undermined my health in general, and my nerves more especially. Such a life killed in me every sentiment. I never have had any ambition, not even the ambition to reign as a king. I wear the crown not because I love it but because it is my duty to do so. You must have noticed that yourself.

The Minister—In what you say, sire, certainly is some truth, but as you have touched upon delicate family relations I cannot say anything about them.

The King—Hear only what I have further to say. You and your colleagues always have pressed me to marry. I now have decided to do what you have wished. Having come to this decision, I found that none of the great sovereign courts was willing to give me one of their daughters for wife. No princess belonging to a great dynasty is willing to marry me. Indeed, it would be foolish for any one to give up her fine life in her own country and exchange it for the life in Servia. I really am not disposed to marry a princess belonging to a branch line and to a little court, and beside such a marriage would be to our people no advantage. A foreign princess from a small court would try to exercise influence on the business of the state. That without fail would cause dissatisfaction in the country and put me personally in an awkward position. Therefore, I have decided to marry a Servian, a daughter of my own people. What do you say to that, Vukashin?

The Minister—Personally, sire, I have no aristocratic prejudices and am more with the democratic tendencies of our time. And therefore—although for different reasons and not for those you adduce—I have nothing against the marriage of your majesty with a Servian, provided that she is from a respectable house, well educated, young, at least five years younger than your majesty—and pure as an angel. Such a queen could gain the love of the people. Such a queen the Servians really would prefer to a foreign princess, and your government would not oppose the wish of your majesty.

The King (rising up)—Yes, but all the difficulty lies just therein—that there exists already a woman whom I love more than any one or anything in this world, the only woman with whom I can be happy, and only can I consecrate my whole life to the interests of the people if she becomes my wife. In the whole world there only is one woman who can make me forget the bitterness of my past life and make me feel happy. That woman hitherto has been my good angel, who gave me strength to bear patiently all that I had to bear.

The Minister—And who is that woman, sire?

The King—That woman is Madam Draga, the daughter of the late Panto Loonyevitza.

The Minister (in consternation)—Draga Mashin? . . . No, sire, that cannot be, that ought not to be!

The king's eyes filled with tears, not with tender emotion, but with rage. He took off his eyeglasses, rubbed them spasmodically with his handkerchief, fixed them again on the bridge of his nose, bit the ends of his mustache, jumped from his seat, walked hurriedly about the room, sat down again, and again jumped up and walked nervously about. At last he stopped before the minister and said:

The King—Are you my friend, Vukashin?

The Minister—That I am, sire.

The King—If you are my friend, you ought to help me to carry out my purpose. It cannot be otherwise. From this my purpose I will not desist, whatever may happen, and he who tries to hinder me is my enemy.

The Minister—That being so, I lose no time in declaring that I cease to be your majesty's minister.

...HE MURDER OF ...R AND QUEEN DRAGA.

...MIJATOVICH.

...y Tribune company.]

...thing myself; but before I do so you must make a solemn oath on this holy picture that you will not tell any one what I now am going to confide in you!"

And with these words King Alexander brought out from his breast a small bijou holy ikon of the Russian type, which of late ...had taken to wearing on a gold chain. ...ably the picture represented Saint ...olas, the patron saint of the family ...ovitch. I believe it was the gift of ...istress Draga, and likely she made it ...y precious to him by swearing on it to ... him and to be faithful to him through all eternity.

The Minister—Your majesty, I must tell you that I do not believe in holy pictures, and an oath on them would not be binding ...me.

...e King—Then swear by the memory of ...departed son!

... Vukashin Petrovitch had a gifted and promising son, a young doctor, who a year or two before these events died in a Vienna hospital from blood poisoning through a wound got in a surgical operation.

The Minister—The memory of my son cer...inly is sacred to me, but I cannot make ...e foundation for an oath.

...e King—Then give me your word of ...r!

...e Minister—Certainly, but only after I ...e seen that my word of honor will not ...ng me into conflict with my other duties.

The king rose in evident anger and with the words: "In that case I have nothing to tell you," left the room.

...t in ten minutes he returned, went near ... Vukashin, and said: "Why should you ...promise me to keep the secret?"

...e Minister—My refusal concerns only the ...ets of the state; but if you have to tell ...something that does not concern the state ...i public service, you may be sure that I will carry it with me to the grave.

The King—Well. Now listen to me. You know, Vukashin, that I have had neither childhood nor youth like other men. The ...nal quarrel between my parents made ... life bitter, undermined my health in ...eral, and my nerves more especially. Such a life killed in me every sentiment. I never have had any ambition, not even the ...bition to reign as a king. I wear the ...wn not because I love it but because it is ...duty to do so. You must have noticed ...at yourself.

The Minister—In what you say, sire, certainly is some truth, but as you have touched upon delicate family relations I cannot say anything about them.

The King—Hear only what I have further ...say. You and your colleagues always ...e pressed me to marry. I now have decided to do what you have wished. Having come to this decision, I found that none of the great sovereign courts was willing to give me one of their daughters for wife. No princess belonging to a great dynasty is willing to marry me. Indeed, it would be ...ish for any one to give up her fine life ...er own country and exchange it for the ...in Servia. I really am not disposed to ...arry a princess belonging to a branch line and to a little court, and beside such a mar...ge would be to our people no advantage. ...oreign princess from a small court would ...y to exercise influence on the business of the state. That without fail would cause dissatisfaction in the country and put me personally in an awkward position. Therefore, I have decided to marry a Servian, a daughter of my own people. What do you say to that, Vukashin?

The Minister—Personally, sire, I have no aristocratic prejudices and am more with the democratic tendencies of our time. And therefore—although for different reasons and not for those you adduce—I have nothing against the marriage of your majesty with a Servian, provided that she is from a respectable house, well educated, young, at least five years younger than your majesty—and pure as an angel. DIVIDE BANKER'S ASSETS.

STENSLAND'S PERSONAL HOLDINGS TO BE EQUALLY SHARED.

Judge Kavanagh Orders Receivers to Take Papers That Belong to Their Side's Case—Shippy Declares Titles to Land on Northwest Side Sold to Small Houseowners Are Clouded Because of the Litigation Now in Progress.

Judge Kavanagh yesterday granted an order authorizing Receiver John C. Fetzer of the defunct Milwaukee Avenue State bank to divide the assets contained in P. O. Stensland's private safety deposit box with W. C. Niblack, receiver for P. O. Stensland's personal estate. When the box was opened by the bank examiner after the failure it was found to contain life insurance policies for $125,000 and stock in the Mount Olive Cemetery company.

The order of Judge Kavanagh practically annulled the injunction of the federal court under which the contents of the box had been kept from Mr. Fetzer. The two receivers are to take whatever valuables appear to belong to their respective estates, but Receiver Fetzer is granted a lien on the insurance policies in case it is found that the premiums were paid with the bank's money.

Stensland Titles Clouded.

Police Inspector Shippy caused disquiet among the holders of houses and lots in the Stensland tract, on the northwest side, by announcing that the title is clouded. The property involved is valued at about $300,000 and hundreds of persons have built cottages on lots purchased through small payment contracts.

"Stensland swindled an aged man out of the property in the first place," said Shippy. "Originally it belonged to a lawyer named Mason, who was unfortunate, and who now is dead.

"Stensland used to take him out to a saloon and after a few drinks would advance him money in small amounts, keeping track of the loans on a tab. He told Mason that his real estate was good security. Finally Stensland suggested that Mason count his tabs and repay the loans. It appeared that the tabs had been lost. Stensland secured a lien on the land and foreclosed. In order to cloud the title and make it appear that the property did not pass directly from Mason to Stensland, the name Liebrecht was used. I cannot find that the man ever existed.

"It is said that Mason declared he had been swindled before he died. At any rate his heirs have a suit pending which involves the title to the property."

Would End One Receivership.

Attorney J. W. Loeb, representing Receiver Fetzer, appeared before Judge Brentano to seek advice on a proposition to terminate the Niblack receivership by paying the debts of Stensland's estate and then taking over the assets for consolidation with the general bank fund. The debts of the $300,000 estate, it is believed, will not amount to more than $15,000. Most of the claims are on mechanics' liens, which must be met by 100 cents on the dollar.

"On the face of it this appears to be a fair business proposition," said Judge Brentano, who continued the matter until Saturday.

Jacob J. Kern filed a petition before Judge Kavanagh asking that the forged note for $15,000 be canceled. The receiver was given five days in which to answer Mr. Kern's petition.

TRACTION BLUFF SHOWN UP BY COMMISSIONER O'CONNELL

Official Locates Grooved Rails, but Roach Revokes His Original Promise to Lay Them—Mueller Suits on Monday.

General Manager Roach of the Union Traction company took backwater yesterday on his bluff that he would lay all the grooved rails the city could corner in the market. The city made good unexpectedly.

Mr. Roach had told the city authorities that the delay in reducing the tracks to grade in streets being improved was due to the inability of the company to get the grooved rails. Commissioner O'Connell and his assistants wired all rail mills in the country. He soon located 200 tons of grooved rails at the Pennsylvania Steel company's mill in Pittsburg.

Then O'Connell called up Mr. Roach and asked for a written authority to purchase the rails for the Union Traction company.

"Well, I couldn't go that far," replied Roach. "You'll have to see the receivers about that."

Two Miles Could Be Laid.

It finally was agreed that Roach should call this morning and tell the commissioner whether the company is sincere in its desire to perform its part of the improvements. There are fifteen miles of streets the paving of which cannot be completed until grooved rails are laid. The 200 tons located by O'Connell would supply two miles. The streets in which improvements are being held up by the street car companies are:

Eighteenth street, Fourteenth street, Ogden avenue, Paulina street, Robey street, West Twenty-first street, Morgan street, Blue Island avenue, Adams street, Ashland avenue, North avenue, Root street, Sangamon street, Fortieth avenue, and Fullerton avenue.

Mueller Law Hearing on Monday.

It was announced by Special Traction Counsel Walter L. Fisher that the hearing of the suit to test the validity of the Mueller certificate ordinance and of the Mueller law will begin next Monday morning in Judge Windes' court.

SEEK TO SAVE HICKORY TREES.

Lumbermen Form National Association to Co-operate with Government Forestry Department.

The National Hickory association was organized and officers elected yesterday at the Auditorium hotel. Its members are lumbermen who declare the consumption of hickory in the construction of various models of vehicles, wood indispensable in this work, has become so alarming that steps should be taken to economize in the use of the wood and coöperate with the government forestry department in renewing the supply. The officers are:

President—J. W. Herron, Cincinnati.

Vice president—E. W. McCullough, Wilmette.

Secretary—Fred A. Curtis, Marquette building, Chicago.

Treasurer—W. A. Snyder, Piqua, O.

H. B. Holroyd, representing the forestry department at Washington, addressed the meeting. The allied trades at the meeting represented the consumption of 250,000,000 feet of hickory a year.

Minneapolis Mayor and Family Here.

Mayor E. L. Hersey, wife, and children of Minneapolis are at the Auditorium Annex on their way to their home in Minneapolis after a visit in the east. They expected to leave for Minneapolis yesterday, but illness of Mrs. Hersey prevented. The family will leave, however, today.

BUY BIG SOUTH SIDE TRACT

MEMBERS OF CHICAGO AND BOSTON SYNDICATE IN LAND DEAL.

Vacant Property Fronting on Armour Avenue, Dearborn and State Streets Brings $628,440—Despite the Announcement That Sale Is for Investment Purposes, New Freighthouse Is Rumored — Chicago and Western Indiana Acquires Land.

The most important deal in south side vacant frontage in years is the sale by Edward C. Walker Jr. to a syndicate of Chicago and Boston capitalists of 3,142 feet in Armour avenue, Dearborn and State streets, south of Twenty-second street. While the consideration in the individual transfers is not given out, it is stated that the total for all the properties acquired was $628,440.

The properties acquired include 1,662¾ feet in Armour avenue, west front, between Twenty-second and Twenty-fifth streets; 1,250 feet on both sides of Dearborn street in the blocks named, and 229 feet in State street.

The purchases are stated to have been made for investment, and it is announced that it is the policy of the purchasers to dispose of the property either by sale or construct buildings and lease them to parties desiring warehouse or factory sites. It is stated that negotiations are now under way for the resale of the entire Armour avenue frontage.

New Freighthouse Rumored.

The fact that the Lake Shore road owns the opposite frontage on Armour avenue has given rise to the report that that road is after the property with the purpose of establishing, together with the Rock Island, a new freight house.

The Armour avenue frontage was secured from three persons, Ernst Uhlich selling 862¾ feet, the estate of Catherine Muhlke 600 feet, and Frederick Ayer of Boston, who sold 200x100 feet at the southwest corner of Twenty-fifth street.

The State street purchases comprise 175x125 feet, east front, 100 feet south of Twenty-fourth street, sold by Charles M. Hodges and Arthur Aldis to William B. Hale; and 54x120 feet, 128 feet south of Twenty-sixth street, which was bought from Philip L. Auten of Pasadena.

Road Gets West Side Land.

In deeds just filed for record the Chicago and Western Indiana road appears as taking title by quitclaim from Harry D. Singer to three tracts of land between Twelfth and Twenty-second streets and Forty-fifth and Forty-sixth avenues. They comprise two tracts of five acres each at the northeast corner of West Fifteenth street and Forty-sixth avenue and on Forty-sixth avenue, 660 feet north of Twenty-second street, respectively, and 270x1,254 feet at the southeast corner of Twelfth street and Forty-sixth avenue.

Louis Werner of New York conveyed to Joseph Ullmann, who in turn conveyed to Samuel Ullmann, the property at the southwest corner of Market and Lake streets, 201x78 feet, a nominal consideration being given. The board of review valued the property at $200,000.

STOCKS STRONG AND WEAK

ACTIVE LIST OPENS HIGHER, BUT SLUMPS LATER.

Trend of Speculation Determined by Money Conditions—Opening Rate of 6 Per Cent for Call Loans Dampens Ardor of Bull Traders, and Heavy Selling for Profits Results — Hill Issues and Pacifics Absorb Considerable Attention.

[BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

New York, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Business in the stock market was dependent on the monetary situation today. Shares started with a rush and at higher prices through the active list.

The greatest gains were made by the Hill issues, Union Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio, and St. Paul, these advancing from 1½ to 5½ points. The market continued animated, though confused, all through the first hour, when an opening rate at 6 per cent for call loans dampened the ardor of the bulls and brought heavy selling for profits. Thereafter the market was dull and narrow, though showing some renewal of activity in the late session, when the Harriman issues, on only moderately large trading, advanced to new high record figures.

The market became heavy in the last hour, when call money advanced to 8 per cent, prices dropping from 1 to 5 points all around and closing weak at the day's lowest quotations.

In some quarters there was a disposition to attribute this in a measure to the possibilities arising from the reception of Bryan's speech in the evening. Railway returns included that of the Reading system, showing a decrease in net earnings for July and a decrease in earnings of the company's coal and iron properties for that period. On the other hand, Ontario and Western reported a substantial net increase for the same month.

Bonds were irregular. Total sales, par value, $1,800,000. United States 2s advanced ⅛ and the new 4s a point on call.

Money on call strong and higher; 6@8 per cent; ruling rate, 6; closing bid, 5¾; offered at 6. Time loans strong; 60 days, 6½ per cent; 90 days, 6¼@7; 6 months, 6 bid. Prime mercantile paper, 6@6½ per cent. Sterling exchange weak, with actual business in bankers' bills at 483.85@483.40 for demand and at 480.25 for 60 day bills. Posted rates, 482 and 485. Commercial bills, 479⅞@480. Bar silver, 66⅝. Mexican dollars, 51¼. Government bonds strong. Railroad bonds irregular.

IN FOREIGN MONEY MARKET.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—Money was a shade harder today owing to the settlement and month end requirements. Discounts were firmer on the weakness of New York exchange. The price of gold was raised today, owing to inquiry for New York account. Business on the stock exchange had a dull tendency and prices fell away, owing to sheer lack of support. The uncertain monetary outlook was the principal check to speculation. Foreigners were a shade better on the Paris advices. Americans were strong, in contrast with the rest of the market, and as a rule were active and strong. They opened well above parity and further advanced on good local and American buying. Chesapeake and Ohio, Reading, and Union Pacific were the leading stocks. The receipt of the New York opening quotations caused further hardening of prices, but the market fell away later and prices closed easy at about the lowest of the day. Rio Tintos was the feature of the miscellaneous market. Japanese imperial 6s of 1904 were quoted at 103⅛.

The weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes:

The proportion of the bank's reserve to liability this week is 51.05 per cent, as compared with 50.86 per cent last week.

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—Prices on the boerse in all departments today were firm upon the New York advices and the news from the American iron market, but profit taking later weakened prices. Russians were higher. American rails were buoyant.

PARIS, Aug. 30.—Prices on the bourse today were generally firm. Russian bonds of 1904 were quoted at 472.00. The weekly statement of the Bank of France shows the following changes:

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

Good cattle ruled strong at the stockyards yesterday and medium stuff was a shade weaker. There was an unusually large showing, for a Thursday market, of steers bringing more than $6.

Hogs failed to advance until late in the session and then the gain was trifling. But the closing tone was strong.

The strongest part of the market was again in the sheep pens. Lambs sold well, but choice stuff was scarce.

Receipts were: Cattle, 10,000; hogs, 18,000; sheep, 18,000.

MAY SUE TRACTION COMPANY.

Miss Mary Bradford, Who Says Conductor Slapped Her for Pulling Bell Cord, Likely to Seek Redress.

Legal action may be begun against the Chicago Union Traction company by Miss Mary Bradford, who says she was struck by the conductor of a West Madison street car Wednesday evening.

Miss Bradford angered the conductor by pulling the bell cord after the car had stopped, and she asserts that he slapped her in the face before she alighted.

It was stated at the offices of the Chicago Union Traction company that no action would be taken in the case against the conductor. According to the statement of representatives of the corporation the evidence showed that the conductor only pushed the young woman from the car, after she had struck him.

CITY LOSES RATE FIG[HT]

RAILROADS DECIDE IN FAVOR [OF] ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS

Important Action Taken by W[estern] Trunk Lines Will Injure Chi[cago] Materially as a Commercial C[enter] —Base Ruling on Declaration [that] Differential Could Not Be Al[tered] Without Making Correspond[ing] Changes to Other Cities.

Chicago has lost its fight for a re[duction] of the Chicago-St. Louis freight [rate dif]ferentials to points beyond the Mis[souri] river. The western trunk lines, thr[ough] James V. Mahoney, yesterday notified C. Barlow, executive director of the Chi[cago] Commercial association, that it had been decided that the changes asked for by the com[mercial] interests of this city shall not be granted. In explanation of the committee's decision it was stated that the Chicago-St. Louis differential could not be altered without making necessary corresponding changes in the rates to a large number of manu[facturing] and jobbing centers in the [west], some of which had already asked for an op[portunity] to be heard, and that it was con[sidered] that all interests would be best served by a trial under the new cond[itions] created by the revised interstate com[merce] law.

Explanation Is Ridiculed.

Commercial association members are inclined to ridicule the explanatory por[tion of] the letter. They assert the new [law] does not affect the situation in the sli[ghtest] degree, and that as the present Chic[ago-St.] Louis differentials have been in effe[ct since] 1875 it would seem they have been g[iven a] pretty thorough trial. They contend the cause a reduction in the differential w[ould] make necessary other changes is no reason why injustice should continue to be done to this city.

The railways' decision is regarded as a blow to Chicago's commercial interests, ow[ing] to unfavorable freight rates local b[usi]ness men say much of the trade of the territory beyond the Missouri river is b[eing] wrested away from them. The struggle [will] not, however, be abandoned. Mr. Barlow [will] report the railways' action to the tra[nspor]tation committee of the Commercial ass[ociation] at a meeting on Monday, when pla[ns for] renewing the contest probably will be dis[cussed].

Chicago business men started the camp[aign] for more favorable freight rates from [this] city to transmissouri territory five years [ago]. It was largely to promote this object [that] the Chicago Shippers' association, which [sub]sequently amalgamated with the Com[mer]cial association, was organized. The m[atter] was taken up from time to time with [the] railroads until April 10 last, when the su[bject] was fully presented to the western tr[unk] lines at a conference with represent[atives] of the commercial association. St. L[ouis'] reply was made at a meeting on June 1[...] Chicago's rebuttal was heard on Aug. [...]

Favored by 1 to 8 Cents.

The differentials in favor of St. Louis [range] from 8 cents per hundred on commodit[ies in] class 1 and 1 cent on commodities in cl[ass ...]. St. Louis contended the rates should be unaltered because Chicago has an advan[tage] in the local rates from the east. Chicago argued that eastern rates have nothing [to do] with the matter. Changes in commercial [and] transportation conditions, this city's re[pre]sentatives maintain, have put many we[stern] producing and distributing points on a p[ar] so far as cost of production is concerned, [and] as all commerce is sensitive to rates m[ade] thirty-six years ago the present adjustm[ent] is threatening this city's commercial [su]premacy.

Double Tracking to Be Begun.

The work of double tracking the main l[ine] of the Great Northern and Northern [Pa]cific railways throughout the state of Wa[sh]ington is to begin at once, and is expected [to] be finished next year. Similar operations [will] then be commenced in Montana. The [im]provement is made necessary by the b[ig] increase in traffic in the Spokane district. [The] work of actual construction on the Butte-Whitehall division of the Milwaukee's [new Pa]cific coast road has been begun at Pipestone Summit, twelve miles from Butte.

A conference of the various officials of the traffic department of the Illinois Central lines north of the Ohio river, is being held at [the] Auditorium hotel for the consideration [of] ways and means for handling the large cr[ops] of the north and south, and caring for [the gen]eral traffic of the road.

Kansas Demurrage Law Legal.

Topeka, Kas., Aug. 30.—The state board of [rail]way and warehouse commissioners today held [that] the demurrage law is legal and that railways [must] pay $1 for every day that empty cars are [not fur]nished after an order to do so has gone out.

CITY LOSES RATE FIGH[T]

Important Action Taken by West[ern] Trunk Lines Will Injure Chica[go] Materially as a Commercial Ce[nter] —Base Ruling on Declaration Th[at] Differential Could Not Be Alte[red] Without Making Correspond[ing] Changes to Other Cities.

Chicago has lost its fight for a redu[ction] of the Chicago-St. Louis freight rate [dif]ferentials to points beyond the Miss[ouri] river. The western trunk lines, throu[gh] James V. Mahoney, yesterday notified [J.] C. Barlow, executive director of the Chica[go] Commercial association, that it had been de[cided] that the changes asked for by the com[mercial] interests of this city shall not [be] granted. In explanation of the committ[ee's] decision it was stated that the Chicago-[St.] Louis differential could not be altered wi[th]out making necessary corresponding chan[ges] in the rates to a large number of manu[facturing] and jobbing centers in the w[est,] some of which had already asked for an o[p]portunity to be heard, and that it was c[on]sidered that all interests would be best [pre]served by a trial under the new conditi[ons] created by the revised interstate comme[rce] law.

Explanation Is Ridiculed.

Commercial association members are [in]clined to ridicule the explanatory portion [of] the letter. They assert the new rate l[aw] does not affect the situation in the slight[est] degree, and that as the present Chicago-[St.] Louis differentials have been in effect si[nce] 1875 it would seem they have been given [a] pretty thorough trial. They contend that [be]cause a reduction in the differential w[ould] make necessary other changes is no g[ood] reason why injustice should continue to [be] done to this city.

The railways' decision is regarded as a h[eavy] blow to Chicago's commercial interests. O[w]ing to unfavorable freight rates local bu[si]ness men say much of the trade of the gr[eat] territory beyond the Missouri river is be[ing] wrested away from them. The struggle w[ill] not, however, be abandoned. Mr. Barlow w[ill] report the railways' action to the transp[or]tation committee of the Commercial asso[cia]tion at a meeting on Monday, when plans f[or] renewing the contest probably will be d[is]cussed.

Chicago business men started the campa[ign] for more favorable freight rates from th[is] city to transmissouri territory five years a[go.] It was largely to promote this object th[at] the Chicago Shippers' association, which su[b]sequently amalgamated with the Comm[er]cial association, was organized. The matt[er] was taken up from time to time with t[he] railroads until April 10 last, when the subje[ct] was fully presented to the western tru[nk] lines at a conference with representativ[es] of the commercial association. St. Lo[uis'] reply was made at a meeting on June 19, a[nd] Chicago's rebuttal was heard on Aug. 2[..].

The differentials in favor of St. Louis v[ary] from 8 cents per hundred on commoditie[s in] class 1 and 1 cent on commodities in clas[s ..] St. Louis contended the rates should be [left] unaltered because Chicago has an advant[age] in the local rates from the east. Chicago [has] argued that eastern rates have nothing to [do] with the matter. Changes in commercial a[nd] transportation conditions, this city's rep[re]sentatives maintain, have put many weste[rn] producing and distributing points on a par [so] so far as cost of production is concerned, a[nd] as all commerce is sensitive to rates m[ade] thirty-six years ago the present adjustme[nt] is threatening this city's commercial [su]premacy.

Double Tracking to Be Begun.

The work of double tracking the main li[nes] of the Great Northern and Northern P[a]cific railways throughout the state of Wa[sh]ington is to begin at once, and is expected [to] be finished next year. Similar operations w[ill] then be commenced in Montana. The i[m]provement is made necessary by the hea[vy] increase in traffic in the Spokane district. T[he] work of actual construction on the Butte a[nd] Whitehall division of the Milwaukee's P[a]cific coast road has been begun at Pipest[one] Summit, twelve miles from Butte.

A conference of the various officials of t[he] traffic department of the Illinois Central lin[es] north of the Ohio river, is being held at t[he] Auditorium hotel for the consideration [of] ways and means for handling the large cr[ops] of the north and south, and caring for g[en]eral traffic of the road.

Kansas Demurrage Law Legal.

Topeka, Kas., Aug. 30.—The state board of [rail]way and warehouse commissioners today held t[hat] the demurrage law is legal and that railways m[ust] pay $1 for every day that empty cars are not f[ur]warded after an order to do so has gone out.

WHEAT SAGS STILL LOWER

CHANGING OPERATIONS FIGURE AS FEATURE IN MARKET.

Support Throughout Lacks Vim, Operators Looking to Delivery Day—Weather Conditions Fine—Poor Export Demand—Corn Feels Effect of Increased Country Acceptances—Oats Strong on Buying by Cash Houses and Elevator Interests.

Wheat ruled dull yesterday, fluctuations being within narrow limits. Changing operations again were the feature, and the buying of September by shorts and the selling of December and May, and the reverse of these operations by the longs helped to hold the market steady. The trade was under the impression that there is a large line of September wheat yet to come on the market, and was looking for a larger break in that option than occurred.

Huge deliveries are expected tomorrow, and the trade hesitates buying before it is seen what disposition is made of the wheat that will have to be taken in by the September longs. Final quotations showed ⅜@½c lower for September; ⅜@½c lower for December, and ⅝c weaker for May.

Early prices were the weakest of the day, the bearish tone of the cables, coupled with a fear of heavy liquidation, causing a sharp break at the start. Selling supposed to be for a leading elevator interest of the deferred months made the pit traders fearful, and they made haste to dispose of their long wheat at the outset. Foreign news was almost uniformly discouraging to the bullishly inclined. Liverpool at the close was ⅝d lower; and Paris 1½c weaker. Broomhall cabled that the Italian wheat crop was 8,000,000 bu larger than last year, and private advices received from abroad claimed that crop prospects in Russia were not as bad as had been pictured, and that a fair average crop would be secured.

Receipts were lighter, both here and in the northwest, Chicago getting 47 cars, and Minneapolis and Duluth, together, 70 cars. The promise, however, is for larger receipts in the northwest, Minneapolis advices claiming that country stations of the leading elevator interests were receiving a large quantity of new wheat, which would show up in the arrivals next week. Total arrivals at western points were 456,000 bu, compared to 873,000 bu a year ago. Clearances of wheat and flour at the seaboard were unusually heavy—equal to 940,000 bu, and were an influence in steadying the market.

Weather Conditions Are Fine.

Weather conditions were fine throughout the west, with predictions of continued splendid harvesting weather. From the northwest there continued to come many diverse reports regarding the probable yield of spring wheat. Yields ranging from 4 to 23 bu were reported, and the trade was in a quandary as to what to believe. The estimate of 100,000,000 bu of wheat for North Dakota was not taken seriously in some quarters usually well posted. Firms in the northwest claiming that even with an immense crop of macaroni this estimate is preposterous.

On the other hand, the bears asserted that the poor crop outturns that are being reported are being picked out from the good ones in order to encourage buying.

Export Outlook Poor.

There was little comfort to be derived either from the local cash situation or the export outlook. Sales here were moderate—85,000 bu, including 75,000 bu No. 2 red, and although the prices for the cash article remain comparatively firm, there seems to be no urgent demand from millers. Shipments are decreasing—only 4,000 bu from store, and small scattered lots canceled. Exporters said the inquiry from abroad was poor, bids being ⅜ to 1½c out of line, with no large inquiry even at those limits. Flour sales were slightly larger.

Corn Acceptances Increasing.

Increasing arrivals and reports of liberal purchases of the cereal in the leading corn states gave the corn market a weak tone, especially for the deferred options. The increase in the estimates for today—314 cars—as compared to arrivals yesterday of 223 cars, was construed as the beginning of the much expected and long deferred movement. Both Illinois and Nebraska farmers were reported to be offering old corn liberally. There was free buying of the September by one of the leading cash houses, with selling of the December and May. Closing prices were ⅜c lower for September, ¼c off for December, and ⅛c weaker for May. Shipments hence were 75,000 bu. Clearances were 2,800 bu. In the sample market corn was unchanged to ¼c lower, with sales of 145,000 bu for shipment.

Oats Rule Stronger.

Oats were the strongest cereal on the list at the close, after a weak tone early. Cash houses and receivers were good buyers of the December, the latter having sold their cash houses and are taking off their hedges. Elevator interests bought September and sold December and May. The September-December spread was 1¼@1⅜c early, but at the close was 1⅜c. Interior acceptances were moderate throughout the central west, but the northwest predicted a heavier movement. Arrivals were 187 cars with 210 cars expected today. Receipts at western primary points were 634,128 bu; shipments, 577,832 bu. Cash prices were ¼@½c higher. Prices at the finish were ⅛@¼ to ¼c higher.

Provisions Firm at the Close.

There was a fair speculative trade in hog products, with a fairly steady tone to the situation. The market was about unchanged at the opening, but later it was slightly lower, a good demand developing on the break, causing a reaction to about the best prices at the close, with pork 10c lower to 12½c higher, lard 2½@15c higher, and short ribs 5@12½c stronger. The local run of hogs was 18,000, with 16,000 estimated for today. The supply at the principal western packing points was estimated at 57,000, compared to 53,500 a year ago. The cash demand was fair, mainly for domestic wants. Packing for the week was 80,000 more than last year.

Rye Market Is Firm.

There was a small demand for cash rye and the market was firm. Futures were unchanged. Receipts were 3 cars. No. 2 free on board sold at 57@58c, and billed through at 56½c; No. 3, free on board at 55c, and billed through at 52c. September was 55½c bid, and December 57c bid.

Barley was steady, with a better demand than recently. Feed was quoted at 37@37½c; malting, 38@50c; screenings, 30@38½c. Receipts were 27 cars.

Timothy seed was steady for good lots and easy for common. A little more seed is coming on sale, but the offerings were not large. New seed was quoted $3.25@4.00; old, $2.50@3.85; September was $3.95 bid, and October sold at $3.90.

Flax was nominally unchanged, with No. 1 northwestern $1.11; No. 1, $1.07; September, $1.06 bid. Receipts were 7 cars here, 15 cars at Minneapolis, and 12 cars at Duluth.

INTERESTING TRADE GOSSIP ON 'CHANGE.

Cash wheat was relatively steady yesterday, the differences being about the same as recently; No. 2 red 1@1½c over September free on board, and No. 2 hard September price to ¼c over. Sales were comparatively light for shipment, although a fair business was done in car lots. The export outlook was not encouraging, bids being ⅜ to 1½c out of line. Acceptances were small. At Kansas City there was a fair demand reported for the better grades of wheat, but poor was a slow sale.

Closing prices were 66@70c for No. 2 hard, and 67@68c for No. 2 red. No. 2 red at St. Louis was 70½@72c; No. 2 hard, 70@73c. No. 1 northern at Minneapolis was quoted about 4½c over September, with new at 3½c over. New York wired that there was poor inquiry for wheat from abroad. Cash corn here was steady to ½c lower, with fair sales.

Offerings from the country showed every indication of increasing. Nebraska points and the territory contributory to the southwestern markets were selling freely.

The advance in oats shut off some of the demand, but there were fairly good sales. Prices were ¼@½c lower. Local sales were 85,000 bu wheat, including 40,000 bu No. 2 hard; 200,000 bu corn, and 155,000 bu oats. The seaboard reported sales of 80,000 bu wheat, 24,000 bu corn, and 100,000 bu oats. Charters were made for 50,000 bu wheat and 100,000 bu corn to Buffalo at 1¾ and 1⅝c respectively.

Changing operations were again the feature of the wheat trade. The northwest bought September and sold December through Wrenn, and there was a lot of changing from September to December by Shearson-Hammill, Logan-Bryan, Barrell, and Pringle were fair buyers of September, Kneeland-Clement-Curtis were good sellers of September early. Armour was the big seller of December and May corn, buying the September. Milmine-Bodman and Ash sold corn freely. The Northern Grain, Bartlett-Frazier, Brosseau bought oats. The Armour house bought September and sold December and May. Peavey was active on the selling side. Swift & Co. bought lard and the Cudahy Packing company was an open seller of October ribs and lard. Rolston sold September lard.

Closing prices for wheat in foreign markets were: Liverpool, ⅝d lower; Paris, 1½c lower; Antwerp, unchanged; Berlin, ⅛c higher; Budapest, unchanged.

C. M. Case wired from Minneapolis: "We have not had any reports yet, but we see no need of changing our opinion. I think Jones' estimate of 100,000,000 bu for North Dakota is much too high. Of course you understand that he includes macaroni."

The demand for cash wheat at Kansas City keeps unusually active at steady prices. The mills are the best buyers of the high grade stock. The northwest is also taking some, and, like the mills, is bidding for more. Elevators and shippers take the low grades, so that there is an all around demand daily that cleans up the receipts and would take more if it could be obtained.

Deliveries tomorrow morning will be from 8:30 to 9:15 a. m. Any property taken in cannot be delivered until Tuesday on account of the holiday on Monday, and carrying charges must be paid on it until Tuesday, even when sold out, when notified of its delivery Saturday.

Duluth received its first new wheat during the day—2 cars. One car graded No. 1 hard and 1 car durum. Last year the first arrivals were ten days earlier. Minneapolis received 26 cars of new wheat, of which 1 car was No. 1 hard, 13 cars No. 1 northern, 9 cars No. 2 northern, 2 cars No. 3, and 1 car rejected. Country elevators were said to be receiving more wheat, which would begin to show up next week in the Minneapolis receipts.

Thrashing returns received from Minot, N. D., gave the yield as 18 bu per acre.

"A cash grain handler here tells me the domestic demand for corn is nil and that stocks are increasing," said a St. Louis message. "We now have 200,000 bu in store."

Bartlett-Frazier-Carrington have issued a circular on the commission rule question, saying, in part:

"Memberships were selling at $3,200 before the rule was adopted. Today they are offered at $2,800. During the last three months we have had injected into the market every incentive for speculation, and it has been an ideal speculative market. In former years and under the same speculative conditions the volume of business would have been enormous.

"But what are the facts? There is not a house in the trade that will claim that its volume of business during the last three months has equaled in volume that of the corresponding three months of the previous year. The commissions may have been twice as large, in view of the doubled commission, and, considering the speculative conditions, they should have been four times as large. This can mean but one thing: that speculation, handicapped by our increased commission, is slowly dying out. What the market needs is volume of trade—an increasing, not a decreasing business.

"We are driving our business away. Some is going to other markets. How many were interested in Kansas City or Omaha market prices before our commissions were doubled? Now, both these cities are growing rapidly in importance, not only as cash, but also as speculative markets. The spreaders have left us definitely. The oats speculator claims that fluctuations do not average large enough to justify the toll he has to pay."

"The difference between May oats and May corn is only about 11¼c a bu, which is unusually small," said a leading grain man. "It would be reasonable to expect a difference of 13c or 14c a bu. The Iowa and northwestern oats crops are large and just commencing to move. Movement has been delayed by wet weather. The export demand amounts to nothing; the domestic demand is moderate. Can see nothing on which to bull oats. Believe they could go down several cents a bu and corn stay where it is. But believe, with a continuation of this weather for two weeks, we shall raise the largest crop of corn we have ever raised, and that May corn will sell several cents a bushel lower than it is selling at the present time. There is little demand for new corn for export for the winter months, and this year we shall have to compete with the Danube and southern Russia—a competition that we did not have last season."

The Cincinnati Price Current said:

"There is less inclination to market winter wheat at present prices. Corn continues in fine promise; large acreage of winter wheat indicates good pasture, saving hay and oats. Packers of hogs at leading western centers for the week 420,000 head, compared with 405,000 last week and 340,000 last year. Aggregate packing from March 1 to date 12,470,000 head, compared with 11,490,000 last year, indicating an increase of 980,000 head."

"I believe there is enough September wheat yet to be liquidated to put the price to 68c before Saturday night," said H. E. Rycroft.

Sales on call were: Corn—30,000 bu No. 3, 10 days at 49¼c track Chicago; 3,000 bu No. 3 yellow, this year, at 40⅝c through billed; 5,000 bu No. 3 white this year, at 41¼c track Chicago. Oats—5,000 bu standard, 60 days, at 30¼c through billed.

POULTRY MARKET IS EASY.

The live poultry market was easier, with the prices for fowls ½c lower and for young turkeys 2c lower. Offerings were liberal. Receipts of watermelons were 10 cars and there were 125 cars or part cars on the tracks, which made for an easier market, the present demand not being heavy.

Potatoes ruled weak, prices on an average being 2c lower. Liberal supplies of sweet potatoes, with a small demand, made a slow market. Peach receipts were almost entirely from Michigan and nice stock sold well. In the butter and egg market prices were well maintained, with a fair trade.

IN THE FINANCIAL WORLD.

ANOTHER ADVANCE IN CALL RATES IN NEW YORK CITY.

Figure of 7½ Per Cent Is in Excess of Price for Money at Corresponding Period Last Year — Gotham Banks Not as Well Prepared for the Fall Movement as They Were Twelve Months Ago—Pig Iron Is Slower.

Money had another advance in New York yesterday, call rates going to 7½ per cent. This figure is in excess of prices for money at a corresponding period last year. At the same time the New York banks are not as well prepared for the fall movement as they were one year ago.

The subtreasury statement showed that since last Friday it had gained $4,058,000 from the banks, an amount sufficient to exhaust the excess reserve. At the same time the banks must have lost materially to the interior, since New York exchange at Chicago has been at a discount and currency shipments west from this center have been in good volume.

Union Gas and Electric.

The Union Gas and Electric company of Cincinnati has been completed by the election of directors and an increase in the company's capital stock to $20,000,000. One-half of this amount will be common and one-half preferred. N. G. Kenan is to be made president of the company and George W. Young vice president. Of the capital raised by the issue of new stock $3,000,000 will be deposited as a guarantee fund for the payment of the 4½ per cent dividends on the stock of the Cincinnati company. There will be expended for improvements during the first year of the lease $2,000,000.

Bank Increases Capital.

Directors of the Corn Exchange bank of New York voted to call a meeting of the shareholders to approve an increase in the capital stock from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000. The shares will be issued to stockholders at 200. It is evident the controller of the currency is making strong insistence upon observation of the recent amendment to the banking act relative to the size of individual loans.

New Boxboard Directors.

Directors of the United Boxboard and Paper company elected C. H. Palmer and A. H. Dougall directors, to succeed W. A. Russell and W. M. Graves, deceased. S. B. Fleming was elected vice president and Mr. Dougall was elected secretary.

Pig Iron Market.

In their weekly letter Rogers, Brown & Co., Chicago office, say: "The buying of pig iron continues, although at not quite so rapid a pace as recently. Prices remain about the same, with a tendency to go still higher for ready and nearby delivery iron. Interest in iron for the first and second quarters of next year continues, and in the aggregate quite a large tonnage has been placed for those periods."

Grain and Provision Folder.

The Economist has issued a grain and provision folder containing eleven pages of statistics. The folder is in "wallet" form, and should be useful to those whose business requires information on the subjects mentioned.

Chicago Stocks.

In the local stock market Chicago Subway shares sold off from the opening, though the business was not large. There was some further activity in Union Traction preferred. The stock was not especially active either here or in New York. Diamond Match quotations showed the effect of further liquidation. The Biscuit shares were steady. There were in the bond department more sales of Northwestern L 4s at 91.

SALE OF LOTS IN GARY

NEW CITY BEING BUILT FOR

INDIANA STEEL COMPANY OF UNITED STATES STEEL CORPORATION.

The Gary Land Company, a subsidiary company of the United States Steel Corporation, announces the sale of lots in the city of Gary, Lake County, Indiana, to begin Monday, Sept. 3. The company has published pamphlets in which the price of each lot and the terms and conditions of sale are designated. These pamphlets can be obtained by application to the Gary Land Company at Gary, Ind.

All streets in the first subdivision are being graded and contracts have been made for paving. The two main streets, known as Broadway and Fifth ave., respectively, will be provided with concrete sidewalks. A modern sewerage system has been designed by competent engineers and is now under construction. The cost of these improvements is included in the price of the lots, so that purchasers of lots will be subject to no expense therefor.

A company has been organized for the construction of a modern water works, gas plant, and electric light plant, and is now actively engaged in the construction of these plants.

The Gary Land Company has not attempted to make any profit out of the sale of lots, having fixed the price of lots as low as the cost of the land and improvements will permit; the idea being to provide the most wholesome conditions of living for the employes of the Indiana Steel Company at a minimum cost.

Gary is located twenty-five miles east of Chicago on Lake Michigan, and is served by the following railroads: Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Ry., Pennsylvania Ry., Baltimore & Ohio Ry., Wabash Ry., Michigan Central Ry., Indiana Harbor Ry., and the Chicago, Lake Shore & Eastern Ry. An electric street railway is now under construction, for the purpose of connecting Gary with Chicago, thus affording the best of transportation facilities.

MORGAN PARK CITIZENS CALL "CONCESSIONS" A GOLD BRICK.

Efforts to Put Ten Year Franchise Extension Through at Board Meeting Are Feared and Residents Make Protests—"One Minute Limit" Service Charge Causes Complaint—Improvements, It Is Declared, Must Be Made Anyway.

Residents of Morgan Park are resisting the Chicago Telephone company's attempt to obtain from the village board a ten years' extension of its present franchise. In return the company promises concessions and improvements which the subscribers declare are of doubtful value.

Charles G. Blake, 10823 Armida avenue, Morgan Park, asserted yesterday that most of the "concessions" in return for an extension would have to be made in the near future anyway as a matter of economy.

The telephone situation in Morgan Park is similar to that which existed in the village of Maywood last spring, when the village board of that community granted the telephone company a franchise in direct opposition to the wishes of a large proportion of the residents. Morgan Park residents fear a similar action will be taken by the village board next Tuesday evening.

Offers Six "Concessions."

It was at the meeting of the village board last Wednesday evening that the telephone "issue" developed. A representative of the telephone company told what the corporation was "willing to do" in return for a ten years' extension. Here is a list of the "concessions" offered in return for a valuable privilege:

Battery service in one year.

Five cents toll to Blue Island.

Morgan Park to benefit by all improvements made in Chicago.

Wires underground in Morgan avenue at once.

Free telephones in residences of village officials.

Upon this basis the board requested the telephone company to prepare a tentative franchise to be considered at the meeting next week. A large number of residents were present, and many spoke against the proposition of considering a renewal at this time.

Complain at "One Minute" Limit.

One of the principal complaints against the company is the "one-minute limit" service maintained in Morgan park, while in Tracy, a village adjoining Morgan park, the subscribers have the "three-minute limit" service for 10 cents a call.

Mr. Blake pointed out to the members of the board that nearly 50 per cent of the subscribers in Morgan Park are compelled to pay 10 cents toll to Chicago by reason of this unreasonable "one-minute limit."

"Those concessions are more in the nature of a gold brick than anything else," said Mr. Blake. "The company will have to make those so-called improvements soon, as a matter of economy.

"The whole proposition is unfair and it should not be considered. I am opposed to having Morgan Park aid the Chicago Telephone company in its fight against the city of Chicago. That is what it would amount to if Morgan Park should grant the extension."

Others who spoke against the grant were Robert Thompson, president of the Calumet Trust and Savings bank, and J. J. Schobinger, principal of the Harvard school.

BRAVE LIFE SAVERS PRAISED.

Government Report Approves Work at Charlevoix, Mich., When Steamer Illinois Went Aground.

Members of the life saving crew at Charlevoix, Mich., were given official praise for heroism in a report received here yesterday from Washington by Inspector J. G. Ballinger of the life saving service. The work of Capt. Fountain and his men in rescuing 300 passengers from the steamer Illinois Aug. 26 brought forth the praise. The steamer is owned by the Northern Michigan Steamship company and went ashore in a heavy sea. The life savers worked forty-eight hours, and by the use of a breeches buoy and surfboats took off all the passengers and crew.
